CHICAGO MAYOR BILL IS BLOCKED BY UNCAST VOTE

50 Representatives Dodge Roll Call.

BY PARKE BROWN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—The silent vote prevented Chicago today from taking the first step in its effort to obtain authority to enable Acting Mayor Frank J. Corr to exercise the full powers of the office he holds, particularly those required to permit the city to function in a financial way.

When the Adamowski bill to permit the city council to elect a mayor with full powers was called up for passage in the house of representatives about 50 of the 153 members quietly slipped out of the chamber or sat silently in their seats, refusing to vote. And the bill received only 71 of the 77 votes required for its passage, even without the emergency clause.

Saved by Parliamentary Move.

With defeat certain, Representative Benjamin S. Adamowski, the author, saved the bill from annihilation by moving that further consideration be postponed. And it is scheduled to be taken up later, probably tomorrow.

The situation was said to be almost unprecedented in assembly annals, for it was not the negative vote which put the measure on the rocks. The vote when the roll call was stopped was 71 to 28, a total of only 99 votes cast out of 153, and almost every one of the 153 seats had been occupied a short time before the roll call began.

While the Democrats are sure they can rally another seven votes from among the mutes, the Republican organization of Chicago is forcing a severe opposition against the measure and is meeting with some success even in downstate territory.

Nelson and Moore Busy.

Ald. Oscar F. Nelson and Edward F. Moore of the Cook county central committee were extremely active today, pursuant to the action of the committee last week declaring hostility to the plan of permitting the council to select a mayor from among its own number or from outside its membership.

Representatives Elmer J. Schnackenberg, Republican minority leader, led the fight on the floor against the bill, but his efforts there were not considered so effective as the labors of others before the session was convened.

He held some Republicans in line, but others of that party even from Chicago voted for the measure, saying they were judging it on its merits as a means necessary to meet the present emergency, to enable the city to sell its tax warrants in order to pay the school teachers, policemen, firemen and other employés.

Democrats Break Lines.

But the bill would have gone over if the Democratic majority had not been broken. Its lines were shattered downstate in a serious way. Sixteen downstate Democrats did not vote—some of them being absent, but most of them merely remaining silent in their seats.

The Cook county delegation of Democrats—with the exception of Anthony Pintozzi, who was absent—voted solidly for the bill, but the silence of such a large number of downstate party representatives destroyed its chances.

Eight Cook county Republicans voted for the bill and only four against it. Of the downstate Republicans who voted only one recorded himself for the measure and 23 voted against it. Thirteen of the Cook county Republicans and 24 of those from downstate declined to vote or were absent—chiefly the former.

Identical Bill Passes Senate.

Several hours after this dramatic tug of war was finished the senate took up an identical bill introduced by Richey V. Graham and passed it, but the victory was considered an empty one so long as the present situation exists in the house of representatives.

The vote in the upper house was 43 to 3, with one senator voting present. The two negatives came from Thomas P. Gunning [Rep., Princeton] and Harry G. Wright [Rep., De Kalb]. Senator James B. Leonardo [Rep., Chicago] was the one who voted "present." There was no debate on this bill.

Following the favorable action in the upper house the Graham bill was sent over to the house of representatives and there was advanced to second reading. Therefore Adamowski and his associates now have two chances for a finish battle. If, on another showdown, they lose on the

O'Hara Held as Killer; Trace Gun Clew

PISTOL OWNER'S BROTHER SEIZED IN MURDER QUIZ

Maloy Wins Liberty on $5,000 Bond.

John J. Dickson, 1001 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, was taken into custody last night for questioning by the police in their efforts to determine the true ownership of the pistol found beside the slain Fred Oser. Oser, an expelled member of the Motion Picture Operators' union, was shot to death last Friday in the office of Thomas E. Maloy, the union's dictator.

Dickson, who has discarded his family name of Dickstein, is a brother of Julius Dickstein, once the owner of the gun found beside the slain Oser. According to the police, Dickson is also reported to be related by marriage to Ralph O'Hara, Maloy lieutenant and the confessed slayer of Oser, who was held on a charge of murder yesterday.

Dickson was taken into custody in an effort by the authorities to verify this report and to gain support for their theory that the pistol was not brought to the union offices by Oser.

Claim Oser Fired Shot.

Both the brothers, Dickson and Dickstein, are members of the movie operators' union and were reported by the police to be high in the favor of Maloy and O'Hara.

O'Hara has declared to the police that Oser fired at him with the pistol in question and that he then shot Oser in self-defense. Relatives and friends of Oser have asserted their belief that he was not armed when he went to the union office to keep an appointment with Maloy and that the pistol was dropped at his side after he was slain to support O'Hara's story of self-defense.

In court hearings during the day O'Hara was formally charged with murder and held without bail; Maloy was released on $5,000 bond after 24 hours in police custody—his first acquaintance with the interior of a cell, and Dickstein was ordered held pending disposition today of his petition for release on a writ of habeas corpus.

Act After Court Hearings.

The tracing of the reported relationship between Dickson and Dickstein and O'Hara occupied the authorities after the conclusion of the court hearings. Dickson was taken into custody by a detective bureau squad at his home in Oak Park after he had returned there from his work as an operator at the Woods theater in the loop. He was hurried to the bureau and locked in a cell. Capt. Daniel Gilbert, chief investigator for the state's attorney, will question him today.

Earlier in the evening Capt. Gilbert said his information was that Dickson had married a relative of O'Hara and was known among union members as a brother-in-law of O'Hara. Gilbert said he was informed that O'Hara had at one time lived in the Dickson home and that Dickson was often seen about the union headquarters at 506 South Wabash avenue where Oser was slain.

Mrs. Dickson over the telephone before her husband was seized denied that she was a relative of O'Hara. Dickstein in his cell at the detective bureau declared that he had four brothers, but that none was married to an O'Hara relative.

Not Armed, Friends Say.

The investigators proceeded with this phase of the inquiry, however, because of the contention that Oser was not armed when he went to Maloy's office, supposedly in response to an invitation from the union dictator to arrange terms of peace so that Oser and the six men who had been expelled from the union with him could go back to work.

When Dickstein, an operator at the Oriental theater, was taken into custody Monday night after the pistol had been traced to him, he admitted that he had purchased the weapon, but asserted that it was stolen from a side pocket of his automobile in the summer of 1931. Yesterday his wife, questioned by the police, said she had never heard her husband mention that a gun was stolen from him. Nor had she ever known, she said, that he had bought the gun or had a weapon in the family car.

Hundreds at Oser Funeral.

Another event of the day was Oser's funeral, which was attended by several hundred persons, including thirty

Roosevelt Cuts 800,000 Pay Checks April 1

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tonight ordered a pay cut of 15 per cent, effective April 1, for the great army of federal payrollers.

The order, made by the President under the authority granted him recently by congress, is expected to result in an annual saving of 125 million dollars.

It affects approximately 800,000 federal employés, including the officers and enlisted men of the army and navy, all postoffice employés and all of the thousands of payrollers in the federal bureaucracy.

Starts New Plan.

Since last July 1 the employés have been operating under an enforced furlough system which cut their pay 8-1-3 per cent, but this system is now automatically abandoned. The Vice President and speaker of the house had taken a 15 per cent cut, which is continued, but under the economy bill senators and congressmen whose pay had been reduced by 10 per cent will be cut 15 per cent from April 1, from $10,000 to $8,500. Under the constitution a President's salary is fixed during his term, and for years it has been $75,000 a year, but former President Hoover voluntarily accepted a 20 per cent cut. President Roosevelt has not yet indicated his action in this matter.

The President's order recited the language of the economy act, approved on March 20 after it had been adopted by congress at the President's request and providing that he should investigate the prevailing cost of living in the country as of June 30, 1928, fixed as the base period, and compare that cost with the present cost over a six month period.

Shows Lower Living Costs.

Mr. Roosevelt caused the department of labor to conduct the inquiry as to the cost of living, and yesterday was given a report showing the decrease from June 30 to the present to be 21.7 per cent. On this finding he ordered the maximum cut permissible, 15 per cent.

Consequently federal payrollers all over the United States will find such a reduction in their pay checks for the first two weeks of April, sent out on April 15.

The decrease is made effective from April 1 to June 30, this year, the new law requiring that adjustments should be made semi-annually. The President is expected to issue a new order before June 30 giving the results of another investigation of the cost of living at that time.

MACHADO MADE CUBAN DICTATOR TO FIGHT CRISIS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, March 28.—The Cuban house of representatives today voted, 117 to 13, to clothe President Machado with dictatorial powers which will enable him to act as he sees fit in attacking the country's financial and economic problems.

The house also sanctioned a seven point national reconstruction program. The senate approved the program last week. Machado is expected to sign the bill tomorrow.

Under today's legislation the president is empowered to decree a two year moratorium on foreign loans, aggregating $200,000,000, and to open negotiations with certain American banking companies to obtain an extension of time for repayment of loans. He is also given power to reorganize the banking system, negotiate for a modification of the reciprocity tariff treaty with the United States, slash the budget 32 per cent, and declare a two year moratorium on all private debts, including taxes in arrears.

Mexican Reds Attack Daniels as U. S. Envoy

MEXICO CITY, March 28.—(AP)—Posters attacking Josephus Daniels, the new American ambassador to Mexico, appeared on walls in Mexico City today.

The posters were captioned "Out with Daniels" and they called him "the murderer of Azueta and Uribe." These men were Mexicans who were killed in the fighting when United States forces landed at Vera Cruz in 1914. At the time Mr. Daniels was secretary of the navy.

The posters were signed "The Central Committee of the Communist Party of Mexico, section of the communist international."

Urge Mexicans to Rise.

They called upon workers, farmers, students, soldiers and sailors, and "all anti-imperialists in general" to rise up and force Daniels from Mexico.

The overthrow of the present Mexican government for permitting Daniels to serve as ambassador was urged in the posters.

"The naming of Daniels is an insult to the Mexican people and expectorates on the memory of Mexicans who died at Vera Cruz," the posters said. "What is the consistency of decorating those who died at Vera Cruz and then welcoming the murderer of Azueta and Uribe?"

Fear "Imperialistic War."

Mr. Daniels, the authors of the posters asserted, is coming to Mexico to organize the Mexican army and navy to fight an imperialistic war for the United States.

The president of the American Chamber of Commerce here recently protested in a telegram to Secretary of State Cordell Hull against the Daniels appointment.

It was learned today that communists stoned the American embassy last Friday night in a demonstration against the naming of Daniels. Several windows of the embassy were broken. Policemen who guard the embassy were lured away from the building by one group while others rushed in to stone the place.

U. S. Officials Surprised.

Washington, D. C., March 28.—(AP)—Attacks in Mexico City against Ambassador Josephus Daniels' appointment today created surprise among officials here. A noncommittal silence was the only reaction at the state department.

Observers regarded the allegations that the new ambassador intended to organize the Mexican army and navy to fight an imperialistic war for the United States as too absurd for comment.

Gangs to Fight for a Share in Beer Business

BY CHESLY MANLY.

With the imminent legalization of beer a question frequently heard is "What will the hoodlums do?" The answer, according to statements of brewery representatives and Elliot Ness, chief investigator of the prohibition force, is that they are going to make a desperate effort to stay in the beer business.

Three fields, it is pointed out, are open for the gangs. They may operate legitimate breweries, employing men of good reputations as "fronts" to obtain permits. They may continue to operate wildcat breweries and compete unfairly with the legitimate concerns by evading the $5 a barrel tax and by using gang tactics to force saloonkeepers to buy their product. They may take over—or at least attempt it—the distribution of beer from legitimate breweries.

Government on Guard.

Ness said the government would make every possible effort to prevent the hoodlums from taking over any part of the beer business. So long as the gangs deal with legitimate breweries, however, the government has only one weapon—the licensing power. Only persons of good reputation are granted permits and the inspectors under E. C. Yellowley, supervisor of alcohol permits, are now investigating the character of some fifty applicants.

Among the powerful hoodlums now in the beer business, Red Bolton, it is reported, plans to continue making his own illicit brew—which he boasts cannot be excelled by the legitimate concerns—and forcing it upon the retailers in his west side territory. The remnants of the old Capone syndicate are said to have control of a well known legitimate Chicago brewery.

The largest of the breweries in the famous Druggan and Lake chain, which were padlocked by Federal Judge James H. Wilkerson in 1924 and 1925, is to be reopened with a well known public official at its head.

The Distribution End.

The most attractive field for the hoodlums, however, is the distribution end of the beer business.

The hoodlums are known to have their organizations, their territories, and their saloons and speakeasies in Chicago. They can make attractive offers to a legitimate brewery eager to establish its product in as much territory as possible.

A representative of a large Milwaukee brewery said his concern had been approached by Chicago hoodlums for the wholesaling rights. They brought with them a list of saloons that would take the beer. The brewery agent said the offer was rejected and all brewers declare they will not tolerate gangsters, but the competition after April 7 admittedly will be strong.

Brewer Is Hoodlum's Target.

Ness' information is that the hoodlums do not plan to get more from the saloonkeepers than the latter would be charged by the brewery's own distributing organizations, that they look forward to reaping their profits from the brewers themselves. When things are well lined up and a hoodlum organization is able to go to a brewer with a list of customers in a large area they can demand an extortionate cut in the receipts by threatening to throw their business to a rival brewery.

There have been reports that Al Capone, from his seclusion in the penitentiary at Atlanta, has told his boys to "lay off the beer and stick to the red and white, where the money is"—meaning whisky and alcohol. But such reports do not coincide with reliable information that the so-called syndicate is already telling its customers what brand of beer they must buy after April 7.

BOILS HIS EGGS SO HARD THEY'RE STENCH BOMBS

Peter Broehl, secretary to Supervising Lieut. Richard Barry of the detective bureau, likes his eggs hard boiled.

Yesterday morning, Mrs. Broehl being absent from their home at 8304 South Paulina street, he decided to boil himself four. He put them into a pan filled with water, set the pan on the stove, lighted a burner and then forgot about them. He went to breakfast in a restaurant.

Early last evening he remembered his eggs. He sent Sergts. Orrin Ross and Walter Paradowski to his home to find out how hard the eggs had become. They discovered that the neighbors were complaining about stench bombs being planted in the neighborhood. Also they found a canary named Jimmy in the Broehl apartment overcome by the fumes from the four blackened, smoking eggs. The sergeants threw up the windows, removed the cause of the odor and solemnly reported property damage of 8 cents to the eggs.

NAZI TROOPERS TO PICKET THEIR STORES APRIL 1

No Violence, Leaders Warn Hitlerites.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, March 28.—Chancellor Hitler's National Socialist party will clamp down the lid on all Jewish business and professional men at 10 a. m. Saturday, April 1. Final orders for a nation-wide boycott were issued tonight. The announcement said that it will last "until Jewish life in Germany is paralyzed."

Hitler's government, while not officially countenancing the boycott, is not expected to intervene. The boycott is ordered by the party of which Hitler is the head.

Nazi headquarters at Munich said that the boycott is "a purely defensive measure solely directed against German Jewry as retaliation for the anti-German campaign in foreign countries."

Form of Boycott Order.

The text of the boycott order is as follows:

"In every local group and every organization and department of the National Socialist party committees of action are to be formed immediately for the practical and systematic execution of a boycott against Jewish business establishments, goods, physicians, and lawyers. The committees are to be held responsible for not having the boycott hit the innocent, but are to see that it hits the guilty all the harder.

"The committees are responsible for the protection of all foreigners, irrespective of their religion, origin, or race. The boycott is purely a defensive measure that is to be directed exclusively against German Jewry.

Must Spread Propaganda.

"The committee must forthwith popularize the boycott through propaganda and public enlightenment. No German shall buy any longer from a Jew or let any wares be offered to him by a Jew or his subordinates. The boycott must be universal. It is supported by the entire people and must strike Judaism in its most sensitive spot.

"In doubtful cases the boycott shall be suspended pending a decision by the central committee in Munich.

"The committees shall watch the newspapers closely with respect to the extent that they participate in the intelligence campaign of the German people against Jewish atrocities propaganda abroad. Newspapers not doing so or doing so only to a limited extent are to be removed from every home inhabited by Germans. No German business concern shall advertise in such papers. They must be ostracized as being composed only for those of Jewish kin and not for the German people.

Into Smallest Villages.

"The committees must be pushed forward into the smallest peasants' village in order to hit Jewish tradesmen in the rural districts. It must always be emphasized that the boycott is a measure of defense forced on us.

"The boycott is not to be launched scatteringly, but at one blow. All preparation shall be made in that sense. Orders will be issued to the S. A. [storm troops] and S. S. [special guards] that from the moment the boycott begins their pickets shall warn the population against entering Jewish business establishments. The beginning of the boycott shall be announced through posters, newspapers, handbills, etc. The boycott starts universally Saturday, April 1, at 10 a. m. It shall continue until lifted by order of the party management.

Massmeetings Everywhere.

"Committees shall initiate propaganda immediately in tens of thousands of massmeetings that must reach the smallest village for raising a demand that the number of Jews in all occupations shall be restricted in proportion to their percentage of the population in Germany. To heighten the driving force of this action the demands shall provisionally be restricted to three fields: Admission to German secondary schools and universities and the legal and medical professions.

"The committee shall also take care that every German having connections abroad shall use these for disseminating the truth—by letter, telegraph and telephone—that quiet and order reign in Germany, that the German people has no more ardent wish than peaceably to do its work and live in peace with the outside world, and that it conducts its fight against Jewish atrocity propaganda as a purely defensive measure.

"The committees are responsible for having the whole campaign run in

ROOSEVELT ACTS TODAY FOR CURB ON STOCK ISSUES

U. S. May Supervise the New Promotions.

BY JOHN BOETTIGER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt tomorrow will take the first step in his promised campaign against persons who use other people's money to gamble in the stock markets.

The President will submit a message to congress proposing federal regulations to safeguard the investors against fraudulent or misleading stock selling schemes. A bill to carry out his proposals will be introduced simultaneously.

For Full Information.

In his initial move it was stated at the White House the President will confine his proposed regulation to new stock and bond issues, not disturbing for the present the issues which have been listed on the New York and Chicago Stock exchanges.

Although Mr. Roosevelt declined, in advance of the submission of his message, to let it become known how far he thinks the government should go on regulating new securities, it was reported that the bill would require the organizers, promoters, and sellers of the issues to submit for public information a complete financial statement concerning the stocks and bonds offered.

The bill is expected to require that full information shall be given on every prospectus offering securities for public sale, and that similar information be made freely available at other sources.

Should Get All Facts.

Mr. Roosevelt has declared that buyers of securities are entitled to know the assets behind them, and the liabilities, and to be given true information as to the investment of principal. Bonuses and commissions paid to the sellers should also be revealed to the investing public, the President has held.

In the presentation of such information, Mr. Roosevelt believes, such activities as were recently exposed in the senate investigation of the Insull companies would be prevented.

It was shown that members of the Insull family had acquired many shares of stock in the Insull Securities Investments, Inc., by putting up other securities of a value at which the price paid for the new shares was only $7.54 a share. As soon as the stock was put on the board at Chicago it was sustained at $30 the first day and went up to $40 the next day.

During this time an unsuspecting public bought thousands of shares, only to have their investment crumble to nothing when the ultimate crash came, with no assets of any value to protect them.

May Regulate Exchanges.

The President, according to his close advisers, will follow up his proposal for putting restrictions on the issuance of new securities with a full program aimed at regulation of all stocks and bonds offered to the public, a regulation of holding companies, possibly regulation of the Chicago and New York stock exchanges and the Chicago Board of Trade.

Some question has been raised as to the authority of the federal government to regulate a stock exchange, but Mr. Roosevelt during his campaign declared the hopelessness of any state attempting such regulation and definitely asserted his purpose of effecting a federal regulation.

President Hoover retorted to the Roosevelt campaign charge concerning Wall street gambling that Roosevelt could have curbed the New York exchange as governor of New York, but Mr. Roosevelt at that time replied that if any state imposed regulatory measures the exchange would simply move across a state border where no regulation existed.

TO BEER OR NOT TO BEER

Augusta, Me., March 28.—(AP)—Practically the last hurdle in the move to legalize beer in this pioneer prohibition state was taken today when the house of representatives after lengthy discussion adopted a bill to permit manufacture, sale, possession and transportation of malt beverages. The bill was passed by the senate last Thursday. Gov. Brann has said he will sign it.

Montgomery, Ala., March 28.—(AP)—Overriding Gov. B. M. Miller's veto, the Alabama legislature today enacted into law a bill calling for a prohibition repeal convention in Alabama. Acting less than an hour after Gov. Miller returned the vetoed measure, the senate gave it a 26 to 7 vote and the house followed a few minutes later by approving the bill, 66 to 31.

Dover, Del., March 28.—(AP)—The senate today reconsidered the vote by which it passed the house bill providing for state conventions to act on proposed federal constitutional amendments. The purpose of restoring the bill to the calendar was not disclosed. It provides for the election of 17 delegates at large, and for the convention to meet 28 days after the election date fixed by the governor.

Providence, R. I., March 28.—(AP)—Bills providing for a state convention to ratify repeal of the 18th amendment and making an appropriation of $20,000 for the expenses of the special election of 31 delegates were reported to the house of representatives today by subcommittees with recommendation of passage. The measures go on the calendar for action Thursday.

Oklahoma City, Okla., March 28.—(AP)—In the first test vote on the bill to legalize 3.2 beer in Oklahoma, the house today voted 56 to 52 to table a motion to place the bill on the calendar.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 28.—(AP)—Beer will be sold in Missouri's statehouse starting April 8 if plans of Mrs. Juel Meisenbach, operator of the capitol lunch stand, do not go awry. Mrs. Meisenbach said today that she was making application to the state food and drug department for a permit to vend the brew.

Concord, N. H., March 28.—(AP)—A bill legalizing the manufacture of beer for export only was passed by the state house of representatives today in the face of an adverse committee report. It was advanced by a vote of 39 to 79.

Objection was raised on the ground that the measure did not permit the sale of beer in the state. Legislators were discussing the framing of another bill to attain that end.

Harrisburg, Pa., March 28.—(AP)—Gifford Pinchot, Pennsylvania's dry governor, today laid before the legislature his plan for regulating the sale of beer. Embodied in two bills the plan places regulatory powers in the state alcohol permit board and the department of revenue. The state retains the revenue to be derived from a stamp tax and the various boroughs, cities and townships receive the revenue from license sales.

Nashville, Tenn., March 28.—(AP)—Overriding protests of dry members, the Tennessee senate late today passed a house approved bill providing that delegates to a convention to pass on repeal of the eighteenth amendment be elected from the state at large. The vote was 20 to 13. The senate fixed the date of the election as July 20 and the convention Aug. 11.

Albany, N. Y., March 28.—(AP)—Gov. Lehman's beer control bill, which Republicans are ready to oppose on the ground that it prevents the licensing of brewers and retailers by county control boards, as provided in other plans, was reported out on the floor of the senate tonight, thus paving the way for a floor fight over the bill tomorrow.

The Democratic leadership put the bill on tomorrow's calendar after a four hour conference for the purpose of lining up the Democratic majority of 26 votes to support the governor's plan.

Columbia, S. C., March 28.—(AP)—The South Carolina house of representatives tonight passed on second reading a bill legalizing the sale of 3.2 per cent beer. The vote was 63 to 39.

Ex-Controller of Cicero School Ready for Quiz

Joseph A. Becker, former controller of the J. Sterling Morton High school in Cicero, is ready to face an investigation of his accounts, it was said last night. Becker disappeared four weeks ago and a successor was named. A week ago Frank Svoboda, president of the school board, obtained a warrant charging Becker with theft of $868 in school funds. The ex-controller surrendered early yesterday to Magistrate Henry Sandusky, and was freed on $1,000 bond. He denied any theft of funds.

Cicero President Asks Tax Bodies to Economize

At a special meeting in the Cicero town hall last night President Joseph Cerny of the Cicero board asked members of the various taxing bodies in the community to reduce their expenses. He pointed out that Cicero has cut its 1933 budget $300,000 under its 1932 appropriation. The other taxing bodies beside the Cicero town board represented at the meeting were Clyde park, Hawthorne park, the J. Sterling Morton High school board and school district 99. They promised to economize.

The celebration will be the fifth anniversary of Bira Bidjan, where the soviet government is settling Jews on an agricultural and industrial basis. It is planned to settle 300,000 Jews there by 1937.

FIGHT IN HOUSE FOR NICKEL BEER PROVES POPULAR

High Tax Foes Prepare to Assail Horner Bill.

BY PERCY WOOD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Springfield, Ill., March 28.—[Special.]—Renewed efforts to keep the price of beer down to a nickel a glass are in prospect on the floor of the Illinois house of representatives tomorrow. Rumblings heard among the membership today indicate that this cause will be popular.

The subcommittee of the committee on license and regulation today agreed to the administration proposals, made some other changes, and a bill embodying Gov. Horner's ideas of beer taxation was put on the order of second reading during the late afternoon.

Might Delay Opening.

Meanwhile, complaints against the "bushel" of taxes proposed on beer sounded in the cloakrooms and the corridors. The feeling was that with separate federal, state, city, and brewery levies, and two varieties of some of these, the complexities of the prospects might delay the opening of many refreshment parlors. In horror stricken tones, some of the members even envisioned an eight ounce glass for a dime or a high bottomed stein for a quarter.

As indicative of the situation, a group of legislators were seen and heard on one of the capital streets tonight, lustily chanting a new anthem. Sung to the tune of "Marching Through Georgia," it ran as follows:

"Hooray, hooray, hooray for five cent beer! We hope, we hope, we hope it's here!" Since all legislators are "friends of the workingman," it is anticipated that the oratory tomorrow will be highly dramatic.

Some Provisions of Bill.

The bill now provides a state tax of 2 cents a gallon beer and wines. In addition, the state license will be $100 for each place where beer or wines are sold to the public.

City or town licenses outside of Cook county are to be fixed by county or city officials with a maximum of $300. No limitation was fixed for Cook county. Previously, the maximum license that Chicago could charge was set at $500.

The bill also stipulates that the word "saloon" shall not be used in advertising any beer dispensing establishment.

No brewer will be permitted to finance retailers or to advance money for their licenses.

Must Sell Food in Beer Places.

Food must be sold in places where beer is on sale.

Persons convicted of a felony would be refused licenses.

Liquor could not be sold within 100 feet of a church, school, hospital, military post, or similar institution, except in such places, now open, where liquor is not the principal business.

A state bond of $500 would be required for each license.

$250 for Beer License at Fair.

Special provision was made for Chicago's World Fair this summer, where the state license was placed at $250.

Penalties for violation of provisions of the law are fixed at 30 days to six months in jail or fines of $25 to $500.

Chicago aldermen regard the state license tax of $100, and two cents a gallon brewer's tax; city licenses to be fixed by city councils, and a 100 foot deadline about churches and schools as invasion of home rules.

The provision which would limit beer licenses to food dispensaries is seriously opposed by the wets. They insist that the sale of a nickle box of pretzels would satisfy this requirement and there would be little restrictive powers in the law.

One of the champions of five cent beer was Charles J. Jenkins [Rep., Chicago], who made the fight in committee this afternoon and is expected to rally support on the floor tomorrow.

Burns Economy Program.

Besides the beer problem, the house devoted most of its time today to passing four minor bills of the Burns economy program. These would cut the salaries of downstate probate judges, downstate state's attorneys, members of the athletic commission and the secretary of the aeronautical commission.

Little of the hostility which has met much of this program in the past appeared today. However, more is expected tomorrow when former Judge James T. Burns [Dem., Kankakee] will attempt to pass bills cutting the salaries of state officers and justices of the Supreme court.

Another unit of this program was sent from the efficiency and economy program today. It would reduce the legislators' salaries from $3,500 per biennium to $3,150—a cut of ten per cent. An amendment to which Mr. Burns agreed would, however, give members $5 per day each day they serve in special sessions.

Provides For Bond Issue.

Among the bills introduced was one by Senator R. V. Graham [Dem., Chicago], the majority leader, which would permit the Chicago sanitary district, in pursuance to federal demands, to issue bonds up to 100 millions for controlling works in the Chicago river and sewage treatment work. The bill provides that the bonds may be issued without referendum when taxes are insufficient to meet federal demands.

Senator Harold G. Ward [Dem., Chicago], introduced several bills, one of which would give the Lincoln park commissioners a tax rate of 45 cents this year and next year and 42 cents thereafter.

MAY SELL BEER AGAIN ON PENNSYLVANIA RY. IF STATES FAVOR IT

Philadelphia, Pa., March 28.—(AP)—Pennsylvania railroad officials said today they are considering the sale of beer in dining cars, if it can be done without financial loss.

It will be 21 years next July since beer and liquors were banished from the diners of that system.

The return of the former will depend on what action is taken in these thirteen states through which the railroad operates: New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinois, Kentucky, Missouri and the District of Columbia.

A bill introduced in the Pennsylvania legislature today would permit the sale of beer in railroad dining cars, the license fee to be $10 a year a car.

WANT CRUSADERS TO PUSH REPEAL DRIVE IN STATE

Horner May Ask Them to Direct Campaign.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Democratic leaders are considering a proposal to invite the Crusaders, militant anti-prohibitionists, to assume management of the campaign to elect a repeal slate of delegates to the Illinois convention which will vote on ratification of the amendment repealing the 18th amendment. The idea is to remove the issue of repeal from party politics. Gov. Henry Horner is to be asked to extend an invitation to the Crusaders to take charge.

As yet, the bill for a ratifying convention has not been passed at Springfield. When the session was opened the shout among the legislators was for quick action that would enable Illinois to be the first state to ratify repeal. But action has been delayed, largely on account of the sales tax battle and the complications over the selection of a mayor with full powers to fill the vacant chair of Mayor A. J. Cermak.

Favor Statewide Vote.

The repealists in general favor the election of delegates by statewide vote, inasmuch as the legislative and congressional districts in Illinois are 32 years old and display great discrepancies in population which set at naught the principle of equal representation. Some of the repealists yesterday began to talk in favor of electing by congressional districts, while the professional drys are for electing delegates by legislative districts, on the theory this would give opportunity for the dry rural vote to size up larger than if the delegates were elected at large.

A plan widely discussed yesterday was to provide for the election of 50 delegates in the state at large. The Democrats and Republicans each would have 25 places on the slate of repeal delegates, under this proposal. The two parties would pick their slates, then the Crusaders would take over the management of the campaign to elect the repeal slate.

Anti-Repeal Slate.

On the dry side, the Anti-Saloon league and other dry groups would put up an anti-repeal slate. The issue would then be clear cut on repeal, with the vote in the entire state taken as the measuring rod of sentiment.

Already 21 states have taken legislation action on conventions to act on the question of ratifying the repeal amendment, according to the latest tabulation put forth by the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. According to this survey, sent out from Washington by Jouett Shouse, head of the association, Michigan will be first to elect delegates, its date being April 3, while Wisconsin will elect delegates April 4. The Shouse survey gives the Michigan convention date as April 10 and the Wisconsin April 25.

Situation in Other States.

The situation as to states on voting and convention dates is given in Mr. Shouse's tabulation as follows:

State.	Elections.	Conventions
Alabama	July 11	Not set
Arizona	Not set	Not set
Arkansas	July 18	Aug. 1
Idaho	Not set	Not set
Indiana	Not set	Not set
Iowa	Not set	Not set
Michigan	April 3	April 10
Montana	Not set	Not set
Nevada	June 19	Sept. 5
New Mexico	Sept. 19	Nov. 2
New Jersey	May 15	June 5
Ohio	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
Oregon	July 21	Not set
Pennsylvania	Nov. 7	Dec. 5
South Dakota	Nov. 6, 1934	Jan. 17, 1935
Utah	Not set	Not set
Vermont	Not set	Not set
Washington	Aug. 29	Oct. 3
West Virginia	June 27	July 24
Wisconsin	April 4	April 25
Wyoming	May 18	May 25

"With three exceptions," says the Shouse survey, "all of these states listed have completed action on the repeal conventions, and it remains now only for the governors to fix the dates of the elections and of the conventions.

"Both houses of the legislature in Pennsylvania and Iowa have acted on identical convention bills, but minor amendments remain to be worked out. In Iowa, Gov. Herring, anticipating prompt agreement, has announced he will call the election in early summer. In Pennsylvania, Gov. Pinchot has not disclosed his attitude.

"Convention bills have been approved in one branch of the legislatures of California, Connecticut, Delaware, Missouri, Tennessee, and Texas.

"Bills are pending or in preparation in Colorado, Illinois, Maine, Maryland, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New York, North Carolina, Oklahoma, Rhode Island, and South Carolina. In North Dakota the legislature adjourned with the senate failing to act on a house bill; in Georgia the house failed to act on a senate bill prior to adjournment; in Kansas a senate bill for a convention was defeated in the house.

"A significant development in connection with the setup of these conventions has been the determination of a growing number of southern states to provide for truly representative statewide votes. Alabama and Arkansas provided for statewide referenda to bind delegates. One branch of both the Texas and Tennessee legislatures has approved bills for election of delegates by the state at large.

"In Wisconsin the delegates will be elected at large, slates of 15 delegates favoring and 15 opposing ratification of the repeal amendment being on the ballot."

HELEN KANE.
[Mitchell Photo.]

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Helen Kane, whose "Boop-boop-a-doop" style of singing set a vogue, appeared before Federal Judge Francis G. Caffey today in a suit brought against her to recover $50,000 in behalf of the creditors of a dress company declared bankrupt in August, 1930.

It is the contention of the Irving Trust company, bringing the suit as trustee in bankruptcy for the Bond Dress company, that checks drawn to Miss Kane shortly before the company's bankruptcy constituted preferential payments.

The dress company, it is contended, was operated by Jack Eisen and Murray J. Posner, the latter a friend of Miss Kane. She issued checks to Posner late in 1929 in the aggregate of $46,000, which were deposited to the account of the Bond Dress company as a contribution of Posner's to the capital of the business.

According to counsel for the plaintiffs, Miss Kane's contention is that she gave the money to Posner for the purchase of Liberty bonds. He said that subsequently $50,000 was paid to Miss Kane.

What is it about TURKISH

It is to Cigarettes what seasoning is to Food

THE soil and climate of Turkey and Greece seem to give to Turkish tobacco a spice and fragrance no other tobacco has.

And that's the unusual aromatic flavor we use to give seasoning to the mild tobaccos in Chesterfield . . . it makes for better taste.

Of course, we select the right kinds of Turkish leaf, for that's important too . . . and we're careful to see that just the right amount of each kind is blended and cross-blended with choice, ripe Domestic tobaccos.

So "Turkish" adds better taste to Chesterfield's flavor...and smokers seem to like it too...just as they like mildness. In fact, those two things together make a combination that's hard to beat and it's the real reason why smokers say, "They Satisfy."

ITALY FOILS PLOT TO KILL IL DUCE; ASSASSIN SEIZED

Admits Plan to Shoot the Dictator in Rome.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, March 28.—Another plot to assassinate Premier Mussolini was frustrated yesterday by detectives, police revealed today.

A man found loitering about the Plaza Venezia outside of Mussolini's office was seized and found to have a gun concealed in his clothes. Police said the man confessed that he planned to shoot Il Duce when the latter emerged from the building.

The prisoner told police that he had intended to carry out his plot on March 18 at the Ostia airport, where Mussolini greeted Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain upon the latter's arrival for a conference on European peace. Police believe that the man is mentally irresponsible.

SIX OTHER PLOTS FOILED.

Six previous plots to kill Mussolini have been frustrated. The first was in November, 1925, when a former Socialist deputy, Tito Zaniboni, was seized as he aimed a rifle through a window of a building facing a balcony on which Il Duce was soon to appear.

In April, 1926, Miss Violet Gibson, an Englishwoman who was later adjudged mentally irresponsible, fired a shot which nipped the tipe of Il Duce's nose. The Italian dictator had just left a session of the congress of surgeons.

Mussolini's next escape came in September, 1926. He was en route by automobile to his office in Chigi palace when Gino Lucetti, an Italian anarchist, threw a bomb at the car. It struck the side opposite Il Duce, dropped to the street, and exploded. Mussolini was uninjured, but several bystanders were wounded.

Four Serbians Executed.

A fourth assassination plot was frustrated in the summer of 1930. It did not come close to realization, but there was sufficient evidence for the Italian tribunal to execute four Jugo-Slavians for the conspiracy.

In February, 1931, Michele Schirru, a naturalized American citizen, admitted his intention to kill Mussolini. Schirru and accomplices, reputed anarchists, were seized as they loitered in the Piazza Colonna waiting for Il Duce to appear.

The last previous attempt was in last June when Angelo Sbardolletto was found loitering with a gun in his pocket in the Plaza Venezia. He later confessed he intended to kill Mussolini and was executed.

Mussolini professes to be a fatalist and to be convinced that he will not be killed by bullets or bombs, but will die in bed. He was wounded in 98 places by shrapnel in the war.

EFFORT TO END FORD STRIKE IN ENGLAND FAILS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—Personal efforts of Sir Percival Perry, chairman of the Ford Motor company of Great Britain, to settle the strike at the Ford plant at Dagenham failed today. Seven thousand men are striking in protest against wage cuts.

Sir Percival agreed to see a delegation of the strikers and the committee went inside the factory grounds, but was almost immediately recalled. It was voted to continue the strike at a massmeeting. Sir Percival made an appeal before the vote was taken, but was repulsed when he said that he refused to deal with labor union officials.

The plant was then ordered closed. High barricades have been erected across a private road leading to the main entrance of the plant.

BISHOP CANNON'S BROKER SERVES FIVE YEAR TERM

Fort Eustis, Va., March 28.—(AP)—Harry L. Goldhurst, the broker who handled Bishop James Cannon Jr.'s stock market account, was released from the federal prison camp here today at the expiration of his five year sentence for using the mails to defraud. He was understood to have left for New York.

Goldhurst, who was indicted in New York, in May, 1928, came to trial in October of the following year and on a plea of guilty was sentenced to serve five years in the penitentiary.

BRITISH AIR LINER FALLS IN FLAMES; FIFTEEN KILLED

Huge Plane Crashes to Earth in Belgium.

BY ANN SOMERS HOUSE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

(Picture on back page.)

BRUSSELS, Belgium, March 28.—A tri-motored British air liner caught fire in midair 40 minutes after it left Brussels this afternoon and crashed into a field near Essen, a short distance east of Dixmude. The fifteen occupants of the plane—twelve passengers and a crew of three—were killed.

Ten of the passengers were British, one was German, one was Belgian, and the crew was British. The plane was bound from Cologne to London.

An eyewitness of the disaster said he saw flames suddenly leap from the plane as it passed overhead. In the next instant it went into a nose dive and crashed into the field. Tremendous flames, fanned by a strong wind, burst forth, and it was impossible to get near the plane and pull the passengers out, the witness said.

Several bodies were found strewn in the field several hundred feet from the burning mass of metal and fuselage, indicating that a futile attempt had been made by some of the victims to jump to safety.

Recover Several Bodies.

The fire was still burning at 9 o'clock tonight, although rescuers were able to pull the charred body of the pilot and the remains of several others from the wreckage.

The Imperial Airways, owners of the machine, sent two planes to the spot as soon as news of the accident was received in Brussels. They returned several of the bodies to Brussels.

The liner was a powerful machine of 1,200 horsepower. How the fire started is not yet known.

Company Opens Investigation.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—The Imperial Airways tonight said the cause of the crash of their air liner, City of Liverpool, was as yet unknown.

Today's accident was the most serious in the history of British civil aviation. It recalled the crash on Christmas eve, 1924, at Croydon airport, when eight passengers were killed.

Capt. Leleu, pilot of the City of Liverpool, had been flying 17 years. He had acted as pilot for King Albert and Queen Elizabeth of Belgium, Princess Ingrid of Sweden, Prince Leopold of Belgium and King Feisal of Iraq.

BRITAIN DELAYS ITS SIGNATURE OF ANTI-DRUG PACT

LONDON, March 28.—(AP)—Some delay in the British signature to the league of nations drug convention has developed, presumably through efforts of the colonial and dominions office to secure legislation for its enforcement.

In the house of commons corridors it was stated tonight that there was no doubt of Britain's intention to ratify.

[The drug convention was concluded on July 13, 1931, by a conference at Geneva which deliberated six weeks. It would set up an office for international supervision of narcotics; all states would announce their medical and scientific needs, and manufacture would be restricted to the total required. Ratification of the convention is required by April 13.]

ITALY, BRITAIN IN 'PLOT,' FRENCH DEPUTY CHARGES

Assails Mussolini's Plan for "Peace Club."

PARIS, March 28.—(AP)—Italy's proposed four power "peace club" was attacked in the chamber of deputies today by Henry Franklin-Bouillon as an "abominable collusion between Mr. MacDonald and Signor Mussolini."

The assault on the plan by the opposition to the government was met by Premier Daladier, who was enthusiastically cheered by the deputies. Defending both Prime Minister MacDonald of Great Britain and the Italian premier, Daladier refused to discuss the peace plan they worked out in their recent Rome conference, but promised parliament that France would take no step in the matter without its knowledge.

Questioning Is Postponed.

The chamber, by a vote of 369 to 212, postponed interpellations made to the foreign affairs committee, particularly concerning the Mussolini plan.

"France fears no menace on any frontier," the premier said in the course of his defense.

Foreign Minister Paul-Boncour agreed that there was no present cause for alarm.

Assails Debt Default.

Former Senator Gabriel Tauffieb said in a speech today that France lost four billion francs [$160,000,000] in trade with the United States because she failed to make the $19,261,432 war debt interest payment due last December. He spoke at a meeting of businessmen and others called to further the campaign for making the payment.

The heavy losers, Tauffieb said, were steamship lines, hotels, and business houses hit by an American boycott of French products. He recently returned from the United States.

TRACE NEW CLEW TO REVOLVER IN MOVIE KILLING

O'Hara Held as Slayer; Maloy Free on Bond.

members of the union and the six men expelled from the union with Oser when they revolted against Maloy's domination of the organization and started court action for an accounting of funds. The services were held in the afternoon in the chapel at 3834 Irving Park boulevard.

The Rev. Christian Knudten of St. Simon's Evangelical Lutheran church, who conducted the rites, said that the whole city sympathized with the family of Oser and that he hoped religious forces would help to see that the authorities were unhampered in investigating the case. Burial was in Oak Ridge cemetery.

Case Before Three Judges.

The Oser slaying occupied the attention of three judges during the day and kept Assistant State's Attorney Charles S. Dougherty, who is in charge of the investigation, moving from court to court.

The hearings began in the morning. Maloy had spent the night in a cell because of the police belief that he was present at the shooting of Oser. No sooner had the Criminal court convened than a writ of habeas corpus was sought to gain his release. Chief Justice John Prystalski ordered a hearing on the petition and directed that Maloy be produced in his court at 4:30 o'clock.

Meanwhile there was a hearing scheduled on a writ for O'Hara, who had been held since Friday but not charged with any crime. Judge Prystalski asked the state's intentions. Prosecutor Dougherty first asked for a continuance and then agreed to place a charge against O'Hara before noon.

"What charge?" asked Attorney John Cashen, who represented O'Hara.

"Murder," replied Dougherty.

Judge Refuses Bail Hearing.

Cashen announced he would ask a hearing to fix bail in the event that such a charge was made. Judge Prystalski declined to hear such a request, telling Cashen to make his application in the Municipal court if he cared to do so.

The murder warrant against O'Hara was issued by Municipal Judge Matthew Hartigan in the Felony court.

Within a short time Cashen and Attorney Michael Ahern, representing Maloy, went before Judge Hartigan and asked that the warrant be quashed on the ground the court had not heard evidence before granting it. The judge said that he regarded Mr. Dougherty as an officer of his court and one whose word could be depended on, but that if Ahern and Cashen insisted he would hold another hearing at 2 o'clock.

Press Suit for Accounting.

In the civil courts Attorneys Charles Lounsbury and Harry S. Ditchburne sought immediate action on the petition filed by Oser and his six fellow insurgents asking the appointment of a receiver for the union's funds and an accounting of what Maloy had spent. The two attorneys appeared before Superior Judge William J. Lindsay, in whose court the petition is pending.

The petition of the seven insurgents set forth affidavits that Maloy had threatened their lives. There was a specific affidavit made by Oser that Maloy had threatened to shoot him "between the eyes."

In addition to their other requests the petitioners were asking a temporary injunction to restrain Maloy from harming them. Lounsbury and Ditchburne said. The lawyers explained that this was why they were seeking immediate action. Judge Lindsay said he would hear the case next week.

Hearing Before Judge Hartigan.

Then in the hearing at 2 o'clock before Judge Hartigan, Attorney Ahern argued for more than an hour, picturing Maloy and O'Hara as capable officers of the union who were admired by all the members.

Judge Hartigan said there was only one question before him and that was whether there was probable cause to believe that O'Hara was guilty of murder. He found there was such probable cause and upheld his issuance of the murder warrant.

On the question of bail Judge Hartigan refused to hear Attorneys Ahern and Cashen. He said he would listen to them after the inquest into the Oser slaying is held on Saturday.

The next session was on the Maloy writ in Judge Prystalski's court at 4:30 o'clock. Prosecutor Dougherty said he had not had opportunity to complete his investigation regarding Maloy and was seeking more time.

Upon Ahern's statement that Maloy would appear whenever he was wanted Judge Prystalski said he would continue the hearing on the writ of habeas corpus, keeping Maloy within his jurisdiction, but would admit him to bail of $8,000. The $5,000 was produced and Maloy was released.

It was learned that the federal government has been investigating Maloy's income with reference to income tax payments and is ready to present evidence as soon as authorization comes from Washington.

SEEKS $200,000 FROM JAMES STILLMAN AND FIGHTS POSTING BOND

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice James C. Cropseyz today reserved decision on the application of Luc Rochefort, who is suing James A. Stillman for $200,000, charging alienation of his wife's affections. Rochefort seeks to have vacated an order to post a $500 bond to guarantee his appearance at the trial of the suit. Stillman, in obtaining the order last week, alleged that Rochefort is an alien, residing in Montreal. Through his counsel today, Rochefort argued that he has lived in Long Island City for three years and has a business office in New York City.

SALES TAX NEAR, LOOP SHOPPING BREAKS RECORD

State St. to Levy Cent on Nickel Buys.

State street experienced a shopping rush Monday and yesterday which merchants ascribed to the approach of the 3 per cent sales tax, effective April 1. Monday was the best selling day in several weeks, the best Monday of this year and better than Monday a year ago. The rush was greater yesterday, the merchants said.

The shoppers were particularly eager to make purchases of furniture and other household articles needed for the spring before the imposition of the sales tax, according to D. F. Kelly, president of the Fair.

While chain store organizations were still working on plans to collect the tax in the case of sales where 3 per cent would be less than one cent, the State street sales tax committee planned to collect 1 cent on sales up to 33 cents, 2 cents on sales up to 66 cents, and 3 cents on sales up to $1. The merchants said, however, that all receipts realized in this manner would be turned over to the state for the Emergency Relief fund, the purpose of the sales tax.

State Street Rejects Stamps.

The State street merchants declared that the use of mill stamps or tokens would constitute a nuisance and that business conditions would not enable them to absorb the tax on sales of 33 cents and less by charging it to overhead. They said the public should be willing to share the burden which the collection of the tax will place upon the merchants and not object to paying a fourth or a half a cent too much when it is destined for the relief fund.

"Inasmuch as there are no fractional coins in our monetary system," said L. Greenebaum, treasurer of Mandel Brothers, "there is no other way that the seller can pass this tax on to the consumer except in fractional stamps. Who is going to devise these stamps and how are they going to be controlled so they will be interchangeable? A great deal of thought has been given to the matter in order to work out a fair and equitable plan and nothing yet offered has been an improvement upon the suggestion of 1 cent up to 33 cents, 2 cents up to 66 cents, and 3 cents up to $1.

Emphasize Purpose of Tax.

"The public should realize that all funds collected are for the Emergency Relief fund and that men and women willing to work who cannot find employment must be fed and clothed. It is everybody's burden and those who are earning money must realize that the tax they pay goes to a worthy cause."

Five and ten cent store operators were still awaiting instructions from headquarters in New York, but some drug and cigar stores were working on a plan whereby less than 3 per cent would be collected if the exact tax includes a fraction of a cent. The fraction of the cent would be paid by the store and charged to the cost of doing business. The stores may not advertise that the tax is not an element in the fixing of the price, but there is nothing in the law to prevent a merchant from cutting the price of a package of chewing gum to 4 cents, 8½ mills, so that in paying a nickel the customer pays the tax as well as the purchase price.

CHICAGO MAYOR BILL IS BLOCKED BY UNCAST VOTE

50 House Members Fail to Ballot.

house bill there is still the opportunity to corral votes for the identical senate bill and put it over.

When the Adamowski bill was called in the house, the Republicans asked for a recess and went into a conference on the measure presided over by Schnackenberg, who at its conclusion declared the proceedings were "secret" and refused to discuss them.

However, it was learned that a motion had been carried that the Republicans either vote against the bill or refuse to vote upon it. This was thought to account for a large part of the "ducking" of votes charged later by the Democrats.

Adamowski carried on the battle for his bill almost single handed against several opponents, including two members of his own party, Schaefer O'Neill of Alton and Howard Doyle of Decatur.

O'Neill's attack was that the Adamowski bill would deprive the people of Chicago of the opportunity to select their own mayor. Roland V. Libonati [Rep., Chicago] followed him with an assertion that the measure would be the first step toward destroying the primary act.

Denies Corr to Be Displaced.

Richard J. Lyons [Rep., Mundelein] demanded to be informed whether Acting Mayor Corr's resignation is not already in the hands of "the powers that be" and Adamowski denied any knowledge on the subject, declaring the assertion "ridiculous"; but a few moments later William E. King [Rep., Chicago] predicted if the pending bill were passed Corr's resignation would follow inside of thirty days.

On the roll call many members explained their votes. Sol Handy of Marshall said that on the grounds of economy alone—the saving of the costs of a primary and election—he was for the bill. Robert M. Woodward [Rep., Chicago] protested against the attempted dictation of the Cook county Republican committee.

Seeing the measure defeated before the roll call was completed, Schnackenberg moved to send the bill back to second reading for amendment. Speaker Roe ruled that his motion was out of order during roll call and suggested that he make it later. But when the roll was finished Schnackenberg was caught napping and Adamowski's motion to postpone further consideration was adopted by viva voce vote before Schnackenberg was on his feet. He protested vigorously, but ineffectively.

The roll call follows:

CHARGES RADIO PRIEST PLAYED STOCK MARKET

Detroit Paper Says He Lost $13,000 in Wall Street.

Detroit, Mich., March 28.—[Special.]—Investigation of the affairs of the First National Bank of Detroit and the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, both closed, took a new turn tonight.

FATHER COUGHLIN.

The Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, priest, who has made general charges of mismanagement, in radio talks, against the officers and directors of the two banks, appeared in the new rôle of a man accused of speculating in the stock market.

This attack is made in the Detroit Free Press, published by E. D. Stair.

Father Coughlin, at his home in Royal Oak, denied the paper's story and said the reference was simply to trust funds.

Mr. Stair is a member of the governing board of the Detroit Bankers' company, which controlled the First National bank and several other banks through stock ownership and he has led the move to induce the government to help rehabilitate the two closed banks instead of opening a new bank.

Ready to Support New Bank.

Sources other than The Free Press, indicated that opposition to the plan of having the new National Bank of Detroit absorb the more liquid assets of the two closed institutions was dying out and that both officials and depositors were ready to support the new 100 per cent liquid institution.

In its issue tomorrow morning the Free Press will say that Father Coughlin paid $30,000 for one purchase of stock in Wall street and that he lost $13,955 in another speculative venture of the same kind in "the sort of gambling that has been bitterly denounced by the priest in his radio addresses."

A further development was the furnishing of information to Prosecutor Harry S. Toy by Father Coughlin to sustain the priest's charges against the banks. The prosecutor said that while his disclosures were not "in themselves sufficient to institute criminal proceedings," they were the first definite statements on which to base a line of inquiry.

Mr. Toy added that, if necessary, to get at the affairs of the Detroit Bankers' company and the Detroit Guardian group, the latter a holding company for the Guardian National Bank of Commerce, he would ask the government for permission to examine the books of the closed banks.

Charges Stock Speculation.

In connection with its attack on Father Coughlin the Free Press declares that the radio priest controlled three accounts in one branch of the Guardian National Bank of Commerce. One was in the name of C. E. Coughlin, one in the name of the League of the Little Flower, and the third was listed for St. Theresa's parish of the Child Jesus. Photostatic copies of his daily bank balance and of the priest's account at a brokerage house are displayed by the newspaper.

The Free Press continues with the following account of Father Coughlin's alleged purchase of stocks:

"On Feb. 27, 1929, the account of the priest shows, the bank bought for him 500 shares of stock in the Kelsey-Hayes Wheel corporation, which was then selling for $60 a share. The stock was quoted this week at 92 a share.

Says He Paid $30,110.

"On that day Father Coughlin transferred from the League of the Little Flower account $9,216; drew $4,938 from his personal account; cashed a check on another bank for $6,000, and borrowed $10,537 on a note from the Guardian National, then known as the National Bank of Commerce. Supplementing this money with a sum from his pocket the priest was able to pay $30,110 for his 500 shares of Kelsey-Hayes. This includes the broker's commission."

It was stated by the newspaper that Father Coughlin sold 788 shares of Kelsey-Hayes in June, 1930. The loss on 500 shares was $13,955, it was related.

TAX CUT TANGLE UP TO KERNER AND STATE BOARD

Brummel, Nixon, Jacobs to Accept Decision.

The state tax commission and Attorney General Kerner are to pass on the proposal of the board of tax appeals to make a 15 per cent cut in the 1931 building assessments on Cook county homes and small flat buildings. This was announced yesterday following a conference of the appeal board members, Fred W. Brummel and George F. Nixon, County Assessor J. L. Jacobs, and other county officials with members of the tax commission. Assessor Jacobs has refused to heed the 15 per cent cut order on the ground that it is illegal.

"Both parties to the controversy have agreed to abide by the decision of the commission," it was announced on behalf of the tax commission, whose members are Scott W. Lucas, Dr. Simeon E. Leland of the University of Chicago, and Barnett Hodes.

Kerner to Rule on Legal Points.

It was learned, however, that this agreement was made with the proviso that the legal questions involved are to be submitted to Attorney General Kerner for his ruling. County Attorney Hayden N. Bell has already held that the order is illegal, because the law gives the appeals board power only to reduce assessments on individual complaints, and not to enter blanket orders for adjustment of assessments. The appeals board has procured opinions from private attorneys upholding its stand.

Testimony and arguments before the commission are not expected to be finished before tomorrow. Assessor Jacobs spent yesterday afternoon stating his position in the case.

Fred W. Sargent, chairman of the citizens committee on public expenditures, favored the appeal board's tax reduction order last evening in a speech at the installation of officers of the Union League club.

"The market for these homes had already largely vanished by April 1, 1931," said Mr. Sargent. "Adjustments as to other classes of property called for an equalization as to the great mass of our home owners who are entitled to every consideration and protection that a just government can give them."

Rules for "Thrift" Payment Plan.

Rules for his "thrift plan" of tax collections, under which taxpayers may pay the second installment of their 1931 real estate taxes in advance in installments as low as $5 a week, were announced yesterday by County Treasurer McDonough. The first payments will be accepted on April 1.

Payments will be accepted up to Sept. 1, the present penalty date on the installment as tentatively fixed by the treasurer. No tax warrants may be used for the installment payments. No interest will be paid. The payments will not be subject to refunds, and in cases where property is transferred during the payment period, payments already made will still apply to the tax bill. Precautions have been taken to guard both the taxpayers and the treasurer's office against error or fraud in handling the payments.

Offers New Warrant Scheme.

Frank Sobotka, an employé of the treasurer, yesterday suggested a new plan for the issue of tax anticipation warrants, under which individual governments, instead of issuing their own warrants, would deposit them with the county treasurer, who would sell blanket warrants upon the levies of all the participating taxing bodies.

These warrants, Mr. Sobotka pointed out, would apply to a far larger percentage of the bill when used for tax payments than is now possible where taxpayers buy warrants of various taxing bodies and present them in payment of their bills. Under the latter circumstances, a warrant is acceptable for only that portion of the tax bill which goes to the government which issued the warrant.

SENATE LIKELY TO DELAY ACTION ON WORLD COURT

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—At its regular meeting tomorrow the senate foreign relations committee is expected to take up and report back to the senate calendar the resolution providing for American adherence to the world court. Senator Joe T. Robinson of Arkansas, senate majority leader, announced that the protocol would be brought out in order that it might be taken up when the occasion permitted. It is considered doubtful, however, that any serious attempt to adopt the resolution will be made during the special session.

THERE MAY BE POISON IN YOUR BOWELS!

STEP out tomorrow morning with the fresh buoyancy and briskness that comes from a clean intestinal tract. Syrup Pepsin—a doctor's prescription for the bowels—will help you do this. This compound of fresh laxative herbs, pure pepsin and other pure ingredients will clean you out thoroughly—without griping, sickening or discomfort.

Poisons absorbed into the system from souring waste in the bowels, couse that dull, headachy, sluggish, bilious condition; coat the tongue; foul the breath; sap energy, strength and nerve-force. A little of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will clear up trouble like that, gently, harmlessly, in a hurry. The difference it will make in your feelings over night will prove its merit to you.

Dr. Caldwell studied bowel troubles for forty-seven years. This long experience enabled him to make his prescription just what men, women, old people and children need to make their bowels help themselves. Its natural, mild, thorough action and its pleasant taste commend it to everyone. That's why "Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin," as it is called, is the most popular laxative drugstores sell.

HUNTER SHOOTS LOOT FROM CASHIER'S HAND DURING ROBBERS' RAID.

Siloam Springs, Ark., March 28.—(AP)—A big game hunter thwarted a robbery attempt on the Bratt State bank here today by picking up a rifle and shooting most of the loot out of the hands of the cashier, whom three bandits forced to accompany them after holding up the bank.

The bag was torn from the hands of Cashier Shelby Ford. He was shoved into the bandit automobile by the trio who did not attempt to recover the money they had forced him to carry. He was released later.

John Haney, a sportsman, who is visiting at this resort, was the man who saved the money by his prowess with a rifle.

He heard the uproar when the bandits ran from the bank and exchanged shots with two officers. He picked up his gun, laid it across the sill of a window in his apartment and took careful aim at the money sack in Ford's hands.

He pressed the trigger and scored a perfect hit. The money flew from the cashier's hands.

"I didn't fire again," Haney said, "for fear of hitting a bystander. I could have killed them easily, but I preferred to try to recover the loot which I figured was in the sack."

TWO WOMEN DIE IN AUTO MISHAPS; TOLL NOW IS 193

Two women were killed in separate automobile accidents last night, one in Riverside and the other on the north side.

Mrs. William Q. Glass of 148 Riverside boulevard, Riverside, wife of a paper jobber at 330 South Wells street, was fatally injured at Ogden avenue and Miller road, Riverside. The driver was Vincent J. Randa, 61st avenue and Pershing road, Downers Grove.

Mrs. Anna Reinberg, 65 years old, 3828 Southport avenue, was run down at Grace street and Southport avenue by a car driven by Carl S. Haenisch, 3751 Greenview avenue. She died in American hospital.

These deaths increased the Cook county toll to 193 for the year.

The victim of a crash involving two automobiles and a truck in Waukegan road, Lake Forest, early yesterday was identified as John [Lefty] Nowak, 30 years old, an alleged beer runner. In Nowak's car was found a smashed barrel of beer.

ROPER PROPOSAL FOR RAIL MERGER READY SATURDAY

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Secretary of Commerce Daniel C. Roper announced today that on Saturday he will submit to the President a detailed report giving the result of his investigation of several plans for reviving the railroad industry. He declined to discuss details of his report, but he is expected to recommend a consolidation program under which wasteful competition between the railroads will be eliminated.

Rob Exchange of $682; Alarm Saves Thousands

CRIMINAL COURT.

Elija Baker, arson, sentenced to 1 to 20 years in the penitentiary by Judge Philip L. Sullivan.

Four bandits, one armed with a sawed-off shotgun, took $682 yesterday in a holdup of the Chicago Check and Currency exchange, 3444 Lawrence avenue, after threatening Miss Blanche Behr and Francis Manasse, employés, with death if they made any disturbance and forcing them to lie down on the floor. An automatic burglar alarm went off and frightened the robbers away before they had a chance to gain entry to the safe, which contained several thousand dollars.

1,500 TEACHERS PARADE IN LOOP TO DEMAND PAY

Storm Mayor's Office and Boo as Corr Speaks.

Bearing signs which read, "Cash for the Idle—No Cash for Workers—Why Discriminate against Teachers?", 1,500 teachers paraded into the loop yesterday. As many of them as could do so crowded into the office of Acting Mayor Corr on the fifth floor of the city hall, while those outside, to the tune of "Bring Back My Bonnie," chorused "Bring Back My Paycheck."

The acting mayor got upon a chair to address the crowd. He was interrupted frequently.

Up to Legislature, Corr Says.

"I cannot do the impossible," he told the throng. "I know you have been patient, but the legislature must act before the city can sell any tax warrants.

"Purchasers of tax warrants won't recognize my signature now without the legislation now before the legislators."

As Acting Mayor Corr continued his remarks the interruptions became more violent. Finally he shrugged his shoulders, stepped down from his chair, and walked into his inner office. Some of the teachers booed as he did so.

The teachers went from the city hall to the Hotel Morrison with the intention of visiting the headquarters of the Democratic county committee there. Policemen halted them on the sidewalk and persuaded them to send a committee to the headquarters. The committee found no one there but stenographers and clerks.

The next point on the march was the First National bank. There, after the crowd had invaded the building, it was stopped by an iron gate which shuts off access to the main banking floor after banking hours. The teachers yelled for Melvin A. Traylor, president of the bank, and jeered a bank policeman who told them that Mr. Traylor was not in the building.

From the bank the march proceeded to the board of education offices. The crowd jammed the lobby of the Builders' building, where the offices are situated, only to learn that they had been closed for the day. Leaders urged all the teachers to attend the board meeting today.

Friends of the teachers advised that they center their main efforts upon the general assembly.

Plan Appeal to Dewey.

The leaders said they would send a delegation to interview Charles S. Dewey, chairman of the committee which is selling tax warrants so that public pay rolls may be met. Mr. Dewey has already said that he can sell no warrants until the legislature validates Acting Mayor Corr's election.

Superintendent of Schools Bogan called a conference of leaders of teachers' organizations last week, at which he urged them to coördinate and control the activities of teachers in seeking their back pay. Unseemly or disorderly demonstrations, he pointed out, might do more harm than good to their cause.

SENATE PASSES FOREST BILL AND STATE AID RIDER

Permits Further Relief Loans to Illinois.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.] — The Roosevelt reforestation bill passed the senate today carrying as its most immediately important feature an emergency rider removing all present restrictions on the amount of relief money which states may borrow from the Reconstruction Finance corporation.

JOSEPH ROBINSON. [Acme Photo.]

The rider offered as an amendment by Senator Joseph T. Robinson [Dem., Ark.], will make it possible for Illinois and other states which have exhausted their quota of R. F. C. relief borrowing to secure further loans from the 69 millions left in the corporation's 300 million dollar direct relief fund. Under present law no state could obtain more than 15 per cent of the total fund or approximately 45 million dollars.

Goes to House Next.

The reforestation bill, granting President Roosevelt full authority to embark on a huge development of national forests and public lands with a view of creating employment, goes to the house, where it is to be taken up tomorrow. Majority Floor Leader Joseph W. Byrns [Dem., Tenn.] believed that the bill will pass the lower body in one day, although he predicted that the measure will meet more opposition in the house than in the senate.

Meanwhile the senate banking committee agreed to report favorably the so-called Wagner-Costigan-La Follette relief bill creating a new 500 million dollar fund for direct advances to states and setting up a new federal relief administrator to handle the advances. Senator Robinson stated that he expected to call this measure up in the senate tomorrow, unless some controversy regarding technical details arises to hold it up.

Senate approval of the reforestation bill followed the adoption of an amendment by Senatof Arthur H. Vandenberg [Rep., Mich.] prohibiting the diversion of rivers and harbors maintenance appropriations to the President's reforestation program.

Financed from Existing Funds.

The Roosevelt plan, under the existing terms of the bill, is to be financed with appropriations already made for public works projects which have not yet been commenced or which are not expected to be started within 90 days. Several senators protested that this provision, granting the President power to make virtually any use he sees fit of these unexpended funds, might operate to halt works on rivers and harbors, flood control and highway projects throughout the country which have already been started.

Despite assurances from Senator David I. Walsh [Dem., Mass.], in charge of the bill, that the President does not contemplate the use of any funds allocated to works now in progress, Senator Vandenberg insisted on the insertion of his amendment.

He explained it would safeguard the so-called "maintenance" appropriatio with which rivers and harbors work now in progress is carried on.

Carries Her Own Luggage

Roosevelt Will Visit Camp Hoover Built on Rapidan

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt told Senator Byrd of Virginia today that he probably would visit the Rapidan camp which Mr. Hoover built and later gave to the government as a summer White House. He said he had no plans for a summer vacation, but during the hot months promised to inspect the camp in Virginia and probably spend a few days there.

VICKS VORATONE ANTISEPTIC

FARM BILL DUE IN SENATE SOON; HEARINGS END

Attacked and Defended at Final Session.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—[Special.]—A farm bill aimed at raising the prices of agricultural commodities is to come from the senate agricultural committee within a few days.

Whether the measure resembles the Roosevelt farm bill passed by the house depends on the attitude of the President and his willingness to bring into line senators—including Committee Chairman Ellison D. Smith [Dem., S. C.]—far from from enthusiastic over the administration proposal to make the secretary of agriculture a virtual dictator over farm prices, production and distribution.

W. W. Woods Raises Opposition.

Hearings before the senate committee closed late today, with many members of the committee convinced that a bill to provide outright price fixing for the domestically consumed portion of basic crops would be a more workable measure than that proposed by the administration.

A parade of witnesses for and against the bill passed before the committee.

Headliners of the opposition were W. W. Woods, president of the Institute of American Meat Packers of Chicago, and Representative Michael J. Hart [Dem., Mich.].

Mr. Woods was willing to admit that higher prices would benefit the farmer and the country, but only if the farmer received them on the amount of produce he now sells. He argued that, on the contrary, artificially increased prices would mean lowered consumption and a decrease of the farmer's aggregate income.

Sees Public Balk at Increase.

If a maximum processing tax were levied under the administration bill, Mr. Woods testified, it would add 790 million dollars or 36 per cent to the country's annual retail meat bill. And he did not believe that the public would stand the increase; nor could handlers of a perishable product such as meat do other than sell for what the public was willing to pay. He predicted that the bill, if enacted into law, would destroy the daily cash market which now stands ready to receive any amount the live stock raiser ships.

Mr. Hart said he was a farmer with a $40,000 mortgage, but he wanted to work out of it himself.

"If we have any more nostrums we'll be sunk," he said. "I raise nearly everything included in this bill and I'd like it all excluded."

He, too, though, had a plan, a variation of the debenture plan by which export certificates would be validated when coupled with an import certificate in the same amount.

ROOSEVELT ASKS MACDONALD TO PAY VISIT TO U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28. — Norman Davis, American ambassador-at-large, who will arrive here tomorrow night, is reported to be carrying an invitation from President Roosevelt to Prime Minister MacDonald to go to Washington at an early date and discuss not only war debts but the world economic conference and other questions in which the United States and Great Britain are jointly interested.

Davis, who is accompanied by Allen W. Dulles of the American state department, expects to spend some time in London now that the disarmament conference at Geneva has adjourned over the Easter holidays.

So far no definite appointment has been made, but it is expected that Davis will see MacDonald Thursday.

LIGHT RATES REDUCED.

A CLEAR COMPLEXION

Ruddy cheeks — sparkling eyes — most women can have. Dr. F. M. Edwards for 20 years treated scores of women for liver and bowel ailments. During these years he gave his patients a substitute for calomel made of a few well-known vegetable ingredients, naming them Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets. Know them by their olive color.

These tablets are wonder-workers on the liver and bowels, causing a normal action, carrying off the waste and poisonous matter in one's system.

If you have a pale face, sallow look, dull eyes, pimples, coated tongue, headaches, a listless, no-good feeling, all out of sorts, inactive bowels, take one of Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets nightly for a time and note the pleasing results.

Thousands of women and men take Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets—now and then—to keep fit. 15c, 30c and 60c.

*FULL-SIZED *FULL-POWERED KELVINATOR

installed in your home for $98

THIS is not a new "cheap" model brought out to meet a price. Instead, it is a standard model—full-sized, full-powered—selected from our regular 1933 line!

There has been no compromise—on quality—on performance—on size or power. It has more than four cubic feet of food storage space. It has the full-sized, standard Kelvinator compressor — so powerful that it operates only about a third of the time and actually uses less current than compressors of a third its capacity, running all the time. This means less wear, greater economy, and much longer life. No compromise here.

The cabinet is large, roomy, beautifully designed. It is a heavy, one-piece steel exterior over a rugged steel frame. It has 2½ inches of Kelvatex insulation all around — 2½ inches of waterproofed, odorless, indestructible insulation to keep the cold in and the heat out. No compromise here.

There is a Temperature Selector with 8 freezing speeds and the exclusive Kelvinator 3-Zone Cold which supplies three distinct types of refrigeration in the one cabinet. And there are many other features which give this model greater values and utility. No compromise here.

The price of $98.00 is in effect only until material costs increase. When material prices do go up, the price of this model will be increased. Kelvinator will not skimp on quality—on performance—will not substitute new and untried models or parts just to meet a price. Your satisfaction through the years means too much to us to have you take any such chance.

Let us show you this model—point by point—and we know you will agree that it is the greatest value in electric refrigeration today. Easy terms—small down payment. Come in soon and take advantage of the PRESENT LOW PRICE!

"The newspaper is an institution developed by modern civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

EIGHTY MILLION DOLLARS SHY.

If the taxpayers of Cook county do as well by their 1931 tax bills, now in collection, as they did by the taxes which fell due a year ago, the local governments will have a deficit for the year of $80,766,000.

(In all probability the deficit this year will be larger. George Hagenauer, auditor for the county treasurer, is authority for the statement that on March 15 this year, the penalty date, only 47 per cent of the first installment of the 1931 taxes had been paid, whereas a year ago on the penalty date 48 per cent of the full amount had been collected.)

Eighty million dollars is a significant figure in the public finances of this community. It is the amount, as has just been shown, of the deficit of the local governments. It is also the amount of the contribution of this community in income taxes to the United States government. (The figure for the year ending June 30, 1932, was $80,849,000.) It is also the amount roughly estimated to be the sum required for relief purposes in the county this year.

No one attempting to study the problems of local government in this community or the larger problem of the depression can afford to overlook these three figures. They show:

1. Why the teachers and other public servants are unpaid.
2. Why Chicago has had to turn to the federal government to find the money for poor relief.
3. The impossibility of continuing for much longer the present scale of expenditure for the national and the local governments and for relief.

The federal tax collector comes into Chicago with a mandate to exact 80 million dollars. He gets it, and when the 80 million is paid by Chicago there is that much less with which to pay the costs of local government, or, alternatively, to pay the costs of poor relief.

It is not true, of course, that the people who pay income taxes are precisely the same people who pay local taxes, but by and large they are the same; and in any event the money which the federal government takes out of the economic current in Chicago deprives local taxpayers of earnings and profits with which local taxes and relief bills must be paid, if at all.

The ruthless spoliation of Chicago by the federal government thus helps to bankrupt our local governments and at the same time forces the spokesmen for this community to go on bended knees to Washington to beg the directors of the R. F. C. to lend us back precisely the sum of money taken from us.

The only way this degrading and, indeed, impossible situation can be corrected is by a general recognition of the fact that the money with which to maintain government at its present scale and relief at its present scale does not exist. No kind or taxation and no kind of borrowing can produce it for more than a short time.

What the situation calls for is a retrenchment in federal expenditure which will result in a substantial decrease in the federal tax rates. With that accomplished, and accompanied by an equally drastic retrenchment in the expenses of local government, enough money may be discovered at home to take care of our needy. No one who has studied the figures, however, is likely to conclude that the present standard of poor relief can be maintained even under those circumstances.

Some progress has been made on the reduction of the costs of local government, though the work is far from complete. What the tax program or the federal administration may be remains to be seen. If the political forces which have been operative in this country continue in control the mendicant states will fight to the end to retain the right to tax the solvent states to build Boulder dam and kindred extravagances. If the senators and representatives of the rotten borough states continue to extort money from us in this way for the purpose of buying the votes of their constituents we cannot support our needy and our local governments will fall deeper and deeper into debt.

COOK COUNTY SEATS IN CONGRESS.

A majority of the Illinois delegation in the national house of representatives has decided, it is reported, to oppose the congressional reapportionment bill which would give Chicago, or Cook county, fourteen seats. Representative Fred A. Britten is one of the minority insisting upon the legal representation and opposing the inequitable restriction to twelve.

This is an old fight and the urban communities have had the worst of it to date. The theory that political disability attaches to the metropolitan area has prevailed both as to the Cook county representation in the state assembly and in the national congress. It is a theory which cannot be defended with any justice. The application of it promotes an antagonism between city and country, and results in discriminatory legislation. Chicago is entitled to fourteen congressmen and any settlement which deprives the people of their just vote is a cheat and a fraud. It is a denial of elementary political rights and a violation of the first principle of representative democratic government. It has made trouble and it will continue to do so. Such a feudal distinction between citizens of a city and citizens living in the country cannot endure in these days.

THE BREWERS AND APRIL 7.

Producers and retailers of beer who are preparing for one minute after twelve, April 7, might do very well to give their plans some further consideration. They would be better advised to resume business in an ordinary way. The brewers were not conspicuous before prohibition for exhibitions of political wisdom. They and the distillers, the owners of property invested in the trade in alcoholic beverages, and the retailers generally conducted themselves in such a fashion as to persuade the people that the whole traffic must be destroyed. Resentment took the place of reason and the country did a foolish thing.

Now it is to be seen if upon restoration of saner methods the business involved has learned any lessons. The sight of trucks backed up at the brewery loading stations, waiting for the release signal at the stroke of twelve, will be an indication of folly prevailing where common sense should be found. Business as usual should be the maxim of the persons who will be permitted to satisfy the American taste for a wholesome malt beverage. It will not be possible to blame the consumers of the beverage if they make a holiday to celebrate the resumption of their adult privilege to drink beer if they want to, but the circumstances which throw the release of the beverage into the midnight hours are unfortunate and the celebration faces the possibility of being indecorous. A very small minority of the people can make it so, to the embarrassment of the majority who cannot sympathize with any such proceedings.

This event is truly one of America coming of age again and it should not be given any of the aspects of juvenile irresponsibility. The control of the situation is entirely in the hands of the brewers. They can close their places of business at the usual hour April 6 and open them at the usual hour April 7. If they do so they will strengthen the conviction that the United States can be given its privileges again without any childish exhibition to prove, or seem to prove, that it is an infant and unqualified to have such privileges. If the brewers do not see that this is the sensible thing to do it is a reflection upon their good judgment.

STRONG ARM INTERNATIONALISTS.

Spanish republicans are gunning for the promoters of Fascism, who have adopted the blue shirt as the Spanish equivalent of the Italian black. The battle cry of freedom seems to have been "Death to Mussolini! Death to Hitler!" A new spirit of international coöperation, directly traceable in its present form to the Moscow Reds, is one of the most disturbing elements of the present brotherhood of Europe. The Moscow doctrine that all men must be as the sovietized Russians are has been adopted as the basis of action by other partisans who do not believe that anybody, even the Russians, should be as the Russians are. It is a period of overviolent disagreement as to where the desirable elements of human good are to be found, but not much disagreement as to the method of imposing ideas upon people.

It never, however, has seemed more desirable that nations should try to contain their experiments within their own boundaries and permit the other fellow to go his way in his own fashion. The international coöperation movement in the common brotherhood produces more fratricidal strife than is good for the common welfare. Americans have had to reconcile themselves to the probability that if two residents of an American state are tried, convicted, and executed for murder, the windows of American consulates in various foreign cities will be broken by aliens who think they know, or don't think and don't know, that injustice has been done. From this it follows naturally that if Mussolini issues an order in Italy a group of communists in Argentina have a right to riot against the Italian flag. Herr Hitler can get action not only in Bavaria or Prussia but in Madrid. The penetration of other countries by eccentricities dominant in one does not seem to carry with it much order or security or much promise of them. Doctrinal evangelism is an old thing, but it isn't doing much these days to permit nations wisely to mind their own business.

Editorial of the Day

THE MARGINAL LANDS.

[Indianapolis News.]

The marginal land feature of the farm-lobby relief plan to which the President has given approval as an experiment is at once its weakness and its strength. By marginal land the supporters of the plan mean land that is so poor in quality or so far from a market that it cannot be made to yield a profit when operated by standard farm methods. It is land that, if not farmed, would cut acreage to the point that the yield would leave no exportable surplus to lower the domestic price. In theory it includes part of all tillable land.

The weakness is in forcing farmers to reduce crops by leasing some of this land at a small price in order to recompense them for what they might lose by working it. If this plan increases prices farmers may resent the law that kept them from working all their land when prices were good. When they find that their gross income is not increased, but only that their labor is reduced and their profit margin spread, they may rebel, feeling that they have been led again into an impracticable experiment in farm relief.

In computing production costs to discover the extent and location of unproductive land federal authorities will have trouble with local taxes. Land taken out of cultivation cannot be taken off local tax duplicates. Presumably the government will pay farmers enough for the land to enable them to meet the taxes, but if that is continued local taxing authorities will be relieved of one incentive to economy.

Land is only one of several factors in determining crop volume. The government can do nothing about the weather, and its control of insect pests is limited. A shortage of one of the controlled crops, forcing processors to import, would break down the whole scheme. Yet the plan must be strong in its control feature if the basic principle of federal help in limiting output is conceded. Power is needed to overcome the laws of economics, and much contention will no doubt arise in congress over the opposing forces of expediency and economic experience.

A DRY SUBJECT.

A parishioner, meeting his vicar, who was carrying a brief bag, remarked, "Got your lunch, vicar?"

"Sermons," returned the clergyman. "Food for thought, you know."

"O, I see—dried tongue."—Tit-Bits.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

GOODNESS GRACIOUS! How beer has changed since it went away thirteen long years ago. Now everybody is planning another Armistice day celebration, with miles of ticker tape and trainloads of confetti and brass bands every ten feet to give beer a cordial welcome home. And the dietitians are pointing out that in a single glass of beer there are as many calories, proteins, food values, and all that sort of thing as there are in a glass of milk, a slice of roast beef, a couple of eggs, or three slices of bread. And what did those drys tell us thirteen years ago? That a glass of beer was equal to three months' sickness, a lifetime of sorrow, a mother's broken heart, six quarts of orphans' tears, and nine months in jail. Now, somebody was lying thirteen years ago, or somebody's lying now, and we want to find out and find out quick.

AND WHILE EVERYTHING ELSE is being thought of in the big beer reception April 6-7, who has had the presence of mind to provide the needed number of poor little match girls? Not a soul, and we've just got to have 'em. In the old days before Volstead a young man who had never drunk a drop of intoxicating liquor in his life would be enticed into a saloon hell-hole and given a glass of beer. After he drank the glass of beer the young demon would immediately go out into the street and, seizing her crutch and her matches away from her, he would proceed to beat up a poor little match girl. In all our long and tempestuous life we have never seen a poor little match girl, but there must have been legions of them, for the young demons always beat 'em up after their first glass of beer. The drys said so and, of course, the drys knew. Oh, we must have poor little match girls all over the place when beer comes back; it won't seem like the good old times if they're not there.

PROTEST.

Now men are men become, no dark desire for blood must cloud the myriad channeled brain; the finely functioning reason shall restrain evil and lust and avarice's fire.
And he whose tongue achieves a scepter's power, must use the silver instrument for peace;
Nor dare the misery of man increase to dedicate with blood his wretched hour.

For those whose gentle teachers brought the word of living wisdom twenty centuries ago, let be no hatred, men, let be no need for martyrdom, no friendship strangely stirred to futile sympathy at endless woe.

* * * * *

Dear God, let be no violence of thought or deed!

DAVIDA.

WATCHING THE SMOOTH FLOWING, wide spreading and unchecked career of Mussolini one could easily get the idea that it was pretty easy to be a dictator; all that was needed was the opportunity and the right moment. But, gazing on Herr Hitler and the terrible mess he seems to have made of things, one comes to the conclusion that perhaps this dictator thing is a little difficult after all. There have been constant reports from Berlin that Herr Hitler was going to fly to Rome to consult with the Duce. We hope that if he goes he will ask Mussolini the secret of his success as a dictator. For in that case Mussolini could, if he wanted to, make the same reply that Opie, the great artist, made to a captious critic. The critic had looked somewhat superciliously at several of the artist's paintings and then said, "And, pray, Mr. Opie, with what do you mix your paints?" "With brains, sir," replied Mr. Opie. From the first time we saw a photograph of Herr Hitler we never thought for the tenth part of a second that he was in the class with Mussolini. With that comic mustache! Never!

OH POET!

Oh poet, sing not of depression,
Of turbulent trouble and pain;
Weave us a happier story,
Made from a restful refrain;
Remind us of Springs that are coming,
Soft seasons of languid delight.—
Dwell not on the horrors of darkness,
But rather the stars of the night.

Turn back the pages of past men,
And take from their deeds something fine
To help us in making the future
A sanely balanced rhyme;
Forget about tempest and earthquake,
Floods, and lust, and defeat;
Bring us a song of calm courage,
Old glory, new glory repeat.

In painting your graphic pictures,
Use words that will cheer the heart;
Such words as love and laughter,
Home, and mother, and art,
Faith, and fun, and contentment.
Endeavor, valor, endure;
You have a wealth of brave words
Within your treasure store.

Many a desperate battle
Has been won, not with guns, but with words;
So, poet, combine for our tired ears
The loveliest notes you have heard;
Fill us with faith in the future—
Your songs may make us well—
Poet, forget all the drab words,
And radiant stories tell!

CESARE BERTANZA, described as the inventor of the picture postcard, has just died in the town he made famous, Riva on the Lago di Garda. We hope they give Cesare a fine funeral; he deserves it. We have never had the slightest dislike for the inventor of the picture postcard; it was the bird who invented the line, "Having a grand time; wish you were here," that we've always hoped to track down some day with bloodhounds. EXPRESSION AND THE LOWER FACE.

THE expression of the lower part of the face is dependent partly on the bones. From the eyes up the face is the front part of the brain box. Except as its shape is somewhat modified by the sinus located in the brow region, it reflects the shape and size of the brain.

All of that part of the bony head below the eyebrows and in front of the eyes is something of an addition attached to the brain box, but not an essential part of the structure. A small part of this bony face lean-to attached to the brain box consists of two caverns that give shelter to the eyeballs. Another part provides the tunnels through which air is taken in and warmed, moistened, and cleaned. The sinuses opening off this air tube are responsible for the cheek bones, and this takes some part in determining the features.

The size and shape of the bones of the lower face develop according to a plan of growth and change which is started long before birth and continues until death. The pituitary gland furnishes the motive power for the carrying out of this plan. If the jaws do not grow large enough to hold the teeth and some are crowded out of line, the pituitary is at fault. If the lower jaw projects beyond the upper or if its line of bite falls far behind that of the upper jaw, again the pituitary is at fault. Whether a man is to be jimber jawed or to be a chinless Susie depends on his pituitary.

There is a well recognized pituitary disease which is manifested by lionism. In this disease the bones of the lower face become so heavy and prominent that the sufferer bears some resemblance to a lion, hence the name.

There is a specialty in dentistry called orthodontia, which consists in shifting the positions and alignments of the teeth. A field of research for this group of scientists is to find a way of preventing irregularities of the teeth rather than of correcting them. Research in this field is directed toward the pituitary.

The heavy muscles which move the jaws contribute somewhat to the expression of the lower part of the face. Some research on methods of changing the facial expression by developing these muscles has been done recently.

The greater part of the contribution of the muscles to the expression of the lower part of the face arises from the action of the muscles around the mouth. These muscles hold the lips closed in a straight line, or they allow the mouth to sag open. They pull the corners of the mouth up and cause that expression to set. Or they pull them down and, in time, cause another expression with different meanings to become fixed. They make radiating wrinkles at the corners of the mouth and deep folds which run sometimes in one direction and sometimes in another.

CARBUNCLES.

J. C. K. writes:

1. What are carbuncles caused from?
2. Is is possible to cause a carbuncle by pulling a hair from a pimple, or squeezing a pimple?

REPLY.

1. Infections of the tissues under the skin. The infecting microbe is usually a staphylococcus.
2. Yes, though we would expect a boil rather than a carbuncle to result. Hairs run only a little distance in. The carbuncle area is somewhat deeper than the grass roots. Nevertheless a good hard squeeze may break up things and drive infection deep enough to produce carbuncles.

BURNING FEET.

Mrs. E. K. writes: This last year I have had trouble with burning feet. They seem to swell and my shoes get too tight at times.

1. Would this be caused by an acid system?
2. What could I do to remedy it?

REPLY.

1. No.
2. Try a good dusting powder. Use it in your shoes, on your stockings, and on your feet. It is generally effective against burning.

PUMPKIN SEEDS AND WORMS.

E. B. writes: Is there any truth in the statement that pumpkin seeds are a remedy to eliminate worms?

REPLY.

Pumpkin seed is an old and well established medicine. There are different kinds of worms. Pumpkin seed tea is more efficient against some than it is against others.

NOISE NUISANCE.

Chicago, March 24.—[Friend of the People.]—I'm writing to see what can be done about a dog that is tied at the side of a neighbor's house. This dog is never taken in the house and it annoys every one that passes by its barking. Cannot these people be made to keep this dog inside, as every one else does? W. W.

This matter has received attention and the owner of the dog has taken the dog in and will keep it indoors in the future. She promised to do away with the dog in case there are any more complaints. Arrest notification was issued to the owner for not having a dog license.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

FROM THE TRIBUNE'S COLUMNS

16 YEARS AGO TODAY

MARCH 29, 1917.

LONDON.—It became known here today that for the last two months the American state, war, navy, treasury, agriculture, and labor departments have been in intimate touch with the corresponding departments of the allied nations. Washington has all the secret information concerning the predicament that the British and the allies found themselves in at the opening of the war. Washington now knows what unpreparedness cost the allies at the hands of their highly organized superprepared Teutonic foes. Washington now knows how the allies organized their arms and resources at the last moment, how armies were recruited, how finances were arranged, how industries were socialized into the national cause, how the tremendous problems of mobilization, rationing, equipment, transportation, training, and munitioning of army and navy, of air, and subsea forces were solved. To give America the advantage of the lesson Great Britain and her allies have bared their wounds to the great republic, and the United States diplomatic service for the last two months has been examining these wounds, studying the defects, and making notes on the remedies and improvements three years of war have brought.

WASHINGTON.—Whether the United States shall go to war with Germany is a question that will be determined by one man—President Wilson. There is not a member of the cabinet who knows whether the President will recommend the declaration of a state of war when he appears before the extraordinary session of congress. The President himself declines to give any inkling of his intention. There is only one man in the country who is aware of the course the President will pursue. That man is Col. E. M. House, Texas millionaire, who is the President's chief unofficial adviser. Col. House is assisting the President in shaping the destiny of the nation.

WASHINGTON.—An unconfirmed report is current in Washington to the effect that Chancellor von Bethmann-Hollweg in his address to the reichstag tomorrow will announce the abandonment of ruthless submarine warfare, at least on American ships, and will address himself obliquely to the United States on the subject of peace. According to the story, the administration has been advised of the move to be made by the German government, and this knowledge accounts for the hesitation manifested by the administration in the last forty-eight hours regarding a war declaration.

LONDON.—The Daily Mail hears from Switzerland that Emperor Karl has left Vienna for Berlin, where he will confer with the kaiser on the subject of relations with the United States. It is believed the conference is to decide whether the Austro-German policy toward the United States shall be modified in order to avoid actual hostilities or whether the present conduct of the submarine campaign should be persisted in.

WAR SUMMARY.—The British cavalry captured the villages of Villers-Faucon and Saulcourt, north of Roisel, and also won ground from the Germans at two points on the Boisnes-Lagnicourt road and south and west of Croisilles. The French, in night battles, made further gains north of Ailette river and east of Reims. They also beat off German attacks in the Champagne. French reports likewise chronicle the repulse of German attacks on the Macedonian front. The British war office admits the loss of eighteen large and seven small merchant ships and ten fishing vessels in two weeks.

NEW YORK.—The Herald this morning says it has obtained from observers at Montauk Point, L. I., information that two German war submarines of the latest type were seen distinctly a few miles from shore within the last forty-eight hours. Continuing, the Herald says: "They will doubtless lie in wait, perhaps on the Sound bottom, for official information that hostilities between the United States and Germany have commenced. Their obvious objective then will be an attack upon New York harbor."

CHICAGO.—An Easter without eggs—unknown to the oldest or youngest inhabitant—is planned by the Woman's Association of Commerce in an effort to reduce the high cost of eggs at a time when 30,000 cases of fresh eggs are reported to be lying in freight cars here. The boycott was suggested by President Florence King, who declared the advancing costs of food products is due to the lull in boycott activities of club women.

CARNIVAL IN GENEVA

[Kladderadatsch, Berlin.]

"The delegate from Czechoslovakia caused a sensation by asking for a corridor to the sea, since even Shakespeare in 'Winter's Tale' talks of the coast of Bohemia."

FARM RELIEF.

Chicago, March 24.—As a business man here in Chicago and interested in farming in northwestern Iowa I want to say that in my opinion all this so-called farm relief is just so much poppycock and plain damned nonsense. There is not a lot of money in farming today, to be sure; nor, for that matter, in any other business. However, the farm I am interested in carries itself and even in 1932 paid a net profit of better than $8 per acre, plus a good living for those on the farm.

Our farmers, as a whole, who are in trouble are just victims of the times. They, in perfectly natural sequence, drifted into the current of the mad rush which engulfed pretty nearly every one and all lines of business up to the latter part of 1929. Their troubles resulted principally from three well known factors—extravagance, speculations, and high taxes.

There are but four things that can possibly alleviate the farmers' distress—economy, intelligent and persistent work, lower taxes, and time for liquidation of debts. The politicians' blatting hot air and pouring more public funds into the millstream is just madness.

Let Washington confine itself to its economy program and declare a moratorium on farm mortgages for a ten year period for those applying and qualifying for such relief. Reduce expenditures of public funds, federal, state, county, township, and municipality, and all taxes will automatically come down. The intelligent farmer, with his taxes reduced and given time to meet his interest and mortgage notes, will economize and work diligently and in due course will again be on his feet.

All the government subsidies in the world will not make a good farmer out of a poor one, nor a thrifty, industrious fellow out of a lazy spendthrift. On the other hand, trying such an experiment as is now proposed at Washington under the guise of farmers' relief can only lead us to complete destruction.

Cannot the people of intelligence be aroused into concerted action and at least try to keep the ship of state from actually being scuttled?

HARVE BADGEROW.

PRE-WAR PRICES.

Wheaton, Ill., March 25.—Two men from Elgin drove into our farm last Saturday to explain that part of the farm bill which is designed to put wheat on a pre-war parity with other commodities. Their facts were very interesting.

The farmer now buys automobile tires at one-half the pre-war price and gets four times the pre-war mileage. To put his wheat on a parity with the mileage cost of tires he should reduce the price of wheat from 50 cents to about 12 cents per bushel.

Before the war the railroads would haul a ton of steel from Pittsburgh to Chicago for about four bushels of wheat, but now they want fourteen bushels. To correct this disparity the price of wheat should be increased to about $1.75 per bushel.

A pre-war plasterer would work eight hours for six bushels of wheat, but now demands twenty bushels. To correct this difference the price of wheat should be increased to about $1.80 per bushel.

An automobile of the type that could be purchased before the war for 5,000 bushels of wheat can now be bought for less than 4,000 bushels. To place them on a parity the present price of wheat should be about 40 cents per bushel.

At this point two guards who had located these men came in to take them back to the asylum. One of the guards, as he took these men away, told me that these two lads had written a dandy pamphlet on "The Road Back to Prosperity" which he would send to me, and if it is as good as I think it is I will send you a synopsis of it.

IPSEY DICKSETS.

GRATEFUL.

Chicago, March 19.—My grocery box from the unemployment relief has just arrived early in the morning of the day it was due. Had I paid cash for the food it contains I could not have bought one-fifth as much, and I cannot understand who these people are that continually march to "demand" cash relief.

The help I receive is enough to keep my family well fed and I am truly grateful to those whose generosity provides it. When my husband was employed he contributed from his salary and when he is working he will do so again. I feel ashamed to think that there are people continually finding fault and demanding what no one is obliged to give them. The communistic ravings of one of my neighbors in the store while he waits for his charity order to be filled makes one feel like getting a board with a nail in it, turning these ingrates across the counter and administering the board where it will do the most good. GRATEFUL.

THE FRIEND OF THE FIFTH GRADE.

Kellogg, Idaho, March 21.—We should like to express through THE TRIBUNE to Bob Becker our gratitude for his fine articles about the Seminole Indians and about the bird life of the Everglades. Our ten year old daughter, who visited Florida two years ago, was asked to prepare a booklet on Florida. It was to be in the nature of a competition, each child having a state to write about. They were requested to paste any kind of newspaper clippings about their states in their booklets. At exactly the right time appeared these fine articles by Bob Becker, which, of course, she at once pasted into her booklet. She thinks that they helped her to win first prize in the fifth grade competition. She sends her thanks to Mr. Becker, too.

MR. AND MRS. W. H. CLAGETT.

TEUTONISMS.

Chicago, March 25.—In today's editorial, "Teutonisms," you state that other parts of the world must wonder "when the German spokesmen will learn the danger of expressing abhorrent sentiments in violent and inconsiderate language." I can tell you if you'll care to listen. When you and your kind become fair enough and call a wolf a wolf and a sheep a sheep, or when you'll say that white is white and black is black.

THE WELCOME TO BEER.

Chicago, March 26.—I was much amused when I read that Col. Ira D. Reeves, Attorney Ralph M. Shaw, Mrs. Leslie Wheeler and others are trying to dictate to us what kind of celebration we should have to welcome the return of beer. Why don't these bigots keep their noses on their own faces?

WOTTA LIFE! WOTTA LIFE!

BRITISH OFFICER IS CONVICTED OF BEING A TRAITOR

Sold Out Country; Faces 98 Years in Prison.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, March 28.—Pale and trembling, Lieut. Norman Baillie-Stewart of the Seaforth Highlanders, one of the proudest regiments in Great Britain, today stood at attention before a court martial at Chelsea barracks and heard himself convicted of selling out his country.

The young officer was accused on ten counts. As instructed by Judge Advocate P. N. Sutherland Graeme, the court returned a verdict of not guilty on three of them. There the president halted and indicated that the accused could go. Lieut. Baillie-Stewart saluted and left under an escort.

Silent on Seven Charges.

The court's silence means that the young officer is found guilty of the other seven charges. Under British martial law the counts on which the defendant was found guilty were not mentioned in the verdict.

Sentence will not be pronounced on the lieutenant until after the case has been reviewed by higher military authorities. This may take a month.

Lieut. Baillie-Stewart's jaunt to Germany last August, which began as an innocent leave of absence and terminated, according to the court's findings today, in a traitorous plot to sell information to the German government, might cost him a maximum of 98 years' imprisonment. Each charge carries a possible term of fourteen years.

Nearly the entire day was required for summing up the case and for the court's deliberations. During the deliberations the accused officer, clad in kilts, strode around the parade ground of the barracks with Norman Parkes, his counsel, and Lieut. Eric Stewart Wright, his brother.

Judge Sums Up Evidence.

He returned to the courtroom, however, to listen to every word uttered by Judge Advocate Graeme regarding the contention of the defense that the $450 sent to Lieut. Baillie-Stewart from Germany were in payment for a discreditable association with a mysterious "Marie Louise." She is the woman whom Lieut. Baillie-Stewart says he met through Otto Waldemar Obst, who is accused by the prosecution of being a German secret agent.

Judge Advocate Graeme pointed out that the chief matters in the case had been admitted by both sides. Lieut. Baillie-Stewart, the judge advocate said, had confessed meeting Obst and making three hurried trips to Holland afterward to meet Marie Louise. He also had confessed that he received money from her and that he had taken notes on a new British tank and other secret military subjects. The whole of the prosecution's case, he said, depended on circumstantial evidence.

The judge advocate next dealt with the long arm of coincidence which Lieut. Baillie-Stewart said was connected with his notes on tanks, armored cars, and automatic rifles which had been written on papers sent to Germany and with the fact that the date of one of his trips to Holland had been scribbled on the same piece of paper with Obst's address in Berlin.

The ceremony was held half an hour after Japanese officials conducted a ceremony at the placing of the first roof beams on the Japanese pavilion.

Students of the college recently threatened to strike unless the board retained Dr. Potter, but he dissuaded them. The students then circulated petitions in his behalf.

INDIANA PASTOR PUT ON TRIAL ON GIRL'S CHARGES

Minister Is Indicted for Attempted Rape.

Muncie, Ind., March 28.—[Special.]—The Rev. G. Lemuel Conway, suspended Methodist Episcopal minister, went on trial before Circuit Judge L. A. Guthrie here today on the charge of attempting to rape 18 year old Helen Huffman, member of his flock at the Madison Avenue Methodist Episcopal church.

Conway has already been convicted at a church trial at which a jury of ministers heard the charges of his young accuser. He was suspended from the ministry for one year, and his place in the pulpit has been taken by a substitute.

Start Selection of Jury.

The court session today was given over to the selection of a jury. Counsel said that they expect to complete the jury by noon tomorrow. Conway, his attorneys said, will give an alibi as his defense, the same which he presented in the church trial. He asserts that he was in a plumbing shop, discussing a fishing trip, at the time when Miss Huffman charges that he tried to attack her.

She charged that she was walking toward the business section of Muncie when Conway, whose daughter she had visited at the parsonage, drew up to the curb and offered her a ride. Instead of proceeding down town, she charged, he drove to a lonely road outside the city and attempter to rape her.

Fight with Choirmaster.

She made her charges to leaders of the congregation, but the matter remained a secret to most of the lay members of the congregation until one Sunday evening when the minister brought it into the open by knocking Willard F. Aurand, the choir leader, over the chancel rail with his fist.

4 Hurt as 140 Flee When Employer Starts Shooting

Philadelphia Pa., March 28.—(AP)—Four persons were hurt today as 140 hosiery employés fled before the blazing pistols of their employer. Those hurt received their injuries in leaping out of windows. Police captured the man, Theodore Levinsky, 60. He was held under $1,500 bail for court. Police said Levinsky, who had about $3,000 invested in the hosiery business, imagined the other partners were conspiring to oust him. At the first shot there was a mad scramble for doors and windows.

G. B. SHAW VISITS FILMLAND; MAKES AN ACTRESS CRY

Plane Is Forced Down; It Fails to Disturb Him.

Culver City, Cal., March 28.—(AP)—George Bernard Shaw came to southern California today and had a look at the movies.

He left a tentative promise to return some time and "show you [Culver City and Hollywood] how to make pictures."

A forced landing on a mist-shrouded Pacific ocean beach in the airplane in which he flew from San Simeon, Cal., this morning, did not disturb the aplomb of the dramatist and critic.

Picked Up By Studio Auto.

Low clouds and rain forced Pilot Ray Crawford to land the plane on a beach strand two miles from Malibu, motion picture colony. The party hailed a passing motorist for a ride into Santa Monica, where they were picked up by a Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer studio automobile. Leaving the studio in midafternoon, the Shaws went to San Pedro and boarded the Empress of Britain, which sailed tonight.

Shaw visited only the M-G-M studio here. He did not go to Hollywood, home of most west coast studios.

Shaw was taken to a sound stage where "When Ladies Meet" was being filmed with Ann Harding, Myrna Loy, Alice Brady, and Robert Montgomery.

The players finished a comedy scene, putting their best into it before the eyes of the noted play writer—and a movie maker of certain experience himself.

Moves Actress to Tears.

"Why," inquired Shaw of Miss Brady, "does a girl with a nice face like yours wear a hat like that?"

It was a rakish little hat with a rather large decorative bow effect and pulled down over the actress' eyes. Going to her dressing room, she gave way to tears. But Shaw did not know.

At luncheon, Shaw was introduced to Louis B. Mayer, head of the studio and prominent in the movie business.

"So there really is a Louis B. Mayer, after all," he said.

The dramatist declined to pen an autograph for the year old son of John Barrymore.

"How old is your son?" Shaw asked after Barrymore's request for the autograph.

"One year," the actor told him.

"No," said Shaw, "I can't give it. It might be different if he were your grandfather and had not much longer to live."

They Don't Take His Pants but This Is Just as Good

Two bandits masked with red bandana handkerchiefs held up John J. Halin, a locomotive engineer, in the basement of his home at 328 South Maple avenue, Oak Park, yesterday, robbed him of $6 and cut the suspender buttons off his pants to prevent his pursuing them.

TWO SUSPECTS IN ROOMING HOUSE MURDER SEIZED

The Chicago detective bureau was informed yesterday that a man and a woman, suspects in the murder of Mrs. Elizabeth Stanley of 616 Wrightwood avenue on May 9 last year, had been arrested in the south.

At Brookhaven, Miss., authorities took into custody Stanley G. Wright, a former Chicago taxicab driver. In his pockets they found letters from Mrs. Marguerite Brincefield, 22 years old. These disclosed that she was in Miami, Fla., and the police there arrested her.

Mrs. Stanley, who was 68 years old, was the owner of a rooming house. Wright and Miss Brincefield had been living in the house and left about the time of the killing. There is no direct evidence against the couple, the police said.

ALABAMA JURY METHOD FOUGHT AT MURDER TRIAL

Lack of Negroes Cited by Defense Counsel.

Decatur, Ala., March 28.—(AP)—A new attack on Alabama's jury system was in the offing tonight as defense counsel gathered evidence on which to base their contention that no Negroes were included in the jury box from which the venire for the trial of Haywood Patterson, 19 year old Chattanooga Negro, was drawn.

The trial of Patterson was set for Thursday after Judge James E. Horton dismissed the first motion to quash the indictments against Patterson and six other Negroes involved in the Scottsboro case, charged with attacking two white girls.

Attacks Grand Jury Composition.

The motion to quash was based on an allegation that the defendants were deprived of their constitutional rights because the grand jury which indicted them contained no Negroes.

Hardly had this motion been disposed of before Samuel C. Liebowitz, employed by the International Labor Defense council, raised the question again, refusing to enter a plea for Patterson, whom Attorney General Thomas E. Knight Jr. has elected to try first.

"We refuse to enter a plea," Liebowitz said, "and move to quash the venire because the rolls from which the box was filled, unjustifiably and in violation of the 14th amendment, contained no Negroes solely because of their race."

Judge Horton immediately overruled the motion to quash the venire, but told defense counsel it would not prejudice the motion when offered again.

Charge Negro Jurors Excluded.

Liebowitz and his associates, Joseph R. Brodsky of New York and George W. Chamlee of Chattanooga, then began assembling their evidence that Negroes were excluded from the jury box.

Arraignment of the other six Negroes—Andy Wright, 19, and Clarence Norris, 22, both of Chattanooga; Olen Montgomery, 19, of Monroe, Ga.; Charlie Weems, 22, and Ozie Powell, 19, both of Atlanta, Ga., and Willie Roberson, 19, of Columbus, Ga.—was deferred until after the Patterson trial is disposed of.

IDA SIDDONS, QUEEN OF BURLESQUE, DIES; HEROINE OF GAY '90'S

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Ida Siddons died today. They called her queen of burlesque back in the eighties and the nineties.

From Maine to Texas, from old London Playhouse on the Bowery to the Wigwam in San Francisco, they knew Ida Siddons.

Some called her the "most perfect figure in America" and her specialty, a rope skipping dance, was one of burlesque's brightest offerings.

In 1883, when New York's bright lights centered around Fourteenth street and the Broadway theater district of today was a cow pasture, Miss Siddons started on burlesque tours with her father, the late "Pop" Siddons, once famous in the circus.

The "sticks" or the old Haymarket theater in Chicago were all the same to her. Her company played in the "tank towns" and once remained for 49 weeks at the Wigwam.

Soon after the turn of the century, Miss Siddons retired and took an apartment overlooking Times Square in New York. Twelve years ago, when she was 64, she married Phil Hamlin, a famed comedian of burlesque in her day.

Miss Siddons died at the home for incurables, almost penniless.

FIND DEAD WIFE'S JEWELS HIDDEN UNDER BATHTUB

Discover Gem Cache After Nine Years.

Nine years after his wife's death Albert Server, 5604 Drexel boulevard, found a hoard of jewels valued at $7,500, which had been hidden by Mrs. Server before she died. The gems lay concealed in an old shoe which had been thrust under a bathtub in the home of Mrs. Server's mother at 5618 Drexel boulevard.

This became known yesterday when Attorney V. H. Bloom presented to Oscar Caplan, assistant to the probate judge, a will executed by the wife, Rose Karpass Server, in St. Luke's hospital on Dec. 24, 1923. Mrs. Server died on March 6 of the following year. In her will she told how she had placed the jewels in an old shoe, put the shoe in a sack, and concealed the sack in the bathroom of her mother's home.

Mr. Server had to go to a hospital for an operation several weeks ago, and in arranging his own papers ran across the will, which he had never noticed before. He looked under the bathtub and found the jewels.

The will also stated that Mrs. Server had $4,000 in a savings account at the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company. She left a valuable ring to her husband, $1,500 to her mother, Mrs. Etta Karpass, and the residue of the estate to her sons, Leonard, now 17 years old, and Jerome, 13.

SOCIETY WOMAN IS CRITICALLY ILL OF RARE AILMENT

Mrs. Earl L. Hambleton Gets 7 Transfusions.

Mrs. Earl L. Hambleton of the Ambassador East hotel is in a critical condition at the Michael Reese hospital, the victim of a rare ailment. She was reported last night to be doing fairly well with the help of seven transfusions. Dr. Ira Frank, a specialist, is her attending physician.

Well known in north side social affairs, Mrs. Hambleton is the mother of Margaret [Peggy] Hambleton, a leader in Junior league theatricals who has appeared many times on the Goodman and other stages.

Loses White Corpuscles.

Mrs. Hambleton was stricken last week, and taken to the hospital on Thursday. There her ailment was diagnosed as agranulocytic-angina, which is marked by the disappearance of white corpuscles from the blood, accompanied by a throat infection.

To combat the illness, physicians have sought to build up the necessary white corpuscles. Seven blood transfusions have been made since Thursday, and more are scheduled. Also, the physicians are trying to stimulate the bone marrow from which the white corpuscles are formed.

Three Daughters Near Her.

Mrs. Hambleton's daughters, Miss Margaret Hambleton, Mrs. Francis S. Rickcords of 1530 North State parkway, and Mrs. Berrien Eaton of Detroit, have taken quarters at the hospital to be near her.

Another case of a rare blood disease is that of Herbert H. Taylor III., 3 years old, grandson of the president of the Franklin County Coal company. The boy is confined to his home at 413 Dempster street, Evanston, suffering from acute myelogenous leukemia. This disease is caused by a too large supply of white corpuscles which destroy the red corpuscles.

MRS. LINDBERGH'S BOY BLACKMAILER WILL BE GRANTED A PAROLE

Akron, O., March 28.—(AP)—A 15 year old boy accused of attempting to extort $25,000 from Mrs. Charles A. Lindbergh by writing threatening letters will be placed on parole because he is "not a bad boy," Juvenile Judge Oscar Hunsicker decided today.

"He just read too many imaginative stories," the judge said after conducting a hearing for the lad, Proveno "Peanuts" Marcella, behind closed doors.

The court expressed the wish that the lad's parish priest would consent to have Proveno paroled to him. Meanwhile the boy will be held in the Juvenile Detention home.

Postal Inspector Ernest D. Claggett said young Marcella, a high school student whose father, Tony Marcella, operates a store and filling station near here, admitted writing two letters to Mrs. Lindbergh demanding blackmail.

Neither of the two letters, however, reached the wife of the famous aviator. The first was intercepted here, the second at Washington.

Daughter Tells Tragic Life of Tolstoy Family

Countess Defends Father Against Mother.

BY FANNY BUTCHER.

"The Tragedy of Tolstoy," by Countess Alexandra Tolstoy. [Yale University Press.]

THE millions of words which have already been published about Tolstoy have awaited this volume by his youngest and favorite daughter to resolve them into the intimate essence of him. Just as the contents of a cloudy test tube are cleared by a few drops of the right liquid so the intimate life of Tolstoy is clarified by Countess Alexandra Tolstoy's frank record of the domestic life of her father.

TOLSTOY.

She says in the preface that the publication of her mother's diary forced her to write this book. "Trying to justify herself, she involuntarily made accusations against father," Countess Alexandra Tolstoy writes. "Thus the diary, without being, I am sorry to say, thoroughly reliable, has caused the publication of a number of books and articles unfavorable to him. I felt that it was my duty to tell people what I knew. . . . Father himself did not say much about his family life, and my mother carefully scratched out of his diaries everything he wrote about her." And later in the book she says that her mother post-dated her own diaries after she had read her husband's and accused him bitterly.

From "The Tragedy of Tolstoy" the great Russian emerges a saint to his daughter, but oddly enough something of an ogre to the sensitive reader. The case of the Countess Alexandra wrings the reader's heart, although one is certain that to her, being permitted passionate devotion to her adored parent was the greatest of life's blessings. The author, who was always called Sacha, when little more than a baby heard her mother sob, "Why, why Vanichka? Why not Sacha?" when her younger brother died. When she was 14 she was told by the old family nurse that her mother had resented bearing her and had tried in every possible way not to.

Sacha's natural inclination for her father became, it is evident in the book, adoration, and she merely records, without accusing, the fact that her father drove away every young man who ever looked at her, that he even made her give away her dog because the dog had forced him to the un-Christian act of inflicting a whipping. She mentions the political persecution which Tolstoy's followers suffered while he was left unmolested and sees in it no irony, only her father's deep suffering. She records the presence of constant visitors, turning what should have been a home into a convention hall, with oddly assorted followers actually living with the family.

One of them, called the Swede, was frankly mad, going about stark naked, insulting visitors, and demanding and allowed by Tolstoy to believe in his right to live on the piece of land he chose—which happened to be in the Tolstoy front yard. The girls were growing up and were constantly bumping into the mad Swede, but their father blamed their mother for objecting. Her father made her work harder than he could possibly have worked a paid stenographer, and yet she says, "Sometimes, as I came into his room he looked at me with a melancholy air and said, 'My lord, how homely you are. How homely!'" And when she grew a little fat from sitting so long at her desk copying his words he would look at her long and steadily. "Somehow I shriveled under this gaze. . . . 'What is it, little papa?' . . . 'You're too fat. You must work, do physical work!'" She adds, "I knew it and tried to move as much as possible, split firewood, shoveled snow—but my real work compelled a sedentary mode of life, and this exercise did not suffice."

Although she never sees it there is something Jovianly cruel about the Jove which Countess Alexandra Tolstoy worships so extravagantly in her pages.

She has enough of her father's gift to write a narrative which is moving and powerful. That it may move her readers to question her adoration, or to sympathy for her mother, she probably never suspects. But even the unforgettable record of the half-mad days when her mother almost literally killed the stubborn old 82 year old man with her harassments and the tale of his flight from her tortures is not without palliative moments for the woman who had been a loving and faithful if misguided wife for over fifty years and who had borne her husband thirteen children, whose future as well as her own she was pugnaciously eager to protect.

It is indeed the tragedy of Tolstoy that his daughter records with passionate zeal to tell the truth, but it is also, despite occasional pictures of gayety and family happiness, the tragedy of every member of the Tolstoy household.

New Crinkled Silks a Hit of Style Season

Colors and Designs Win Loud Approval.

BY RHEA SEEGER.

It's a very casual and somewhat bored shopper who can resist the new silks! What with yards and yards of the stuff arriving daily, with bolts and bolts of alluringly different patterns, colors and trick new ideas of water waves, weaves, and revived old fashioned heavy silks, being hung temptingly in all the fashion conscious shops, you are going to have your buying difficulties.

The first eye opening silk to greet you will be the new crinkled taffetas, called swivel silk, that look like seersucker cotton. This silk has been crinkled and wrinkled and then over that crêpey seersucker background thin, flat, narrow ribs have been superimposed. It's stunning looking stuff, in some of the most delectable shades that have been seen in weeks. There is a ruby red shade that will make your mouth water, an old gold tone that fairly gleams, and the blacks and dark colors ought to fashion your most successful spring Sunday frocks.

Flowered taffetas are gorgeous. Most of the patterns are blurred with delicate color combinations against pastel tinted backgrounds . . . one silver gray silk has leaf patterns in a darker shade of gray with sharp accents of black and jade green. Others are of French blue, with contrasts of deep rose, while the wild and breezy new plaids are gay and giddy things to contemplate. Taffeta for spring is soft, amazingly supple and as smart as anything you can wear . . . it is particularly effective for ruffled and fluted frocks, the rather quaintly fashioned new-old dresses made with double ruffles around the cape or hem. And lots of your best soft silk and satin dresses are being made with underruffles of this same soft taffeta to make them crisp and swishy.

Pompadour taffetas have returned to charm every one . . . lovely floral designs and blurred modernistic patterns are particularly eye filling. These silks are 39 inches wide and probably will fashion some of the most picturesque evening gowns of spring and summer. One hesitates this week between these taffetas and all the grand new designs that can be found in printed stiffened chiffon or organza.

Shops are featuring some white backgrounds with two sized dots, pale jade green and sapphire blue, or the very unusual combination of rosy red dots sprinkled over white with lavender coin spots . . . then you will find the Bedouin stripes, the incredibly wide colored stripes against white.

One black and white combine fairly takes your breath, and the huge wide checkerboard checks of orange, green, blue, yellow and scarlet race with zebra stripes for shoppers that demand something a bit startling in the way of evening creations.

The biggest dots ever printed are the colored dollar size spots that scream flamboyantly from white and colored organza.

MINUTE MYSTERY
CAN YOU SOLVE IT?
BY H. A. RIDLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE MENDER OF TOYS.

Mr. Ripley has asked me, his secretary, to tell you of a glimpse I had of an intimate side of dear old Prof. Fordney's life.

I had been sent for his famous case-book—Mr. Ripley wanted further data on the Falcon affair. When I arrived at the professor's home I was told he was in the attic! Peels of childish laughter greeted me as I ran up the stairs. Standing in the doorway I saw the renowned criminologist seated near the windows busily engaged in his single hobby—mending toys—while ten eager little faces watched him.

"You're trying to fool us, professor," fairly squealed young Rog, his black eyes examining his Mickey Mouse which had just had its ear replaced.

"No, son, that's a true story!" Then, catching sight of me he cordially invited, "Join us, my dear. I was telling the children about a great, big man, six feet three inches tall, much taller than Billy's dad, who bore an ugly scar on his cheek which he insisted had been caused by the kick of a donkey." He paused, squinting at a wooden soldier which he held at arm's length. Apparently satisfied with his job he handed it to Billy who hugged it close.

"Rog, here," he continued, "says that the man must have been kneeling or lying down when it happened. No He was standing right straight up!

"You tell them how it occurred," he said turning to me with a mischevious twinkle in his eye. He knows I can never solve his problems and I couldn't this one—but I know now!

Do you?

How a Small Carpet Started Rug Collection

Mrs. White Tells Story of Famed Orientals.

BY RUTH DE YOUNG.

Years ago, too many to recall, the late James Franklin Ballard glimpsed a small green carpet through a Fourth avenue shop window in New York. The color was startling, the design without equal. Unable to forget it, he returned every day for two weeks to admire its beauty. On the fourteenth he laid $375 in cash on the counter and the rug was his.

This experience was recounted yesterday by Mr. Ballard's daughter, Mrs. David B. White of St. Louis, in her talk before the Art institute's Orientals and Antiquarians. She told the story of the famous woven masterpieces her family has gathered from every corner of the globe. From the day Mrs. White's father bought that little green carpet on for a quarter of a century he exposed himself to bombings and burnings, blizzards and stormy seas for the sake of rug collecting. Now she is following in his footsteps.

In an ensemble fashioned in vivid tones of orchid and blue, Mrs. White talked in a subdued voice of the history, the art, and the religion in the rare Persians, Ghiordes, Ladiks, and Koulas that decorated the walls of the institute's oriental galleries where her audience had assembled. Charles F. Kelly, the curator of oriental arts at the institute, was the presiding officer.

"It is putting it mildly to say that father traveled 500,000 miles in the interest of rugs," Mrs. White explained. "In 1924, I well remember, he made a 30,000 mile trip for one rug, a Chinese masterpiece from the imperial palace in the Forbidden city. In the next fourteen months he went nearly twice around the world, 41,000 miles, spending six weeks, hungry and cold, in India, even standing up to eat breakfast in his overcoat, for an Indo-China Ispahan."

Mrs. White used the words of her father when she said that a "rug has a soul." For it was always his expression that "the soul of some eastern weaver still lives in a rug's shimmering gardens and speaks to the living in its colors." Whenever Mr. Ballard entered the room in his St. Louis home that contained his treasures he is said to have felt a sort of whispered "Hail."

One of the rugs that Mrs. White has brought to Chicago . . . and this group is to remain on exhibit at the institute for two months . . . came off a dog's back. Spying this dingy bit of carpeting Mr. Ballard bargained for dog and all and won them. The rug turned out to be a masterpiece. The dog he gave away.

During his life Mr. Ballard gave away many of his rugs. A collection of seventy went to the St. Louis Art museum; another 129, valued at $500,000, to the Metropolitan museum. This group has since been described by the museum directors as the most important and generous gift ever made by a nonresident of New York. To the collection of 64 rugs that went to Mrs. White two years ago she has already added more than two dozen.

After the lecture yesterday there was tea in the galleries served from two heavily carved Chinese temple tables. Yellow forsythia was their only decoration. Presiding at the tables were Mrs. Charles Wesley Dempster, smartly dressed in brown with contrasts of white, and Mrs. Potter Palmer wearing black accented in red. Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, who was responsible for most of the details of the party, was there, and so were Mrs. Richard T. Crane Jr., Miss Kate S. Buckingham, Mrs. George T. Langhorne, Mrs. Hubert Burnham, Mrs. Chauncey B. Borland, Mrs. Edwin L. Brand Jr., and Mrs. John Paul Welling.

Marlene Dietrich Hurt When Thrown by Runaway Horse

Hollywood, Cal., March 28.—[Special.]—When Marlene Dietrich, who has been wearing trousered suits about Hollywood for a year, "went feminine" today and donned a divided skirt to wear on a side saddle for a horseback movie scene, the result was a runaway in which Miss Dietrich was thrown heavily on her head and shoulders.

The high silk hat she was wearing as part of the riding habit broke some of the force of the fall, but Dr. Leo J. Madsen, who is attending the actress, said she suffered a slight brain concussion and could do no more film work for a week.

Her horse was unaccustomed to a side saddle, it was explained. The accident, which happened during a scene of "Song of Songs," took place in Sherwood forest, a wooded section near Calabasas, Cal.

Good morning!

Witness an "old-fashioned newspaper man"—I quote a character in the film—at work!

Immediately you picture a bearded gentleman with a limp, who is the combination editor, news, feature and ad writer of a small town newspaper. Wrong! This o. f. fellow is the star foreign correspondent of a big Chicago daily, and he is passé in that he MAKES news instead of getting it.

He is a demon child for fomenting yarns which shall feature his name in headlines. His shady and sensational exploits carry him from the Riff country in Africa, where he connives with a sheik to capture him, to Moscow, where he beards the soviets and almost gets shot for his pains. But is he discouraged or repentant? NO! The picture ends with a wild scarehead lammed across the face of the home daily, re a supposed outrage in China, intimately concerning Mr. Buckley Joyce Thomas.

The film is an adaptation of a play by Samuel and Bella Spewack. It has, I'm afraid, lost something of the original's intent in transition. The stage production, I have heard, was a sardonic affair, ripe with contrasts and sharp with biting humor. The picture resolves itself into merely an amusing photoplay in which a likable, breezy, reprehensible newspaper germ spreads a lot of disease.

Mr. Tracy brings his famous speed, nonchalance and personality plus to the character of Thomas. He makes the rôle whiz and sparkle. Una Merkle is amusing as the gold-digger who divides her popular attentions between Thomas and his boss to the quite considerable confusion and wrath of both devotees. Benita Hume is delightful as the up to date, loyal newspaper woman who stands by Thomas, presumably to the bitter end. Looks so much like Mary Astor! She, by the way, is the one who drives home the "old-fashioned" nail.

James Gleason is characteristically diverting as Thomas' faithful American secretary. Ari Kutai as the tempestuous, resourceful Russian one—hijacked from a rival correspondent—does a nice job. Most interesting, too, is the delineation of Prince Alexander, "last of the Romanoffs," by Eugene Sigaloff. These two able actors were in the "legitimate" version. I loved C. Henry Gordon as head of the soviet secret service. Easy-manner, smiling, level-eyed chap.

"Clear All Wires" could stand being shorter—but, as is, it's quite a bit of fun.

See you tomorrow.

New Symphony by Stravinsky Affects Nerves

BY EDWARD MOORE.

It took time and trouble to set the stage for the first Chicago performance of Igor Stravinsky's "Symphony of Psalms" during the Chicago Symphony orchestra concert at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon.

The violin and viola sections left the stage, and their space was occupied by two pianos brought up from beneath and a harp from the rear. They, what was left of the orchestra, and Noble Cain's A Cappella choir then proceeded to the performance under Mr. Stock's direction, and the music turned out to be as far from the conventional as the orchestral arrangement.

Stravinsky can always be depended upon to do the different thing. The choir was given long, sustained notes to sing throughout, no matter what the mood of the text, accompanied by seemingly irrelevant outbursts from the instruments in groups or as a whole. Never was there the slightest attempt to conciliate the hearer. In fact it did not sound like good Stravinsky, but it had one unfailing Stravinsky habit. It put a tension on the nerves.

This is considered a desirable end in certain modernistic circles. Whether the work will ever be thought of affectionately would seem a different matter. As it was, a number of patrons walked out during pauses in the performance, and a small army of them after it was over. This was a tactical error, because the final number was still to come, Mr. Stock's orchestral setting of the Bach Passacaglia and Fugue in C minor, and one of the magnificent moments of the program. However, the hour was growing late, though at that not as late as it seemed after the Stravinsky work.

Mr. Cain had conducted his group of singing experts twice before. There was a Bach motet, "The Spirit Also Helpeth Us," a marvelous example of vocal dexterity, and three brief and lovely pieces by William Byrd, Mr. Cain himself, and Alexander Gretchaninoff. This is a chorus that does about as much for vocal music as the Chicago Symphony does for instrumental, which means more than any other organization in the community.

Mr. Stock's share in these by no means unexciting proceedings were more than have been named. There was the Handel Overture in D and the Mozart Symphony in G minor, also the Good Friday Spell from Wagner's "Parsifal." The "Parsifal" excerpt and the Bach-Stock work were the orchestral high spots of the afternoon as the Bach motet was the vocal.

Engagement of Margaret Lynde, Eugene V. O'Brien Announced

Winnetka Neighbors and Friends of Long Standing Betrothed; No Date Set for Wedding.

BY JUDITH CASS.

A FRIENDSHIP of long standing was culminated yesterday in the announcement of the engagement of Miss Margaret Emily Lynde, daughter of Cornelius Lynde of Winnetka, to Eugene V. O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank T. O'Brien, also of Winnetka. Ever since Miss Lynde was a student at the Winnetka Country Day school of which her father has been a trustee the last dozen years, she and Mr. O'Brien have been neighbors.

Miss Lynde, a member of the Junior league and Service club, made her debut at a reception at the family home on Bryant avenue in the north Shore town in the fall of 1929 and the following spring became an aviation enthusiast. Exhibiting no dilettante interest in flying, she took a job as secretary to Maj. George Fisher at the Sky Harbor airport and in return for her services received a thorough course of instruction. Within a few months she earned her pilot's license, having practiced in a monoplane, a student instruction biplane, and one of the large Great Lakes training planes.

Since the death of her mother in November of 1931 Miss Lynde has curtailed her flying to preside over her father's home. But it is only natural that she should have an interest in sports since her mother was before her marriage, Bertha Pollock of Philadelphia, the country's amateur woman fencing champion. The daughter of James Pollock, last of the Philadelphia harbor masters, a millionaire manufacturer, and a famous clubman and wit, it was always said that Mrs. Lynde could fence mentally as well as with the foils.

After his graduation from Notre Dame university, Mr. O'Brien became an instructor in history at Loyola university. At the present time he is associated with a radio manufacturing company.

According to Miss Lynde's wish, the engagement was announced yesterday without a party. No date has been set for the wedding.

Lucie Jacobs Bride Today.

One hundred relatives and intimate friends are to hear Miss Lucie Jacobs exchange wedding vows with Willett N. Gorham at 4:30 this afternoon in a candlelight service in the drawing room in the Jacobs home on Woodley road in Winnetka. Miss Jacobs, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Jacobs, will wear her mother's white satin wedding gown.

To receive the blessing of Dr. Samuel Harkness, pastor of the Community Congregational church of Winnetka, she will kneel on a small stool that has been used by a dozen north shore brides. The altar will be banked with ferns and palms and lighted by five branched wrought iron candelabra.

Miss Jacobs is to be unattended, but Mr. Gorham will have his brother, Sidney Smith Gorham Jr., for his best man. The bridegroom is the son of the Sidney Smith Gorhams of La Grange. Miss Dixie Willett, a cousin of the Gorhams and a member of the family from which young Mr. Gorham takes his name, is here from Louisville, Ky., for the wedding.

Immediately following the ceremony there is to be a reception for those attending the wedding. And after this the bride and bridegroom will leave for New York to sail on a cruise to the West Indies and South America. They will be at home the beginning of May in the apartment they have selected at 21 East Elm street.

Benefit Concert by Claire Dux.

With two such attractions as Mme. Claire Dux's beautiful voice and the Francis Neilsons' palatial residence, the song recital tonight for the benefit of Lincoln Center camp and the Friday Morning forum should be a great success, for Mme. Dux [Mrs. Charles H. Swift] always draws a large and enthusiastic audience and the Neilson residence at 4800 Drexel boulevard is one of the few old mansions on the south side well worth a trip just to see it. The program is to start at 8:30 o'clock and afterwards there will be refreshments.

The Friends of China are inviting all who are interested to come for tea at 4 o'clock and for Miss Malvina Hoffman's lecture on "A Sculptor's Impressions of the Orient" half an hour later at the Arts club next Monday afternoon, for they feel that Miss Hoffman's lecture is of such unusual interest that many who are not members of their organization will want to hear her.

G. M. Silverthornes Parents of Son.

Mr. and Mrs. George M. Silverthorne Jr. are being congratulated on the birth of a son yesterday morning at the Passavant hospital. The baby, who weighed eight and a half pounds, is to be named John Hellyer Silverthorne after an uncle, the late John H. Silverthorne.

Miss Virginia Dixon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Homer L. Dixon, will be going east soon after the middle of next month to be a bridesmaid at the marriage of a former Chicago girl, Miss Florence Carroll, in Pittsburgh, Pa. Miss Carroll, daughter of the Walter C. Carrolls, will be married to Dr. Theodore Richardson Miner, son of Dr. and Mrs. George E. Miner of Brooklyn, on April 22 at the residence of her parents at 916 College avenue.

Walter C. Carroll Jr. of Chicago, himself a recent bridegroom, will be an usher. Miss Carroll was introduced to society in 1927 after the family had moved to Pittsburgh and she is a member of the Junior league of that city. Her older sister, Catherine, now Mrs. Edward S. Bradford Jr. of Londmeadow, Mass., made her debut in Chicago ten years ago. Mr. Carroll Jr. is her twin and he and his bride, the former Miriam Mohler of Washington, are living here at 240 East Delaware place. Their marriage took place in Washington last fall.

Carter H. Harrison will be entitled

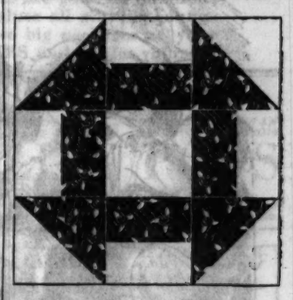
Monkey Wrench Inspiration of 2-Color Quilt



Double Monkey Wrench.

BY NANCY CABOT.

So many objects, both animate and inanimate, have been the inspirations for quilt patterns that it isn't surprising to find an ordinary monkey wrench blossoming into lovely prints in this design. Many of the older quilts of this pattern show a variation of colors, but with only two contrasting shades the "double monkey wrench" can be beautiful.

For a quilt pattern of this design, send five cents in stamps or coin to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly; or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn street.

The Changeling Bride

By Martha Ostenso

SYNOPSIS.

The Hendersons—Meryl and Margaret, sisters; Flint, their older brother, and Andrew, the father—have lived for twelve years in poverty in a fishing settlement on the shores of Lake Superior, after losing their fortune in Chicago. Andrew went to pieces after the death of his wife. Great-Aunt Letitia, formerly dean of a girls' school in Ohio, is the liaison between the Hendersons and a cultured pair. Flint and his friend, Ned Bremner, hope to build up a great export business. Ned is in love with Meryl, but she dreams of a better future. A forest fire brings Blake Lawrence, injured and lost, to the Henderson cottage. There were two great names in nearby Agate Bay and its environs—Lawrence and Greer. Blake is in love with Greer's wife, Christine. Blake's broken ankle keeps him two weeks with the Hendersons. Meryl falls in love with Blake. Though still enamored of Christine, Blake becomes engaged to Meryl, and sends for his sister, Theresa, to meet her. Meryl leaves for Agate Bay with Blake and Theresa, where the wedding is to take place. Blake has to leave immediately after the ceremony for one of his mines, where a strike is in progress.

INSTALLMENT XV.

LONELINESS.

"I mustn't be silly," Meryl said steadily. "Blake wouldn't go if he could help it."

"He feels very badly about it, dear," Theresa assured her. "But you and I will be busy enough while he's gone. We'll go down town tomorrow and get you a few things that will do until we take a trip to the city. Not that your clothes aren't plenty good enough, dear, but I think it's fun getting new things, don't you?"

Meryl looked at her from beneath lowered lids and smiled moodily. "I have no delusions about what they are, Theresa," she said. "And I think you're sweet to want to take the trouble——"

"Rats!" Theresa interrupted, "you're the most interesting thing that's hit this household for some time. It's simply abominable that Blake has to dash off. But you'll have to be patient with him, my dear. He's a queer, close mouthed sort and you'll have to bear with him until you get to understand him."

"I think I understand him a little—even now," Meryl said. "He's not particularly demonstrative—if that's what you mean—but I have enough of that for the two of us."

Theresa kissed her with quick, shy impulsiveness.

"There he is now," she said as a heavy step sounded on the stairs.

"I'm being a baby," she whispered to herself. "I ought to be ashamed."

Blake knocked lightly on the door of the room and entered to Theresa's invitation. He went immediately to Meryl and laid his hands on her shoulders.

"Meryl, dear," he said, "I'm terribly sorry about this. I suppose Tess has told you all about it."

Meryl nodded her head. "It's no fault of yours, Blake," she said. "Only—be careful—and hurry back."

Blake laughed, relieved. "Don't worry about that," he said, "nothing will happen to me—and I'll be back before you know it."

She lifted her face and smiled. Blake stooped and kissed her lightly, then turned to his sister.

"Luncheon ready?" he asked briefly.

"Waiting for you," Theresa told him.

He drew his arm about Meryl and the three walked together downstairs, through the living room and into the sun porch where a colored maid was bustling about a brightly decked table.

In the courthouse two hours later the brief, but to Meryl, overwhelming ceremony was performed. Theresa had told her of Blake's impatience with social fuss, with big, pretentious weddings and receptions, but Meryl had declared that the manner of her marriage to Blake was unimportant. As she walked out and got into the car beside Theresa her heart was beating unbearably from the words of avowal she and Blake had uttered in the stone building they had just left. On her left hand gleamed the plain gold band Blake had bought her "to serve the purpose," he had said, until a better ring could be purchased in the city. Somehow, Meryl thought, she would prefer to wear this one always.

Blake had his foot on the running board when another car swerved around the corner and stopped within a few feet of them. It was the long, silver gray phantom Meryl had seen on the shore road at home a few nights ago. The woman driving it wore a costume of white wool with a flame colored scarf and on her head a severe black toque which in no way concealed the long blackness of her eyes.

"Ho, Blake!" she called gayly, "May I not be the first to offer congratulations?"

Meryl smiled shyly and looked at Blake.

"Thank you, Christine," he said. "They couldn't come from any one more sincere!"

He got into the car and drew the door firmly to behind him. He smiled cheerfully at Christine and saluted her with two fingers as her car darted past the Lawrence roadster. Meryl looked at Blake and saw him flush dully then go curiously tender. A slow, incredible pain took hold of her. She rebuked herself inwardly. It was silly to feel so unreasonable about Blake's friends. She glanced at Theresa's face. Her eyes were fixed inscrutably on the street ahead of her as she drove directly to the depot.

In a few minutes Blake was bidding them good-by. He kissed Meryl and gave her hand a firm, quick squeeze.

"Be a good girl," he said, and smiled an odd, twisted smile. "I won't be long away."

As the train pulled out, she felt her face going stiff with the effort to keep from bursting into childish tears. Then Theresa gave her arm a warm clasp and led her back to the car.

In her beautifully appointed room, the room that was to be her very own when the Lawrences were, as Theresa derisively called it, "in residence," Meryl reflected that there had been something fantastically unreal about the whole procedure of Blake's leave-taking. The furnishings of the room, with their motif of rose and silver and black, swam dizzyingly about her. She closed her eyes upon the wild possibility that she was dreaming, and that this vague intuition of disaster was merely a forerunner of a rude awakening. If Blake had not been called away, she knew, everything would be different.

The silk pillows of the rose brocaded chaise longue on which she lay were soft at her back, but there was no luxury in them. Her fingers plucked nervously at the sleeve of the ivory satin negligee Theresa had given her.

"I'm being a baby," she whispered vehemently to herself. "I'm imagining things. I ought to be ashamed of myself."

The reaction to that self-denunciation was a wave of overwhelming loneliness, first for Blake, then for home, then for Blake again. She got up and began moving about the room in a desperate attempt to banish the mood that seemed to be closing in upon her.

It was Theresa's light knock on her door, and Theresa's voice, that broke the terrifying spell.

Blake's sister entered breezily, garbed in green silk lounging pajamas and smoking a cigaret. She threw herself into a chair and swung one shapely limb over the arm of it.

"You'll probably find it lonely for a while, dear," she said sympathetically, "but you'll get used to us. You'll love Uncle Tom Lawrence. He'll be home any minute now. He spends his day at the office pretending he's indispensable down there, and as soon as he gets home he tucks himself away in his room with a detective story. He's delightfully futile—except in mixing cocktails. He's seventy-two, but if you tell him he doesn't look a day over sixty, he'll fairly purr."

Meryl laughed. "Blake has told me about him," she said. "He sounds adorable. Then there is your cousin, Lucia. Blake told me she was living with you."

Thin Persons Benefit from This Exercise

And the Overweights Will Lose.

West Point Stretching Exercises No. 1, an illustrated booklet outlining the first six exercises published in this series, may be obtained by sending a stamped, self-addressed envelope to Antoinette Donnelly, The Chicago Tribune. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 South Dearborn street.

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

Underweight girls ask why something isn't done for them, since they claim to be a fair sized body of sufferers. They argue that fat people seem to win our sympathy more; at any rate, get more attention.

Maybe, judging the year around, we do give more attention to fat removal. But no thin girl may claim that "she isn't being done right by" in this series of exercises. They're for her as well as others, and absolutely guaranteed to straighten out most of her physical difficulties, even to creating for the underweight a better appetite.

Maj. Harold M. Rayner, head of physical training at West Point, from whence this series emanates, tells me it is easy to note the gaining of weight among freshmen once they've established good posture. The overweights lose; the underweights gain.

With the acquiring of a well poised body, the organs are allowed to function better. The chest is expanded, giving room for lungs and heart; respiration and circulation are carried on normally. There is no cramping of the stomach and liver. The abdominal walls are supported in an elevated and natural position.

The underweight person invariably is guilty of poor posture, drooping shoulders, depressed chest, protruding abdomen, with resulting maladjustment of the organs. Let the underweight get his or her body straightened and there is an improvement in respiration, circulation, digestion and nerves.

Particularly, the underweight girl is urged to do these shoulder movements. Their good work is by no means confined to shoulders only. The chest development she needs is to be found in the practice of these movements. Correcting her shoulder girdle faults comes automatically with their practice.

Thin girls are commonly heard to say: "Nothing looks good on me. I'm so skinny!" Well, here's your chance to make things look good on you. In fact, you have a style advantage on the rest of women with your willowy bodies—that is, if they are well poised.

Now, for today's exercise!

Exercise for the Arms

a. Lie face downward. Extend the arms to the side horizontally, palms down.

b. Raise the arms slowly backward and upward, forcing the shoulder blades together for a few seconds, then lower.

c. Same as "b," only quickly. Do six times and rest.

Stamp Which King Lost in Bidding to Be Offered at Sale

Utica, N. Y., March 28.—(AP)—If the king of England still wants that rarest stamp in the world, a British Guiana one cent issue valued at $80,000 for which he was outbid once by Arthur Hind of Clark Mills, he will have the opportunity again soon.

Hind's internationally known stamp collection is to be sold. He had refused $400,000 for his United States collection alone. Mr. Hind died a few weeks ago in Florida. The entire collection, under the terms of the will, just revealed, will be entrusted to William C. Kennett of Hazelwood, O., and Charles J. Phillips of New York for disposition.

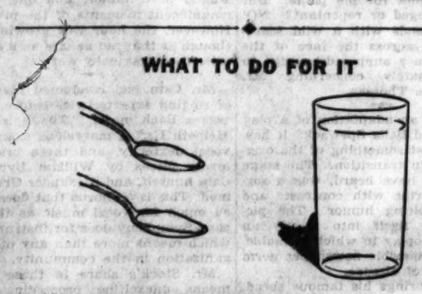
WHAT STOMACH ACIDITY IS AND WHAT YOU CAN DO ABOUT IT

A Few Simple Rules

THE SIGNS OF ACID STOMACH

Nervousness, Neuralgia, Indigestion, Auto-intoxication, Sour Stomach, Mouth Acidity, Nausea, Loss of Appetite, Frequent Headaches, Feeling of Weakness, Sleeplessness

WHAT TO DO FOR IT



TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

According to many authorities, some 80% of the people of today have acid stomach. This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

It usually makes itself felt in headaches, nausea, "gas," "biliousness," and most frequently in stomach pains that come about thirty minutes after eating. So you can easily tell if you have it.

Now Quickly and Easily Corrected

If you do have acid stomach, don't worry about it. You can correct it in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia with a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

What This Does

That's all you do. But you do it regularly, EVERY DAY, so long as you have any symptoms of distress.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy.

Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM:

Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia

Neutralizes Food and Tobacco Acids a few minutes after taking.

Real Sea Shells Add Smartness to Home Meals

Novel Food Containers May Be Reused.

BY MARY MEADE.

"She sells sea shells by the sea shore——"

So ran the old jingle around which we used to dare each other to wrap his tongue. But now the facts have upset the shibboleth and it's a lot easier to observe that "she sells sea shells at the stores" and get a mark for truth telling to boot!

For, though a lot of folk haven't discovered it yet, one of the smartest ways to lend sophisticated swank to the home meal or special bridge luncheon—at little expense and no more work—is to add fish cookery in real honest to goodness sea shells to our list of accomplishments. These thin, sturdy little half shells which have been gathered by the truckload, cleaned, and usually polished for the market, are to be found in most well stocked department stores for around $1 a dozen. Sizes vary- 4, 5, and 6 inch shells seeming to make the best little ramekins for individual service. One uses them, washes, dries, and stacks them away.

Or you might vary the order and take home a once around of those colored chinalike little casseroles, each formed in the shape of a shell and used for the same purpose as the real ones. These come most often in convenient 5 inch sizes.

Then, once you are well equipped with shells, go adventuring in ways to fill them with the greatest variety of deliciousness. The dish should properly, of course, be a fish one—though it needn't be from the shell fish list unless your soul so dictates.

Deviled or scalloped shrimp, crab, lobster, clam, scallops or well seasoned minced mixtures from any of the finny tribe make delectable fillers. There is usually a creamed background to the mixture which, once in the shell, receives a brisk oven baking to brown it delicately. Of course, if yours happens to be a lobster or a clam devil, you will have the double choice of putting it back in its own shell and so serving it, or of making use of department store shells.

First then, for a deviled dish baked in its own or in bought shells.

DEVILED CRABS IN THE SHELL.

2 tablespoons butter.
1 teaspoon minced onion.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 cup scalded milk.
1 cup hot meat stock [or 1 bouillon cube and 1 cup boiling water].
1½ tablespoons peppy sauce.
½ teaspoon mustard.
¼ teaspoon nutmeg.
½ teaspoon salt.
Pepper to taste.
2 tablespoons minced parsley.
1 hard cooked egg, chopped fine.
2½ cups crab meat cooked in
3 tablespoons butter.
Bread crumbs.

Melt the butter in a frying pan and heat the onion in it till golden brown. Stir in the flour, and when smooth, add gradually the milk and stock, stirring and cooking until the mixture is thickened. Now blend the mustard with the peppy sauce and add, together with the seasonings, chopped egg, and parsley. Finally turn in the crab meat which has been pan fried quickly in the 3 tablespoons of butter. Blend carefully and taste for just the correct amount of seasoning. When it just suits your critical palate, turn the mixture into the oiled crab shells or into greased baking shells. Dot with butter and a sprinkling of fresh bread crumbs and heat just to a golden brown in a moderate oven [350 degrees F.]. This will fill about 8 of the 6 inch shells. A little green pepper mixed and added with the onion will add a flash of color and a dash of zest to the taste.

Baby Cannot Adjust Self to New Person

Time Required for This, Says Mrs. Bevans.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

The mail brings this interesting letter:

"You have touched on this subject at some time or other. But for the especial benefit of a baby's daddy, mother and friends, won't you commit yourself again?

"We have a boy 19 months old, and from infancy on, with a few rare exceptions and for short periods of time, he has seen only his mother, daddy and maid. As a result he doesn't 'make up' with strangers easily. If he is allowed to recondile himself to the new entrant, and if ignored and left completely alone, he will, of his own accord, make the advances. He is really a friendly baby and very affectionate.

"It has been necessary to lose our maid and therefore to hire another. It is apparent that the baby likes her, as he plays with her and follows her around. But he refuses to let her feed or dress him, and if she attempts to do either he cries continuously until I come to her rescue.

"The baby's daddy maintains that it's all utter foolishness; that the child is being pampered and spoiled. But I believe I ought to take charge of him until the maid has been here at least a couple of weeks.

"Should a stranger be forced upon him, so to speak, or should he be allowed time to acquaint himself with the new person? Your opinion and advice will be appreciated so much."

There is no reason why the baby should accept instantly this new person in every intimate detail of his life. I think he is showing great adaptability if, in much less than two weeks, he plays with and follows around a new maid—especially in view of the fact that he has not been put in the way of meeting strangers frequently. And especially in view of another fact, which is that children, who as small babies will "go to any one," frequently become reluctant to do so at the age of this little boy. This is a really great change in his world, although it does not seem so to his father. He must have time to adapt himself to it.

Simple to Make Dress Has Chic French Accents

WOMAN'S OR MISS' DRESS.

Here is a smart street dress, easy to make, and yet with a few Paris touches to prevent its looking ordinary. These features are the tucked sleeves, the cut of the front bodice, and the clever idea of slipping the scarf through an opening, and allowing it to fall nearly to the waistline. Any of the silk crêpes will make up beautifully.

The pattern, No. 3499, comes in sizes 14, 16, 18, and 20 years, and 36, 38, and 40 inches bust measure. Size 16 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material with ½ yard of 39 inch contrasting.

Miss Margaret Lynde Engaged to E. V. O'Brien

Winnetka Neighbors for Many Years.

to wear the little red ribbon of a Chevalier of the Legion D'Honneur of France after April 11, for on that night Rene Weiller, the French consul, will decorate the former mayor in recognition of his work as commandant of the American Red Cross in Toul during the war and for his friendship for France and interest in French art for many years. Mrs. Harrison had the Palmes Academique bestowed upon her before the war for her literary achievements.

Yesterday afternoon in a South Michigan avenue shop a large gathering of women noted that enormous shoulders, crazy hats, and gloves of pique, print, silk, and organdie were the salient characteristics of fashion as shown by the Lighthouse Volunteer Aids for the benefit of the Chicago Lighthouse for the Blind. Due to the illness of her children Mrs. Franklin G. Clement could not model and Miss Marie Castle substituted for her.

Miss Castle was particularly stunning in a swagger coat of dark green tweed and a maching "foreign legion" hat.

Miss Alice Bremner was so beautiful in everything she modeled that one could not choose the prettiest among her dresses, and Miss Ethel Dixon caused a great deal of comment when she showed a beige coat worn over a brown print dress, and brimmed hat, gloves, and huge ascot scarf, all in the same brown print.

Miss Jane Fortune, ravishing in a cool looking sand colored dress with a two-thirds coat that had interesting sable trimmed sleeves, and Miss Barbara Graf displayed their clothes with the poise and confidence that the "second year out" girl gains with her umpteenth fashion show. Miss Marion Gordon answered unceasingly "53" to the demands of "What number are you?" asked by the women who were struck by her loveliness in an ankle length afternoon gown and becoming large "conservative" hat. Miss Julia Kramer, Mrs. Jane W. Clark, Mrs. Philip A. Copenhaver and Mrs. Louis C. Sudler also were attractive models.

Oak Park Juniors Plan Benefit

The luncheon that the Oak Park juniors and the junior auxiliary of the Infant Welfare society gave yesterday at the "900" wasn't heralded as a fashion show, but it was a grand display of smart new spring clothes, just the same. Mrs. Harold Allen Davis, co-chairman with Mrs. Robert E. Cantwell Jr. of the charity ball that the group is giving on April 21, made a short talk about plans for the ball, looking as if she were about to model in a fashion promenade in a blouse of white wide ribbed pique with pagoda sleeves that ended just below the elbows, a jockey cap-hat of shiny black straw with a narrow band of white around it, and a black skirt.

Mrs. Cantwell's costume, while more conservative, was attractive also, consisting of a black suit with a "cat's whiskers" bow scarf of black, Eleanor blue and white and a narrow brimmed hat of shiny black straw.

Mrs. D. Mark Cummings and her corps of capable assistants, Mrs. Charles Foskett, Mrs. Walter Schmidt, Mrs. John Willis, Mrs. Howard Bartling, Miss Mary Reed, and Miss Beslyn Coppelo, will be on hand at the White Elephant Rummage shop at 27 East Ohio street tomorrow to act as saleswomen at the monthly home dressmakers' sale. The proceeds of the shop go to the Children's Memorial hospital.

As soon as Mrs. Thomas H. Fisher gets back in town today from Minneapolis she is going to start work on the "moderne" furnishings for her new steel house on the Fisher compound in Winnetka. The house is already furnished modernistically, but the chairs and tables are the property of the company that Mr. Fisher's brother, Howard, represents and they're soon to be removed to A Century of Progress for exhibit.

Right now two friends of the Fisher family are occupying the little house, but they will be moving out in another week in time for the Fishers to resettle it and move in by the middle of April. Then there will be plans for a housewarming, for all of their friends are perfectly crazy to investigate this new version of the housing problem.

Mrs. Fisher came back from California last Friday, but she's been on the go every minute since. That night she boarded a train for Indianapolis and on her return Sunday remained in town only long enough to repack her bags and set out for Minneapolis. This week-end Mr. Fisher is going down to New York on a short business trip.

New York Leads in Congress of Women Project

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Chicago's position as the hostess city for A Century of Progress is threatened with complete eclipse by the activities of New York women on behalf of the congress of women to be held here during the exposition. Miss Lena Madesin Phillips, president of the National Council of Women, so announced, more in sorrow than in resentment, on her arrival here yesterday. She will remain until Saturday at the Palmer house.

"The relative enthusiasm for the Fair among women of the two cities may be measured in terms of the total of signatures on petitions circulated in both places," she explained. "The goal set was a million names of clubwomen, to be sent to governments abroad, asking them to delegate famous women to represent each country at the women's congress, July 16 to 22. Of the 850,000 obtained to date Chicago has contributed only 29,846. New York has placed 127,665 names on the lists. These records will be incorporated in the permanent exhibit at the exposition.

"I am completely at a loss to understand why this should be."

At 2 o'clock this afternoon Miss Phillips will address an open meeting of clubwomen in the theater of the Chicago Woman's club, 72 East 11th street, on the program for feminine participation in A Century of Progress.

Modern Engaged Girl Refuses to Accept Grandmother's Code

BY DORIS BLAKE.

Being engaged these days isn't, from all accounts, any easier than being married and "living happily ever after."

The modern girl is not willing to be shunted aside and labeled "sold" just because she's sporting one man's diamond. She still wants to be in the thick of the fun, all of which is hard on the young man who believes that when a girl is engaged she's his and no one's else. It's just another angle of man's clinging to the old male precepts about woman and her place in the scheme of things, as opposed to the modern woman's own ideas on the subject.

Luckily for the modern girl, not all men are schooled in the tradition of their forbears. But some of them do keep on believing that a modern engaged girl should behave as an engaged girl behaved in grandmother's day.

"Betty" got the ring not long ago. Before the momentous occasion, "Bet" and her "Johnny" got along beautifully. With the giving of the ring, "Johnny" turned dictator. "Betty" is told not to dance with this young man or that, because Johnny doesn't like him. They're engaged, so Betty should give her Johnny all the attention when they are out in company.

Bet has an invitation to a week-end party. Johnny is not included. He says it isn't right for an engaged girl to go away on parties like that.

We fear Johnny will have to be taken aside and told a few things about this exasperating modern creature. She'll go where she pleases and she'll dance with whom she pleases and even flirt, if she pleases. Personally, we'd like to see the Johnnies get a little more for their diamond money, but that's the modern girl for you, and what can be done about it?

TWO-TO-ONE LEAVENING TAKES CARE OF ITSELF

Handle dough your own way... Rumford rises the right amount at the right time!

RUMFORD leavens twice. Each leavening makes dough or batter rise just the right amount at the right time to assure perfect results.

Rumford starts its work when you mix it. You can tell by the lightness of Rumford dough or batter. When you put it in the oven it is two-thirds leavened. The remaining one-third takes place in the heat of the oven. That's why Rumford is called the Two-to-One Leavener and that's why Rumford leavening is always perfect.

You get Two-to-One leavening only with a pure all-phosphate powder. The 2% to 18% of phosphate added to some powders does not make them ALL-PHOSPHATE powders nor assure Two-to-One leavening. The phosphate content of Rumford is 100%. That makes the big difference.

And in addition to its leavening power the phosphate in Rumford adds real food value to cakes and hot breads, supplying calcium valuable in building strong bones and teeth. FOR BETTER RESULTS USE—

DON'T HURRY RUMFORD leavening is perfect whether dough is handled fast or slow...

MOVE TO ADMIT MORE FARMERS' MILK TO CHICAGO

City Starts Inspection at Additional Plants.

BY PAUL POTTER.

The Chicago board of health yesterday anounced that it had let down the bars which have been set up since June, 1932, against inspecting any new dairy farms for the Chicago metropolitan milk and cream market.

A group of inspectors who have just completed the reinspection of farms in Wisconsin were given a list of applications from northern Illinois farmers and following orders from Dr. Herman N. Bundensen, president of the board of health, were told to take the farmers in the order their applications were received, "with due regard to the board's measures of economy."

The announcement, which has been awaited by nearly 2,000 farmers, was made yesterday preceding a meeting of Dr. Bundensen and delegations of dairymen from Boone and McHenry counties at the city hall.

Stick to Compact Area Policy.

Assurance was given the farmer representatives that the board was proceeding on its policy of gradually drawing in the area from which milk and cream for Chicago would be obtained and that this policy would be pursued "for as long as it takes to achieve the securing of an ample and wholesome milk supply from an economical area."

Dr. Bundesen pointed out that with A Century of Progress exposition only a few weeks away the influx of visitors to Chicago would require a materially increased quantity of milk and cream. He declared that a survey had shown that all of the added supply could be obtained within an area of less than 100 miles of Chicago.

"We have found that several large dairy plants owned by Chicago dairy companies and now under Chicago inspection are being used largely to produce canned milk or surplus products while we are obliged to send inspectors several hundred miles to approve cream supplies for this market," Dr. Bundesen told the dairymen. "There are many other dairy plants within a short distance of Chicago whose supply can be made available for this market and which will be granted inspection as fast as our limited inspection budget permits."

Policy Caused by Budget Slash.

Dr. Bundesen explained that the inspection of additional farms had been stopped since last summer due to a slash of $500,000 in the board of health budget. This, he said, left only 20 field inspectors, all under civil service, to reinspect the farms and milk plants supplied by 24,000 farmers in Wisconsin, Illinois, Michigan, and Indiana.

Since that time, he added, several dairy plants have been taken from the approved list, and reinspections have reached the point where new farms in Illinois may be added.

It was estimated that the 80 per cent of Chicago's cream supply now coming from distant points involves about $15,000,000 annually.

"L" PASSENGER AVERTS ESCAPE OF 9 PRISONERS

Nine young hoodlums, each under a one year sentence in the House of Correction, attempted to escape late yesterday from the fifth floor bullpen in the police building, 11th and State streets.

All had been sentenced earlier in the day and placed in the bullpen preparatory to removal to the Bridewell. About 5:30 o'clock they began action to escape.

Indian fashion, they rammed one end of a large wooden bench against the window bars of their cell. They timed each ramming with the passing of an elevated train. The noise of the trains, which pass in the rear of the police building, drowned the crashing sound of the rammings and prevented detection by the police guards.

However, the scheme failed because an observant "L" passenger, looking up at the police building, noticed the attempts and notified Lieut. Richard Barry. Barry ended furthr efforts of the young prisoners. They had already loosened three bars.

AUDITOR WILL TESTIFY TODAY IN BANK TRIAL

The introduction of voluminous records setting forth the operations of the former officials of the closed City State bank occupied most of the day in Judge Francis B. Allegretti's court yesterday where five of the officials are on trial on charges of accepting deposits while the bank was insolvent.

John J. Bailey, auditor for the state's attorney, is expected to be the prosecution's first and most important witness this morning when the hearing is resumed. Bailey will analyze financial transactions in the bank and its affiliates from an investigation he made after the closing on Nov. 2, 1929.

A motion for a directed verdict of not guilty for Morrison Castle, former director, one of the defendants, was denied yesterday by Judge Allegretti. The other four defendants are Seymour Stedman, and Alexander Jarema, former vice presidents, and Edwin G. Rellihen and Bennett J. C. Johnson, former directors. Stedman was once a Socialist candidate for mayor.

$150,000 SAVING IS SEEN IN NEW STREET LAMPS

A change in the design of street lamps in residential districts, instituted by William A. Jackson, commissioner of gas and electricity, will save the city $150,000 a year in maintenance and repair charges and increase the illumination from the lamps 30 per cent. Mr. Jackson asserted yesterday.

For its residential districts the city has been using frosted, rippled glass globes, inclosing a clear glass bulb. There was a heavy breakage of the globes, about 35,000 a year out of 95,000 units, and they had to be washed at intervals. Now the globes have been replaced by harp-shaped standards, in which are suspended an aluminum reflector and a frosted bulb.

About 20,000 of the old globes will be replaced by the new standards this year, and the new lights will be installed throughout the city by the end of 1934, Mr. Jackson said. The globes which are replaced this year will be used for breakage replacements in the districts where the old type of lights is still in use, materially reducing the city's supply bills.

JESSE LIVERMORE MARRIES OMAHA SOCIETY WOMAN

Wedding Last Thursday at Geneva Is Revealed.

Jesse L. Livermore, stock and grain market speculator, and Mrs. A. Warren Noble, society leader and concert singer of Omaha, formally anounced here yesterday that they were married last Thursday in Geneva, Ill. Mrs. Livermore is 38 years old and her husband 55. They plan to make their home in Chicago.

Their marriage was kept secret, Mr. Livermore said, because they had planned to anounce it as a surprise next Saturday at a celebration of the bride's family at Omaha in honor of the 70th birthday of her father, Frederick Metz. The news got out, however, and the couple decided yesterday to make their formal announcement.

Staying with Chicago Friends.

The ceremony was performed by the Rev. Frazer Bell, pastor of the Congregational church in Geneva. The witnesses were Mr. and Mrs. John M. Hutchins, 232 East Walton place, Chicago, with whom the bride and bridegroom are staying.

Mrs. Livermore, the former Harriet Metz, is a charter member of the Junior league of Omaha. Since the death of her second husband in 1930 she has lived in Vienna, where she studied voice culture. Mr. Livermore also has been married twice before. His second wife was granted a divorce a year ago in Reno.

Once Known as "Boy Plunger."

While in his twenties Livermore acquired the sobriquet, "boy plunger of Wall street," because of his spectacular market operations. He is credited with having amassed millions from his transactions in stocks and grains.

EVANSTON GIVEN FIRST PRIZE IN SAFETY CONTEST

City officials of Evanston were guests yesterday at a joint luncheon given by the chamber of commerce and Kiwanis club in the Orrington hotel in honor of Evanston's victory in the annual traffic safety contest conducted by the National Safety council in 442 cities and towns last year.

W. H. Cameron, managing director of the council, presented to Mayor Charles H. Bartlett the grand prize, a bronze plaque. The affair was broadcast over a country-wide network. Among the guests of honor were Mrs. James A. Patten, Walter Dill Scott, president of Northwestern university, and Police Chief W. O. Freeman.

At a luncheon in La Grange Sidney J. Williams, director of public safety in that town, presented to officials of La Grange Park a similar plaqué in recognition of the village's victory in its particular population class in the contest.

6 ALLEGED BEER RUNNERS HELD IN HOTEL SHOOTING

Six alleged Canadian beer runners were held by police last night for questioning in the shooting of John Carrick, 26 years old, of Detroit, in his room at Royalton hotel, 6213 University avenue.

Carrick, now in the Woodlawn hospital, and his companion, Michael Welch of Wyandotte, Mich., were fired upon early yesterday by two men whom they identified as Sidney Ranca and Jack [Babe] Neff, rival beer runners. Welch escaped injury by hiding under a bed. The shooting was over a hijacking in which Randall and Neff suspected Welch and Carrick, police were told. The alleged assailants are now being sought.

As a result of the stories of Carrick and Welch, Capt. William Killeen of Woodlawn station arrested six of their friends, Albert Cuttrell, Peter Bathis, Harold Hoffman, Earl Johansen, Andrew Bednar, and Harold Stewart.

"These Canadian beer runners are different from our Chicago hoodlums," commented Capt. Killeen. "They sing like canaries; they're willing to talk and give names. Our boys speak with guns."

CHICAGO BOXERS MEET NEW YORK TONIGHT

OLD UNCLE JOE IS HAPPY WITH DAFFINESS BOYS

Judge Goes On and On as Star.

BY WESTBROOK PEGLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Miami, Fla., March 28.—After 17 years of work for Clark Griffith's Washington ball club in the American league, Uncle Joe Judge finds himself starting all over with the Brooklyn Dodgers, the erstwhile daffiness boys of Wilbert Robinson, claiming the old gams, or legs, are just as spry as they were the very day when Griffith, from a seat in the stand in Rochester, N. Y., bought him for $3,000 and led him away by the hand.

JOE JUDGE.

That day there were five other major league managers in the Rochester ball yard searching for talent and that same p. m. Charlie Jamieson, also of Rochester, was haltered for the Cleveland club and taken away to encounter his long, illustrious future.

Both Boys Were Wrong.

One afternoon last winter, as Uncle Joe sat moodily on the back of his neck in a leather chair in a hotel lobby at the baseball meetings, doing some quiet pining for himself and wishing somebody would offer him a job of work, out from behind a potted palm popped his old comrade, Charlie. Uncle Joe remarked to him that here was a strange though unhappy coincidence.

"Sit down along side here and pine with me," Uncle Joe said, "because it looks as though we boys who came up to the majors together on the same day are going down together."

"Well, speak for yourself," Mr. Jamieson said, "but don't count me in with you because I am all set for another year. Aren't you set?"

"No," said Uncle Joe, "I am not set, but I am glad to hear that you are."

And the next day Mr. Judge read in the papers where it said that Charlie Jamieson had been released from his job, too. But presently, after some trying days, the Brooklyns gave Joe a job for one year, anyway, and not long after that he saw where the Indians had changed their plan as to Charlie and hired him back, postponing the strange, unhappy coincidence indefinitely.

Joe Wanted a Chance.

After 17 years in Washington, Uncle Joe leaves the employ of Mr. Griffith feeling as though such long and efficient and comforting service as he gave should have been rewarded with a trial in the manager's job.

Walter Johnson had had it, and now that Walter was being turned loose with a special bonus of Mr. Griffith's sincere good wishes Uncle Joe reckoned that as the next man in line and a knowing baseball man as well he ought to be allowed his fling. But the trouble was that business conditions being as they were, Mr. Griffith couldn't afford to hire a manager and was going to take the team out on the road himself. To which Uncle Joe said, "Your health won't stand it," and Griffith replied, "My health has got to stand it."

Right after that there began a newspaper popularity contest to let the customers express their choice for manager of the Washington ball club, and the early returns were showing Uncle Joe way out in front and the rest nowhere when the contest stopped abruptly.

Griffith Remembers Harris.

Old Mr. Griffith is by no means a bashful character, who would hesitate to tell a publisher how to run a newspaper, although it sometimes riles him to be told how to run his baseball firm. Anyway, the balloting stopped before the people's choice could be fully indicated, and Joe Cronin was named manager. He didn't cost much more than a little tip beyond his regular hire, and the best luck that Mr. Griffith ever had had was brought to him by another boy manager, Bucky Harris, who won two pennants for him.

Then, for his pride, Uncle Joe asked for his release, not wishing to stay in Washington after being passed over so conspicuously, and Mr. Griffith said something about making a deal for him.

"Make a deal for me!" Uncle Joe exclaimed. "You paid $3,000 for me in the first place, and now you want to make some more money out of me after seventeen years."

"Well," Mr. Griffith said to Uncle Joe, "nobody ever gave me anything."

He Outlasts Relief.

But he got his release, and now here is Uncle Joe playing ball in a strange suit of clothes in a strange league and enjoying the good will of one and all on the field and in the stands, because there has never been a more faithful hand in the baseball business nor one less troublesome, not even excepting Walter Johnson himself, who is one of the saints of the game, than Judge, 1b, so long of Washington.

Outfielders are long lived in base-

GREGORY LIMITS OAKS TO 5 HITS; SOX TRIUMPH, 3-0

Georgian First Chicagoan to Go Route.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Oakland, Cal., March 28.—Paul Gregory, the lengthy Georgia youngster, stepped up today and stole the spring camp thunder from other members of the White Sox pitching department. The second edition of Ted Lyons became the first to pitch nine full innings and he did it with such neatness that the Chicagoans had little difficulty whipping the Oakland team of the Coast league, 3 to 0.

All the Oaks could gather off the budding right hander was five singles and one of these was a fluke. Two came together in the second inning, but were nullified by a double play. One of the opened the third and a double play also stopped this bid. Then not another Oak accomplished anything until the ninth.

Sox Attack Lags.

The Sox hitting was sufficient to serve the day's purpose, but it was not sufficiently devastating to sustain the belief that Fonseca will have a bruising attack all summer. The deficiency today naturally was due to the impotency of Al Simmons, who failed on four successive occasions.

The Sox opened the game in a tuneful fashion. The first three batters singled in the first inning. Two runs came out of this, despite a double play. Hayes led off with a hit to right and Swanson one to center. Fonseca hit safely to left, scoring Hayes and moving Swanson to third. This was an ideal spot for Simmons, but he grounded to the shortstop for a double play, during which Swanson scored.

Sox Get Another.

After Simmons had filed out to start the fourth inning, two hits produced the third and last run. Appling singled to deep short and stopped at third on Kress' double against the left field fence. This situation excited McEvoy and he unleashed a wild pitch, letting Appling score and moving Kress to third. Grube walked and a double steal was attempted. It didn't come even close. The pitcher intercepted the catcher's throw to second and Kress was caught flatfooted between third and home.

The ninth inning took some of the luster from Gregory's performance and also came close to beating him. It started with Grube stepping in front of the plate to take pinch hitter Lavaghetti's high popup. Grube looked into the sun, lost the ball and it fell for a single, but Lavaghetti tried to reach second and Grube threw him out. Chosen singled to center and the game should have ended on Mailho's tap to Appling, but Hayes was so long finding the base with his foot that he lost half of an easy double play. Gregory then walked two men, filling the bases, but Pool bounced to Appling.

WINN'S GROUP KEEPS HOLD ON TURF ASSOCIATION

Louisville, Ky., March 28.—[Special.]—Federal Judge A. M. J. Cochran today approved the American Turf association's purchase of $6,000 shares of its own stock at $8 a share from Paul C. Keyes, receiver of the National Bank of Kentucky. A proxy fight for control of the association is now in progress.

The stock deal was seen as a move to keep the control in the hands of the present management, of which Col. Matt Winn is the head.

GO IN THERE AND WHIP NEW YORK!

Dr. Anderson Named Coach at Holy Cross

Dr. Edward Anderson, former football star at Notre Dame, yesterday was appointed head football coach at Holy Cross college, Worcester, Mass. Dr. Anderson has been practicing medicine in Chicago since resigning as coach at De Paul university two years ago.

DR. EDWARD ANDERSON.

Dr. Anderson succeeds Capt. John J. McEwan as leader of the Holy Cross eleven. He will leave for Worcester tonight to talk over spring practice plans with the Rev. P. Y. Phelan, faculty director of athletics.

One of Greatest Ends.

Anderson was graduated from Notre Dame in 1922. He played end on the varsity eleven under Knute Rockne for three seasons, in addition to the war year of 1918, which did not count against a man's period of eligibility. He was rated by the late Walter Eckersall as one of the greatest ends in the history of football.

After finishing his studies at Notre Dame, Anderson was engaged as football and basketball coach at Columbia college, Dubuque, Ia., where he remained for three years with splendid success. His football teams won the Iowa conference championship in 1922 and 1924.

Studies as He Coaches.

The following year he accepted an offer to serve as football coach at De Paul university. The opportunity to take up medicine was an important factor in his decision to move to Chicago. He pursued his medical studies while coaching at De Paul and was graduated from Rush college in 1929.

Anderson has had five years' experience in professional football as a member of the Chicago Cardinals and Chicago Bulls. He was captain of the Cardinals in 1926.

SHIRES GOES ON BRAVES' AUCTION BLOCK FOR $7,000

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Charles Arthur [the Great] Shires, former first baseman of the Chicago White Sox, has been placed on the auction block by the Boston Braves, it was reported today. A sales tag of $7,000 is said to be attached to the "I" man.

Talking it Over

BY ARCH WARD.

THIS is the night Chicago fights New York for the series lead in intercity Golden Gloves. It may be just another night to you, but to the 32 young men who climb into the ring at Chicago Stadium it is the night of their lives.

Tonight marks the climax of the greatest tournament in the history of amateur boxing. The success of the young men in reaching this goal justifies weeks of hard work and bitter battles. They are the survivors of a field of 10,000 that started the quest of Golden Gloves in New York and Chicago two months ago.

These remarks concern the boys who make up the Chicago squad. This probably will be the last time they ever will be together. After the bouts tonight they will be taken to the Germania club for a dinner with their New York opponents. Then they will go back to their jobs and to their classrooms.

For the last three weeks they have been enjoying the thrills and experiences usually reserved for college athletes. They have come to appreciate the meaning of team spirit, the feeling of fighting shoulder to shoulder against a common foe.

Some of them probably will enter professional boxing. Others will continue to prepare themselves for more permanent success. Some will pass into obscurity.

No matter what becomes of them they have proved themselves gentlemen of the highest rank since they enrolled under the banner of Golden Gloves. No college group ever conducted itself with greater decorum, with more consideration for the rights of others. Inside and outside the ring they have learned how to give and how to take.

There are no favorites in Golden Gloves. It is individual conflict, one man against another, and one victory counts as much as another. But the 1933 Chicago team has been fortunate in having as co-captains during its training period the services of Leo Rodak and Freddie Caserio. Max Marek, another leader of their type, will be captain in the bouts tonight. Max is a student at St. Viator college and was unable to attend all the training sessions.

I remember well Rodak's introduction to Golden Gloves. It was in the White City qualifying trials of 1931. He weighed 112 pounds. Nobody had heard of him as a boxer and it wasn't until he reached the last round of that meet that he began to attract attention. He carried on through the Tournament of Champions, eliminating one opponent after another until he won his Golden Glove. There was no stopping him against New York or in the international bouts with France.

Rodak came back to Golden Gloves a year ago as a bantamweight. Again he battled his way through the field. This year he was still heavier and had to move up to the featherweight class. Nobody in Chicagoland could stop him at that weight, either. So for the first time in the history of Golden Gloves, New York, or Chicago, Rodak is a three time champion.

This probably will be his last intercity match. If you appreciate a boy with a fighting heart, if you admire a lad who proves himself a gentleman even in the heat of conflict, give him a hand when he squares off against Pat Robinson of New York tonight. There aren't many Rodaks in sport.

Now a word about Caserio. He captained the 1931 Chicago team, which stands out as the strongest amateur squad ever developed. It whipped New York, 13 bouts to three, and defeated France, 5 to 3. He remained out of Golden Gloves last year to prepare for the Olympic games. He won the National A. A. U. 160 pound championship.

Like Rodak, Caserio has been a strong influence for team spirit on this year's squad. He is my idea of a boxing thoroughbred. I have a hunch that he feels he will knock out his New York opponent, but there is nothing arrogant or cocksure about him. Instead he is enveloped in an unmistakable serenity born of absolute confidence in his own ability. He may be proved wrong, but until then he has taken unto himself the privilege of complete self-reliance. He is a young man who believes in himself.

Chicago tonight is fighting probably the strongest team that could be recruited anywhere. It is going to be a terrific battle all the way.

But no matter what happens, have consideration for the boys fighting it out under the glare of the lights. They are the bravest of the brave, or they wouldn't be there.

They merit your support.

DENY REPORT SCHMELING TO MEET SHARKEY

New York, March 28.—[Special.]—Jack Dempsey and Madison Square Garden officials today denied reports that they were planning an alliance to promote a bout between Jack Sharkey, world's heavyweight champion, and Max Schmeling, from whom he won the title.

It had been rumored that Sharkey and Schmeling were to fight each other instead of Primo Carnera and Max Baer, respectively. Dempsey has scheduled the Schmeling-Baer bout for the Yankee stadium June 1, and the Madison Square Garden corporation is promoting the Sharkey-Carnera fight.

9,000 SEATS

You still have time to buy tickets for the biggest amateur boxing show of the year—Chicago vs. New York—at Chicago Stadium tonight. There are 9,000 unsold seats in all sections of the building.

They will be on sale all day at the Madison street entrance of the Stadium, at the Tribune Public Service Office, 1 S. Dearborn street, and at Room 530 Tribune Tower.

Nine box offices on both sides of the Stadium will be opened at 6 o'clock this evening. There will be room for everybody.

New York and Chicago are even in intercity competition. Each has two victories and a tie. Both cities this year claim the strongest teams in their history.

Sixteen bouts! Thirty-two boxers out of an original field of 10,000.

The prices are $1.10, $2.20 and $3.30

IT'LL BE CLOSE, NO MATTER WHICH TEAM IS VICTOR

16 Great Fights to Decide Intercity Winner.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Chicago or New York? That's the question today as the Golden Gloves championship teams prepare for the sixth annual intercity bouts tonight at the Stadium.

Tied in total number of bouts won in five years, with 40 to the credit of each city, and tied in team victories with two each, tonight's matches will settle the all time duel. More than this, New York and Chicago admit that each is represented by the greatest team of amateur boxers in the history of Golden Gloves.

Each Side Confident.

New York may win. At least they are confident of victory, despite attempts to appear uncertain. Chicago believes its team of 16 fighters is superior to the 16 New York will send to the ring.

Chicago's boys finished training yesterday. The names of the fighters can be announced with the exception of 112 pound class, where a decision will not be made until the boys weigh in. Chicago's boys are in condition. Fred Caserio's eye is healed and the cut that Adolph Wiater received three days ago will not trouble him tonight. All of the boys are at weight. They are ready, and if they fail to win there will be no alibis.

Both teams will weigh in at the Illinois Athletic club this afternoon at 2 o'clock. New York was given the right to weigh in at the Medinah Michigan Avenue club, but the coaches insisted on a joint session and consented to visit the I. A. C. The out of town judges and referees will meet at noon at the Germania club with A. A. U. officials and team coaches to discuss the rules.

It's Still "Who Will Win?"

Preparations are finished. The question still remains. Who will win?

New York's greatest strength lies in the lighter weights. Since these will be fought first, it is likely that New York will jump into an early lead. But with the advent of the 126 pound class and particularly from the welters on to the end, Chicago believes it will be supreme.

Either Lenny Cohen or Walter Matthys will lead off the intercity rivalry. Then will come Johnny Baltzer, the 112 pound champion, who will meet Charley Greene, New York's Negro champion. Irving Goldstein and Bud Ginter, the 118 pound champion, will represent Chicago in the bantamweight division. Ginter will fight Julie Katz, a New York veteran and one of the greatest little men developed in eastern Golden Gloves.

Then the Featherweights.

So far there are to be four great fights, with four mighty close decisions for the judges and referees. Next on the program is George Van Der Heyden, the South Bend, Ind., featherweight. He will be backed up by Leo Rodak, the 126 pound champion who two years ago fought as the flyweight champion and last year as bantamweight champion, captained Chicago's team. Rodak is the only boy ever to win three titles either in Chicago or New York.

Rodak's opponent is expected to be Pat Robinson, a native of the West Indies, and a vicious scrapper. We pick Rodak to win, for Leo has been boxing better than ever during the two weeks of the drills at the I. A. C.

Johnny Dobler of Cleveland, O., and Eddie Ward, the lightweight champion, are Chicago's representatives in the next weight. Dobler is a stiff right hand puncher who won the Cleveland Golden Gloves title. Ward, the only Negro on the Chicago team, is a veritable whirlwind of action. He is a southpaw and when he throws that left hand something will happen.

Great Welterweight Pair.

Two great amateurs are Chicago's welterweight pair. Billy Celebron of Rockford, Ill., is the runnerup, the same position he occupied a year ago, and Henry Rothier, the champion, also is back again, he having won the 135 pound title a year ago. Rothier lost a close fight in New York, but whipped Germany's lightweight champion in the international fights at Soldiers' field last summer. Edwin Kolb is the New York welterweight champion.

Where could you find three bet-

BY FRENCH LANE.

New York and Chicago will wage their annual Golden Gloves amateur boxing battle tonight at the Chicago Stadium.

Two flyweights—Anthony Idone of New York and Leonard Cohen or Walter Mathys of Chicago—who weigh a wee 112 pounds, will climb into the ring just as the big Stadium clock strikes half-past 8, and the fight will be on.

Then for three hours small boys and large boys, the best amateur boxers in America, the stars from the east and the heroes from the central states, will be whaling away at one another in a fistic carnival that has grown into the most spectacular in the world.

Muster Strongest Teams.

Nine thousand tickets, many of them in good locations in the world's largest indoor arena, will be on sale today at The Tribune Public Service office, at The Tribune Tower, and at the Stadium box offices. If the fans grab them up today—and the sale for three days indicates they will—another enormous crowd will see the renewal of the famous intercity boxing quarrel.

It will be the sixth of the intercity struggles, with a deadlock existing as far as matches won and lost are concerned. Each team has two victories to its credit. One match resulted in a tie. So to break the deadlock New York and Chicago both have come up to this struggle with the most powerful teams that have ever represented either city.

Should the history of Intercity Golden Gloves encounters be repeated, most of those in the crowd will have little opportunity to enjoy the comfort of their big red chairs. In other words, they will be up on their feet in their excitement cheering most of the night.

Light Limbering Exercises.

The boxers, sixteen on each team, were idle yesterday except for light limbering up exercises and were ready and anxiously awaiting the high spot in their glove swinging activities. The spring weather brought the members of both teams out of their training quarters. The New Yorkers frolicked up and down Michigan avenue in the vicinity of the Medinah-Michigan Avenue club and the Chicagoans were down on Michigan avenue near the

RADIO MEN ARE GLAD; HERRMANN GOES TO ANGELS

Cubs Break Up Trio of Similar Names.

BY EDWARD BURNS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Los Angeles, Cal., March 28.—Chicago baseball radio fans who have been worrying about the threatened situation of having Herman, Herman, and Herrmann on the Cubs this season may breathe easier. There will be a Herman and another Herman but no Herrmann.

Leroy Herrmann, underhand pitcher who spent the last half of last year with the Cubs, after having won the remarkable total of 21 games for Los Angeles during the first half, today was sent back to the Angels on option.

Herrmann, a resident of Steward, Ill., failed to show much in his several appearances this year, but his failure did not influence the Angels management, which set up a clamor for his services several weeks ago. Decision to return him to the Angels was not reached until late this afternoon, however.

Taylor Is Gone, Too.

The release was the second of the day and the third within 24 hours. This morning First Baseman Harry Taylor was ordered to Albany in the International league. Buck Newsom, right handed speedball pitcher, who was released last night to the Los Angeles club, was in a balky mood today, having had a return of earthquake horror when he was informed that his Cub contract calling for $3,500 would be reduced to $2,750 at Los Angeles. It was said, however, that an adjustment of difficulties is imminent.

Cub officials had plenty of time to pow wow on the release proposition. The game scheduled with the Hollywood Stars was called off because of rain which fell at noon. Later the sun came out and the game could have been played. The squad is in such fine shape, however, that missing the day's workout caused no regrets.

The exception to the high health rating of the outfit was Reb Campbell, reserve catcher. Reb was sent to a hospital to go in training for a tonsil operation.

Meet Pirates Tomorrow.

The Cubs and the Stars will play tomorrow and Thursday the Cubs will open a four day series with the Pittsburgh Pirates, their last of the year on the coast.

President William Veeck, who for the first time in recent years, stayed with the Cubs during the entire training season, left for Chicago tonight to make preparations for the Chicago city series a week from Saturday. He was accompanied by President John Heydler of the National league.

Age Means Nothing to Joe Judge

ball and some pitchers go along for years past their frisky youth, doing one day's work in four or five, but Uncle Joe's longevity at first base, asking no favors, is one of those things that occasion such pieces as this. Several years ago, when it just seemed as though he ought to be falling away, Mr. Griffith brought in George Sisler to hang around and be ready to take over the job, but Sisler got through and vanished and Uncle Joe carried on past the outlaw Art Shires when he, too, was brought into the club to be there just in case.

The old gaffer was burying his own doctors and doing double-shuffles at their wakes.

He'll Like Flatbush.

He should find the Brooklyn atmosphere to his liking, for it is a curious fact that for many years old ball players considered to have been all through in other surroundings, have been coming briskly to life in Flatbush, which might be regarded as the boneyard and salvage plant of the major leagues.

They use crook handled bats in Brooklyn suitable for use as walking-sticks in rounding the bases, and old Jack Quinn, in deference to his years, is allowed a male nurse to fetch him out to the box and prop him up on days when he is called on for a little pitching with the arm that has pitched to Hal Chase and Lajoie and also to George H. Ruth.

And still they talk as brash and pert as juveniles about their chance to win the pennant.

This would crowd Uncle Joe's soul with pleasure because any money which he didn't lose in the Florida real estate boom he did lose when his bank fell in a few weeks ago, even to the railroad fare which the Brooklyns had sent him for the ride to the training camp at Coral Gables. That left him with no assets to speak of beyond Clark Griffith's good wishes, which bounced back with great force when he tried to pass them for a mess of groceries at the store.

Kirkwood Leads Field with 135 at Pinehurst

Pinehurst, N. C., March 28.—[Special.]—Joe Kirkwood of New York led the field in the North and South open golf tournament at the end of today's play, with a 36 hole score of 68—67—135. Craig Wood of Deal, N. J., shot 139 for second place. Then came Al Espinosa of Akron, O.; Tony Manero of Elmsford, N. Y., and Henry Picard of Charleston, S. C., with 143 each.

Judge Turnbull Again Named Outboard Head

Judge Rupert B. Turnbull of Monrovia, Cal., was reelected national commodore of the National Outboard association for the third successive year, it was announced at the completion of a mail vote yesterday. Phelps Ingersoll, Middletown, Conn., was elected vice commodore and P. A. Tanner, Waukegan, was named treasurer.

SMITTY—THE WORKS

Wisconsin Boxing Team Conquers Northwestern, 6-2

Madison, Wis., March 28.—[Special.]—The University of Wisconsin boxing team defeated Northwestern, 6 to 2, tonight in an eight bout show. Bill Nott, captain of the Northwestern team and 1932 Golden Gloves entrant, was knocked out in the second round after being knocked down twice for short counts. Fausto Rubini defeated him. Results:

118 POUND CLASS—Ralph Russell, Wisconsin, beat Will Amelotti, Northwestern [3].

126 POUND CLASS—David Horwitz, Wisconsin, knocked out Henry Gizmillist, Northwestern [2].

135 POUND CLASS — Herb Ginsburg, Northwestern, stopped Ted Dasler, Wisconsin [3].

140 POUND CLASS—Tony Curreri, Wisconsin, beat George Slining, Northwestern [3].

147 POUND CLASS—Fausto Rubini, Wisconsin, knocked out Bill Nott, Northwestern [2].

160 POUND CLASS—Art Enders, Wisconsin, beat Walter Rossborough, Northwestern [3].

175 POUND CLASS—John Sinco, Northwestern, beat Harry Koller, Wisconsin [3].

HEAVYWEIGHT CLASS — Max Knecht Wisconsin, beat Roy Babich, Northwestern [3].

It'll Be Close Duel No Matter Who Triumphs

ter middleweights than Fred Caserio, national A. A. U. champion. Jim Cummings, and Bill Treest. If New York crashes through these defenders, it will be the biggest upset of the tournament. Caserio captained Chicago's 1931 team of intercity winners.

Max Marek, tonight's captain, is Chicago's light heavyweight champion. He's the C. Y. O. title holder and one of the best amateurs in the country. Chicago depends on Marek for a victory over Bob Pastor, New York 175 pounder, in a battle that will be one of the best of the night. Ario Soldati of Rockford who fought in the Tournament of Champions as a heavyweight, but who has dropped to the 175 pound class during training, will support Marek in this division.

Pacek Fast and a Hitter.

John Pacek and Adolph Wiater are Chicago's heavyweights. Pacek is a bit light, but he is fast and can hit. Steve Dudas, the big gun of the New York squad, offers first rate competition. Wiater is a better boxer than puncher. However, that's just the ability he'll need tonight. Wiater represented Chicago in the light heavyweight class last summer against Germany and won his fight.

There's the lineup. Many of the bouts figure to be so close that an upset here or there may change the results of the team record. Certainly there shouldn't be a one sided score for either.

DOROTHY HACK PLAYS TONIGHT IN NET TOURNEY

Mrs. Dorothy Hack, western singles tennis champion, and Miss Lois Jacques, Wisconsin titleholder, will make their first appearance in the women's singles of the western indoor tournament at Broadway armory, Thorndale avenue and Broadway, tonight. Play in the second round of the men's singles also will be held. The first matches will start at 6 o'clock on four courts.

Among the favored players in the men's singles who will compete in the second round are T. Weller Kimball and Earl Tedding. Tedding is the ranking No. 1 player on Northwestern university's tennis squad. Kimball will meet Joseph Spence of Hamilton park, while Tedding is paired with Gallond of Oak Park. There will be approximately twenty matches tonight.

Chicago Meets New York in Stadium Ring

Illinois Athletic club. The Chicagoans also had Grant park at their disposal and frequently cavorted there as they tried to play off some of their stored up energy.

The spirit and the confidence of these lads who come from many walks of life and who have been willing to fight their way through many battles and undergo a long stamina proving training period are those of youngsters who find it a most difficult task to wait until they can get into action. Chicagoans and New Yorkers alike reminded every one of young sticks of dynamite with fuses sizzling.

Intermission After Eighth Bout.

There will be sixteen bouts, two in each weight division from the 112 pounders to the heavyweights. The bantamweights, featherweights, lightweights, welterweights, middleweights, light heavyweights, and heavies will pass in review in that order.

At the end of the eighth bout there will be a brief intermission during which ceremonies typical of Intercity Golden Gloves will be sandwiched into the program.

The results of the bouts will be broadcast over W-G-N beginning at 10 o'clock tonight.

To be sure, there are battles on the card that have caused much talk and advance speculation. The scraps of Marek against Pastor, Fred Caserio against Henry Balsamo, Rothier against Kolb, Rodak against Robinson, and Pacek of Chicago against Dudas of New York came in for no end of comment. The other bouts were attracting just about as much attention.

One victory counts as much in the scoring as another. And it frequently happens in a Golden Gloves carnival that a bout hardly regarded as of much importance will turn out to be the real thriller of the night.

Notables to Attend.

Most of Chicago's notables who turn out for every high spot affair whether it be sports, opera, or other events will be at the ringside. Seats have been reserved by Gov. Horner and several members of his staff. Acting Mayor Corr and many other political dignitaries also will be there. Society will be in attendance, and so will the girls and boys from along nearly every thoroughfare in Chicago. Members of the Chicago team come from every part of Chicago and the surrounding territory, and their neighbors and friends are always present to cheer them along.

The Intercity Golden Gloves match is sponsored each year by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE and the New York News. All profit goes to charity.

The bouts will be judged and refereed by neutral Amateur Athletic union officials who hail from nearly ever, part of the United States except from Chicago and New York.

A. A. U. QUINTETS OPEN MEET FOR TITLE TONIGHT

DETROIT BEATS MAROONS, 3-2; MEETS RANGERS

Wings Overcome Two Goal Early Lead.

Detroit, Mich., March 28.—(AP)—Detroit's Red Wings rallied tonight to score three goals and defeat the Montreal Maroons, 3 to 2, capturing the deciding second place play off match in the National Hockey league.

The victory matched Detroit against the New York Rangers for the semi-final series of the play offs, which opens in New York Thursday night.

The Maroons, handicapped by a 2 to 0 defeat by Detroit last Saturday night in Montreal, bore down from the starting whistle tonight. Hooley Smith, center, scored two quick goals midway in the second period.

Then Herbie Lewis, Detroit wing man, took a double pass from Carson and Sorrell to score. Early in the third period Ebbie Goodfellow tied the score at 2 to 2.

Late in the period Johnny Gallagher, Detroit defense man, rounded Conacher and won the match with a hard shot from close in.

Eddie Wiseman, Detroit wing man, was carried off the ice in the second period with a dislocated shoulder.

RANGERS BEAT CANADIENS

MONTREAL, March 28.—(AP)—The New York Rangers eliminated the Montreal Canadiens from the Stanley cup playoff by a margin of 4 goals to 5 in their two-game total-goal series when they rallied to gain a 3 to 3 tie tonight.

Facing the almost insuperable obstacle of a three goal deficit from Sunday's 5 to 2 defeat at New York, the Canadiens cut the margin to a single goal tonight before they weakened.

Through their victory the Rangers qualified to meet the Detroit Red Wings in the second two-game round. The winner of this series will advance to the Stanley cup finals.

Johnny Phagan, 1932 international Golden Gloves welterweight, is expected to receive his biggest professional test in an eight round bout against Dick Sisk of Brighton Park at the Cicero stadium Friday night. Phagan, a terrific right hand hitter, may have trouble landing on Dick, who is a fast and clever boxer.

Sisk boxed four rounds yesterday with Bud Saltis, north side middleweight. Saltis meets Ray Tramblie of Rockford in the six round semi-final. Tramblie, stablemate of Phagan, sparred four rounds with Johnny. Biff Bennett, Fort Sheridan heavyweight, was taken off the card last night because of illness. Promoter Billy Cepak is seeking a substitute to face Walter Madey.

Eddie Shea, south side fighter, is to return from Miami, Fla., Friday. He has been in Florida for two months. He had three matches, defeating Young Manuel Monday and knocking out Snooks Campbell and Freddy O'Connor.

Nate Lewis of the Chicago Stadium Operating company is attempting to arrange a match between King Levinsky and Charley Retzlaff to head a show at the Stadium next month. Levinsky was offered 20 per cent of the receipts, but he is holding out for 25. Retzlaff has accepted terms. Lewis also is trying to sign an opponent to meet Young Corbett, welterweight champion, in a nontitle engagement.

Amateur boxers from St. Elizabeth and Our Lady of Pompeii parishes will meet tomorrow at the C. Y. O. center, and Friday at St. George High school gymnasium boys from St. Philip are to face a team representing St. George.

Heeney Gets $200 for Bout; Once He Got $105,000

New York, March 28.—(AP)—In 1928 Tom Heeney of Australia received $105,000 for boxing Gene Tunney at the Yankee stadium in what was Tunney's last defense of the heavyweight title.

Last night "Auld Tamas," grizzled and slow, took a terrific beating from young Stanley Poreda in a ten round bout at the St. Nicholas Fight club and received just $200.

St. Clara, St. Rita Enter Girls' Basket Finals

St. Clara defeated North Side Lake View Presbiterian, 17 to 10. St. Rita beat St. James M. E., 24 to 21. Finalists in class B will be Visitation and Olivet. Visitation won the semi-final contest from St. Hilary, 18 to 12, while Olivet whipped Sacred Heart, 33 to 16.

RENEW RUTGERS, PRINCETON GRID SERIES NOV. 25

Princeton, N. J., March 28.—[Special.]—Princeton and Rutgers, America's oldest intercollegiate football rivals, will meet on the gridiron Nov. 25 for the first time since 1915. The game will be played here. This announcement was made today by the Princeton board of athletic control. Rutgers and Princeton teams met for the first time in 1869 and have played 29 times since then, Princeton winning every game but the first. Princeton now has its first nine game schedule since 1912. It follows:

Oct. 7, Amherst; Oct. 14, Williams; Oct. 21, Columbia; Oct. 28, Washington and Lee; Nov. 4, Brown at Providence; Nov. 11, Dartmouth; Nov. 18, Navy; Nov. 25, Rutgers; Dec. 2, Yale at New Haven.

MacKinnon Dropped from Minnesota Coaching Staff

Minneapolis, Minn., March 28.—[Special.]—Frank McCormick, director of athletics at the University of Minnesota, announced today that George MacKinnon is to be dropped from the football coaching staff in June, as an economy measure.

A. L. Chart Drawn to Aid Lagging Clubs

After months of juggling to make its 1933 schedule more attractive for the clubs needing choice dates to speed up business at the turnstiles, the American league has produced some notable changes from 1932.

The season inaugurals will be intrasectional affairs, as usual, opening on April 12 with Boston meeting the world champion New York Yankees at the Yankee stadium, Philadelphia at Washington, in the east, and Cleveland at Detroit and Chicago at St. Louis in the west. Last year Washing and Boston started one day early.

Conforming with the changes in the National league schedule, the eastern teams will move to the west on May 2. Last year the west went east May 6. The western clubs go east this season on May 16. This maneuver was accomplished June 7 a year ago.

The opening home games this season present another alteration. St. Louis will be at Chicago for the American league opening at Comiskey park on April 19. Detroit will open Cleveland's home season the same day, but Philadelphia will not see its team until April 20, when Washington plays there. Boston will wait another day, showing against the Yankees April 21.

75 MILES WITH AN EMPTY CRANKCASE is Not JUST "PUBLICITY STUFF"

We grant you that this positive truth about Conoco's *hidden quart is hard to believe. But don't discount it until you have read the "confession" of a former skeptic, Mr. M. A. Strauss of Hartline, Washington. It follows:

"I had always considered Conoco Germ Processed motor oil a superior oil, but the *hidden quart as just publicity stuff. I am now convinced of the truth of your statements.

"On the outskirts of Wilber, the pan of my car struck some rocks. I gave it no particular thought and drove on into Spokane at 40 or 45 miles per hour. Returning from Spokane, out about 8 miles, I noticed the pump not working. I put in Conoco and saw it run out the bottom. I investigated and found a square-inch hole. Only at Wilber could the accident have occurred. I realized I had driven fully 75 miles without oil. In addition I drove the 8 miles back to Spokane for a new pan and more Conoco."

*THE GERM PROCESS (exclusive Conoco patent) imparts to this motor oil that peculiar ability to penetrate and combine with metal surfaces. Of the first filling about one quart will "hide" itself up in your motor's precious working parts. This hidden quart n-e-v-e-r drains away. It becomes a part of the motor itself; worth its weight in gold.

The Oil You Can Trust in Emergencies Is Safest to Use Every Day

We publish Mr. Strauss' experience (and there are hundreds like it) to prove this point: If emergency demands, it is possible to drive many miles on the *hidden quart alone. Conoco is the only oil with the *hidden quart advantage. An oil that meets big emergencies, so ably, will meet daily demands with a margin of safety to spare.

When starting, unless your motor is blessed with a *hidden quart, it must run a few minutes without oil. Ordinary oils drain back into the crankcase, overnight. 50% of motor wear occurs during the "warm-up," while lubrication waits on the pump. This loss is needless. Drain and refill with the *hidden-quart oil, today.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Modest improvement was made by United States government securities today, but save for a similar movement in speculative railroad issues the rest of the bond list lacked a definite trend.

The government market finally found a mild stimulant in further ease in money conditions, together with the sale of an issue of treasury bills at an interest cost of 1.72 per cent, against 1.83 per cent on the last previous sale.

A premium of 27-32 bid was set up on the 4 per cent March 15 certificates, while the 4¼s sold at a premium of about 1⅝ points. Long term bonds shared in the advance, and strength was notable in issues due this year.

Strength of speculative railroad bonds was based partly on hopes that congress will see fit to approve plans for a consolidation of the big carrier networks into a limited number of systems. Traders foresee benefits to all rail securities in the substantial economies expected to result from such unification.

Public utility bonds continued in disfavor, both in the investment and speculative grades. The possibility of rate lowering by government decree continues to work against the group.

Irregularly lower prices ruled in the foreign bond division.

ARKANSAS PLAN TO TRADE BONDS MEETS PROTEST

Little Rock, Ark., March 28.—(AP)—New 25 year state bonds bearing 3 per cent interest were offered for exchange to the holders of approximately $146,000,000 of 4¼ per cent highway bonds and other road obligations by the state of Arkansas today through a bill signed into law by Gov. J. M. Futrell.

He approved the measure in the face of widespread protests from bondholders and a threat by the attorney general of Pennsylvania, which holds $200,000 of the highway bonds, to take a suit to the United States Supreme court, if necessary, in an effort to forestall the refunding program.

At the same time the governor signed a bill appropriating $4,380,000 a year for the next biennium to pay the interest on the new bonds.

CONSERVATORS TELL DETROIT BANK CONDITION

RevealDepositDrain on Closed Units.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Detroit, Mich., March 28.—Conservator C. O. Thomas of the First National bank, Detroit, following permission from Washington, D. C., today released statements showing the condition of the bank on Dec. 31, 1932, when the last report was made to the government; Feb. 11, of the current year, the day the bank closed for ordinary business, and March 13, the day the conservators took charge.

A similar statement covering the Guardian National Bank of Commerce was issued by Conservator B. C. Schram.

Figures indicate that deposits of the First National decreased nearly $25,000,000 between those dates, and decreases in the Guardian National amounted to approximately $27,000,000.

Deposits Normally Dropped.

It was explained, however, that deposits in January and February ordinarily were at the low point of the year due to cash being withdrawn from savings accounts for holiday expenditures and heavy withdrawals on commercial accounts in connection with the introduction of motor car models.

Efforts will be made by Conservator George H. Kirchner, to continue the Union Guardian Trust company as a going concern. An audit of the company is being made and in the meantime all operations of the banking department will be suspended pending the result of the examination.

Harry J. Fox was today appointed conservator of the Detroit Trust company, one of the largest and oldest fiduciary institutions of the middle west.

Conservators also were named today for the Equitable Trust company of Detroit. They are Myron W. Neal and Ralph S. Lane.

Committee Wins Concession.

The committee of seven, headed by Police Commissioner James K. Watkins which last week went to Washington in the interest of the First National and Guardian National banks, are returning with additional concessions for depositors. A tentative understanding was reached between the committee and federal officials which will give three direct benefits to depositors.

These include a reduction in the cost per share in the new National Bank of Detroit of which the government is half owner from $50 to $25; an increase of $10,000,000 in the R. F. C. loan to the two old banks permitting an increase from 2 to 2½ per cent in the funds immediately distributable; and an unhurried and orderly liquidation of the slow assets of the old banks, so that something approaching their real value may be realized. Whether these benefits are certain, however, is not yet known. The available balances seems to have been fixed at 50 per cent of deposits, including the 10 per cent heretofore payable.

The rush to open new accounts in the new National Bank of Detroit continues to such an extent that extra tellers have been assigned to handle the business. Monday, 750 depositors opened new commercial accounts, for a total of nearly $5,000,000 for the day.

Cleveland Seeks R. F. C. Loans.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cleveland, O., March 28.—A Reconstruction Finance corporation loan to permit the Union Trust company to reorganize as a national bank will be sought in Washington tomorrow by a Cleveland committee.

Appraisal of the bank's assets was completed today and C. J. Kraus, board chairman, and representatives of the Cleveland Federal Reserve bank left tonight.

It is understood that the plan approved by the reorganization committee calls for $10,000,000 in R. F. C. funds and $5,000,000 in local capital.

Completion of the appraisal and the decision to go to Washington followed reports that appointment of conservators for the Union Trust company and the Guardian Trust company, another large Cleveland bank which did not get a federal license to reopen, was under consideration.

Deposits Total $138,000,000.

Mr. Kraus revealed that deposits of the Union Trust company now amount to approximately $138,000,000, as compared with $170,000,000 in the weeks immediately preceding the restrictions on withdrawals and $195,000,000 at the first of this year. There are approximately 250,000 depositors.

Organization of a new bank to replace the present Guardian Trust company will be a national bank, it was indicated today when President Harold H. Burton replied to a depositors' committee suggesting information of a state bank.

Senator Bulkley tonight expressed belief that conservators would be appointed for the two banks.

Life Officials Fight Ban on Policy Loans

BY HOWARD WOOD.

Life insurance company officials in Chicago and elsewhere are beginning to believe that the life insurance business would be greatly benefited if some definite plan for the lifting of the moratorium on policy loans were worked out immediately.

"The success of the scheme for bringing the nation's banks out of the moratorium was due to the rapidity with which it was worked out," said one insurance company representative yesterday. "With the insurance companies, on the other hand, there seems to be no central authority and no coordination of effort. The moratorium promises to drag along and give all life insurance a black eye.

"The same plan that worked so well in the case of the banks should be applied to life insurance companies. If there are a few weak companies that need the protection of a moratorium, then let a program be drawn up to take care of them as the weaker banks are being taken care of. But let those that can meet demands do so.

"If life insurance companies continue to dodge the fulfillment of promises they made to policy holders when the policies were written, the result will be a decided decrease in the amount of new business written. There has been a big slump since the shutting off of policy loans and cash surrenders."

CLEAR STATEMENTS NEEDED

Rapidly growing is the demand for independent audits of the financial statements of corporations whose stocks or bonds are sold to the public.

The Chicago Stock exchange has adopted new rules ordering audits by certified public accountants as a qualification for listing with similar audits at yearly intervals thereafter.

The secretary of state's blue sky office has announced that in cases where there is any doubt concerning the figures submitted by applicants for qualification under the securities law, independent audits by an outside firm of accountants will be demanded.

The Edison Electric institute, successor to the National Electric Light association as the central trade association of the electric light and power industry, centers its bid for renewed public confidence in provisions of its by-laws calling for independent audits of company accounts.

Not Certain Protection.

These moves seem to imply that stockholders are automatically protected against misleading reports when those reports are audited by independent auditors, a supposition which lacks historical backing.

The Insull company accounts were audited. So were those of the Kreuger company.

The accounts of the Illinois Life Insurance company were audited by officials of the state department of insurance.

Now that the stock exchange, the state securities officials and the companies themselves are all insisting upon audits by independent firms of accountants the latter must be prepared to assume the responsibility for future consequences.

Their best protection would be to get out statements that anybody can read and understand. A balance sheet or income account can be made to conceal a multitude of weaknesses or it can be written simply and intelligibly.

CURTIS B. DALL MADE MEMBER OF WHEAT BOARD

President's Son-in-Law Welcomed in Pit.

Curtis B. Dall, son-in-law of President Roosevelt, yesterday was elected to membership in the Chicago Board of Trade by the board of directors of the commodity exchange.

Mr. Dall, who is a New York stock and cotton broker, got his initiation into pit activities in the morning when he made his appearance at the wheat pit. He was accompanied by Peter B. Carey, president of the board, and by Robert P. Boylan, vice president.

Although the wheat market was extremely active when Mr. Dall put in his appearance and all the brokers were busy, the President's son-in-law was given a warm welcome.

After watching the trading for some time, Mr. Dall commented to Mr. Carey that although he has been a floor trader in the New York Stock Exchange for a number of years he regarded grain trading as more difficult than stock trading.

MORGAN FILES MORTGAGE ON MITCHELL HOME

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Henry S. Morgan, a son of J. P. Morgan and partner in the banking firm bearing his father's name, has filed a mortgage of $150,000 on the Southampton home of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the board of the National City bank, it was learned today.

The mortgage, drawn on March 2, 1931, and executed and acknowledged on March 3, 1931, was filed several days ago in the Suffolk county clerk's office at Riverhead, Long Island.

This is the third mortgage filed by Mr. Morgan against properties of Mr. Mitchell and brings the total recorded amount to $1,150,000. The previous mortgages covered Mr. Mitchell's New York City residence and his home at Tuxedo Park. The lien covering Mr. Mitchell's Southampton establishment sets forth that it was given to Henry S. Morgan "to secure payment of an indebtedness."

AMERICAN CAN, ALLIED CHEMICAL VOTE DIVIDENDS

New York, March 28.—(AP)—Directors of Allied Chemical and Dye corporation today declared a regular quarterly dividend of $1.50 a share on the common stock, payable May 1 to stock of record April 11. The company has made no change in its dividend rate during the depression.

Directors of American Can company also declared today a regular quarterly dividend of $1 a common share, payable May 15 to stock of record April 24.

BENDIX AVIATION CANCELS ALL OF 'PAPER' ASSETS

Intangibles Cut from 38 Million to $1.

The writing down of patents and other intangible assets from $38,029,841 to $1 was the outstanding action reported in the annual statement of the Bendix Aviation corporation for 1932, which was submitted to stockholders of the company yesterday by President Vincent Bendix.

Operations of the company during 1932 resulted in a net loss of $1,601,242, compared with net income of $1,555,479 in 1931, the report states.

Mr. Bendix, in reporting on the change in the capital structure of the corporation, said that the board of directors considered desirable, as a conservative financial procedure, the readjusting of the balance sheet by writing down the value of the intangibles as of Dec. 14, 1932, to $1.

"The amount written off was charged to capital surplus created by the reduction in the amount of the capital represented by each of the 2,097,663 issued shares of stock from $25 to $5 a share," the report states. "Accordingly, the amount of capital shown in the balance sheet at the end of 1932 is $10,488,315.

Stock Given $5 Par Value.

"Concurrently the shares of the capital stock without par value were changed into shares having a par value of $5 each. The reduction in the amount of capital and the change in the par value of the stock of the corporation were authorized by the stockholders at a special meeting at South Bend on Nov. 17, 1932, and by the board of directors.

"These capital changes enabled a substantial saving in the annual franchise and license taxes which the corporation is obliged to pay. The actual assets and the real or market value of the stock of the corporation were in no way affected by these capital changes."

Current assets of the company as of Dec. 31, 1932, were $7,947,036, compared with $9,803,496 at the end of 1931. Current liabilities at the end of 1932 stood at $1,340,218, compared with $2,142,065 at the end of the preceding year. The report states the corporation has no bank loans or funded indebtedness.

As a result of the capital change made during 1932 total assets at the end of 1932 stood at $23,438,120, compared with $64,342,440 at the end of 1931. Surplus as of Dec. 31, 1932, was $11,030,036.

Affected by Auto Industry.

Mr. Bendix attributed the loss incurred during 1932 to the great decline in the volume of sales in the automobile industry. He stated that it was impossible to predict what sales in the automobile industry would be during 1933, but that the corporation has made every effort to strengthen its position in the industry through improvement of its existing products and the development of new products.

Discussing the outlook for the aviation activities of the corporation, Mr. Bendix said:

"Despite general business conditions there has been substantial progress in commercial and military aviation. Technical progress, to which the corporation has made substantial contributions, has developed rapidly. As aviation grows and develops, as we feel it must, that division of our operations should become increasingly important and profitable."

CUNEO PRESS, INC., PUTS '32 INCOME AT $1.85 A SHARE

Net profit of the Cuneo Press, Inc., for the year ended Dec. 31, 1932, were $466,994, after all charges, including depreciation and federal taxes, according to the annual report mailed yesterday to stockholders.

After deduction of preferred dividends paid, this sum equaled $1.85 a share on the 170,700 shares of common stock outstanding. In 1931 net profits were $891,486, or $4.30 a share.

The company followed its usual policy of charging prior year's taxes and extraordinary expenses to the present year's operating figures rather than to surplus, said the report.

Gifford Re-elected by A. T. T; No One Asks About Dividend

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Walter S. Gifford was reelected president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company at an organization meeting of the board of directors, following the annual meeting of stockholders today. All other officers were reelected, with the exception of E. C. McAllister, one of the assistant treasurers, who has retired on account of the age limit.

A suggestion that the American Telephone and Telegraph company consider the advisibility of placing a woman on the board of directors was made to Mr. Gifford at the stockholders' meeting. A Canadian woman stockholder brought out the idea, recalling the statement made by Mr. Gifford in his annual report on Feb. 10 that more than half the 700,851 stockholders were women.

All Directors Reelected.

The proposal was made after the stockholders by a practically unanimous vote had reelected the nineteen directors. Mr. Gifford thanked the stockholder for the suggestion, which he said was interesting, but which cannot be acted upon for another year unless some vacancy is created in the meantime.

Of the 700,000 odd stockholders entitled to attend the annual meeting only about 400 were present. They voted 10,653,561 shares, which was a working majority of the 18,662,275 shares outstanding.

Charles Francis Adams, who was elected to the board a short time ago, or just before he relinquished the navy portfolio in the Hoover cabinet; Winthrop W. Aldrich, George F. Baker, Charles P. Cooper, John W. Davis, W. Cameron Forbes, George P. Gardner, Walter S. Gifford, Hale Holden, David F. Houston, Edward E. Loomis, Arthur Lyman, Arthur W. Page, Thomas Nelson Perkins, Philip Stockton, Myron C. Taylor, Eugene V. R. Thayer, Samuel A. Welldon, and Daniel Willard.

No Question on Dividends.

Not a question was asked on the future dividend policy of the company. A subject to which much attention has been focused recently by the reduction of dividends on five operating units in the Bell system.

On April 15 American Telephone stockholders will receive dividends aggregating approximately $43,000,000, or at the regular rate of $2.25 a share. At that time, if precedent is followed, the stockholders will also receive a statement of earnings for the first quarter of 1933. A month later the board of directors will meet to consider the next dividend.

Stock Yards Bank-Trust Due to Reopen

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Stock Yards Bank and Trust company, largest bank in Chicago outside the loop, will reopen with new capital as a national institution before the end of the week, it was reliably reported yesterday.

Reopening of the 17 million dollar bank will enable a number of downstate banks, which carry their balances with the institution, to resume business simultaneously.

Official announcement of the admission of the bank to the national system is expected in the next day or so. The bank serves the stockyards district and is located at 4150 Halsted street.

The bank was formed last January by the merger of the Stock Yards National bank and the Stock Yards Trust and Savings bank. Deposits of the consolidated bank on Jan. 10 were just short of 15 million dollars.

Plan Changes in Personnel.

Plans for reopening the bank include not only the raising of a substantial amount of new money but also changes in personnel and other adjustments, it was stated. Among the present directors of the bank are F. H. Prince, Boston capitalist, and Thomas E. Wilson, packer.

Plans for the reopening of another important Chicago bank, The South Chicago Savings bank, are also nearing completion, it is reported. The bank is understood to have raised nearly all the new capital necessary for resumption of normal business. The bank is located in the South Chicago steel area. E. J. Buffington, former president of the Illinois Steel company, a United States Steel subsidiary, is a director. The bank had deposits at the close of 1932 of slightly more than 2 million dollars.

Other Banks to Reopen.

State Auditor Edward J. Barrett last night issued licenses to reopen to 17 more state banks. Only one, the State Bank and Trust company of West Chicago, is in the Chicago area. The banks are expected to resume business today. This brings the total of licensed state banks to 336 out of a total of 704.

The list follows:

VALMEYER—Farmers State Bank of Valmeyer.
MONTROSE—Grews State Bank and Trust company.
LOAMI—Loami State bank.
Mount Pulaski—The Farmers' State Bank of Mount Pulaski.
TIMEWELL—Timewell State bank.

MITCHELL, DILLON RESIGN FROM AM. & FOR. POWER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, March 28.—Resignation of Charles E. Mitchell, former chairman of the National City bank, and Clarence Dillon of Dillon, Read & Co., as directors of American and Foreign Power company, Inc., was announced today. No successors were elected to fill the vacancies.

The retirement of Mr. Mitchell from the board of the Electric Bond and Share affiliate is in line with his previously announced intention of completely severing himself from former business connections.

The action of Mr. Dillon is said to reflect a desire on his part to restrict his activities to a great extent to his own firm and to gradually retire from the boards of directors upon which he has been serving.

Corn Products Refining Co. More Active than Year Ago

Business volume of the Corn Products Refining company in the first quarter of 1933, as measured by the grind of corn, is "a little better" than in the corresponding period of last year and domestic profits are about the same as a year ago, Frank H. Hall, counsel for the company, told the stockholders at their annual meeting yesterday.

MIDDLE WEST UNITS REPORT LOWER INCOME

Receivers of Parent Firm Give Data.

Reports on the 1932 operations of three of the principal subsidiary holding companies of the Middle West Utilities company were issued yesterday by receivers for the parent company.

The Central and South West Utilities company, largest subholding company still in the system, reported net income $1,425,000, a decline of approximately $2,500,000 from 1931. As in the previous reports issued, the income figure is subject to adequacy of depreciation reserves. The Insull depreciation policies are being drastically revised.

Indebtedness Is Reduced.

The company retired its bank loans last year and reduced its indebtedness to subsidiaries to $1,227,000. The company's subsidiaries operate in Texas, Oklahoma, Louisiana, and Arkansas.

The North West Utilities company reported net income of $82,630. The drastic decline from $1,550,000 in 1931 resulted from an order of the Wisconsin public utility commission requiring its subsidiaries to discontinue dividends to the parent company. The company controls the Wisconsin Power and Light company, the Lake Superior District Power company, and the Northwestern Public Service company. A number of important balance sheet and surplus changes are shown in the report.

American Public Service Report.

Net income of $164,570 was reported by the American Public Service company, which controls the West Texas Utilities company. Gross revenue was $4,312,534, against $5,234,208 in 1931. Surplus deductions totaled $540,584, representing investment reserve, reserve for tax contingencies, and losses on notes and accounts receivable.

Reserve Board May Suppress Banking Study

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—Quashing of a three year investigation into the nation's banking system and possible methods of improvement is being considered by the federal reserve board, it was learned today.

The study has gone into questions which are now prominently before the country such as security affiliates, branch and chain banking and the effects of the American dual banking system. The reserve board, under whose auspices the study was made, is now considering suppressing the results.

Decision Is Held Up.

Actual decision to let the study go unpublished has not yet been reached because of the pressure of other business, but it is understood to be looming. Already dissatisfaction among the reserve board members over the results of the study has caused large sections to be rewritten.

Meanwhile, it was learned that the reserve board is considering the publication of a legal memorandum setting forth possible ways of unifying the commercial banks in one system. While the memorandum sets forth ways of settling the banking problem the study would present data on the desirability of suggested solutions.

Discharge of the committee which conducted the study for the reserve board is scheduled for April 1. Members of the group have been urging the publication of their work before they are dispersed but they have been unable to get any action from the board.

Criticize Results of Study.

Severe criticism of the results of the study leading to considerable revision and additional research came out of a meeting which the reserve board and its advisers held early in the fall. Although the business of the meeting was not announced at the time, it is now disclosed that the board then weighed and postponed the publication of the study.

Not even the 15 or 16 subjects which were embraced in the investigation have ever been officially announced by the board. Some of them were chain and group banking, security affiliates, branch banking with a special study of branch banking as practiced in California, banking earnings, the dual banking system of this country, European banking systems, bank suspensions with a special study of certain suspensions.

NICHOLS REFUSES TO JOIN IN BANKS' INTEREST BOOST

J. M. Nichols, Englewood banker, yesterday took issue with the Chicago Clearing House association with respect to the interest rate to be paid on demand deposits. In a letter to depositors of the First National Bank of Englewood, of which he is president, Mr. Nichols stated:

"We are not increasing the rate of interest paid on demand deposits to 1 per cent, as is being done by the Chicago Clearing House association. This is an unbusiness-like piece of window dressing, coming, as it does, at a time when practically every bank in Chicago is passing dividends, cutting salaries, or losing money.

"Our present rate of one-fourth of 1 per cent must stand on those demand accounts whose average monthly balances exceed $3,000. You must rest assured that we will raise the rate at such time as we deem it in keeping with common sense and sound banking."

R. F. C. MAY LET BANKS REPAY LOANS IN STOCK

Would Free Billion in Collateral.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., March 28.—The Reconstruction Finance corporation is considering converting all its old bank loans into subscriptions for preferred stock, thus releasing to the borrowing banks a billion dollars in collateral. At the same time Secretary Woodin issued an order broadening the powers of conservators of closed banks.

Return to the banks of the collateral pledged to the R. F. C. for loans would furnish them with a new basis for loans from the federal reserve banks, throwing open new and vast stores of credit to the banks. The Reconstruction Finance corporation would, in effect, trade secured loans for an interest in hundreds of banks.

Only tentative consideration is being given to the plan as yet, it was learned. Whether it develops into more serious proportions remains to be seen.

More Than Billion in Loans.

On March 21 the corporation had authorized one billion 225 million dollars in bank loans, of which 117 million dollars had subsequently been canceled. The remaining billion dollars or more of loans would be converted into preferred stock subscriptions. All the collateral would then be released back to the banks and could be used for new loans from the reserve banks.

If this plan is adopted it will fit into the order which the federal reserve board is reported to have sent out instructing banks to apply to the reserve banks rather than to the R. F. C. for loans. A new segregation of duties between reserve banks and the corporation would then be effected. Formerly both institutions have been loaning to banks, one on slow assets and the other on quick paper.

The plan would fit also into the movement to bring more banks under federal supervision and thus move toward unification of the banking system.

The corporation has required that preferred stock issued to it carry voting privileges. Thus the transfer of loans for stock issues would give the corporation a voice in the management and a share in the ownership of thousands of banks throughout the country.

Order Would Release Funds.

Secretary Woodin's order is intended to effect the partial release of funds now tied up in more than a thousand Federal Reserve Member banks which are in the hands of conservators.

Restricted opening of such banks was permitted under an order which the secretary issued. The order allows banks in the hands of conservators "to transact such limited banking functions as may be authorized in accordance with law by the controller of the currency in the case of national banks or by the appropriate state officials in the case of state member banks."

In effect, the order merely carried out a provision laid down in the emergency banking law. The law allows the conservator, with the con-

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

Sufficient growing weather has been experienced lately to disclose the actual condition of winter wheat, and a flood of damage reports was received by local statisticians yesterday. These reports were instrumental in starting a buying movement in futures in the last hour of trading which swept aside all opposition from sellers, and caused an advance of 2¼ cents from the early low. While there was aggressive selling at times, which was attributed to the farm board, it was readily absorbed.

May wheat touched 53⅞ cents on the bulge, or the highest figure since March 16, and the finish was about top. Net gains for the day were 1⅞ to 1⅝ cents, with May closing at 55⅝ to 55⅝-53⅞ cents. July at 53⅞ to 54 cents, and September at 54⅛ to 54¼-54⅝ cents.

Estimate Large Acreage Loss.

Crop comments from the southwest and from the Pacific northwest were regarded by some traders as the most sensational given out in years. B. W. Snow had returns from the large wheat growing areas in Washington and Oregon suggesting in parts of that section winter killing had destroyed the bulk of the crop. Official reports showed the two states seeded 2,311,000 acres last fall. Reports from Kansas were extremely pessimistic, and included some from the south central section, which heretofore has been regarded by the trade as in fairly good condition.

Houses with eastern connections were free buyers of wheat futures toward the last. According to trade gossip, part of this buying was based on the belief that inflation in the currency is inevitable.

Corn Higher with Wheat.

Corn held within narrow price limits until near the close, when the strength in wheat started a buying movement. The market moved up readily and closing figures were the highest since last November, with net gains of ¼ to ⅝ cent. May was 29½ to 29⅝, 33 to 33⅛ cents.

Trade in oats was rather slow early, but the market strengthened later with other grains and closed unchanged to ¼ cent higher. May was 18⅝ cents, and July 19 to 19⅛ cents at the last. Cash interests were fair buyers early, while the northwest was spreading between the various delivories. Rye gained ½ cent with wheat, with May and July at 39½ cents at the last. Barley was up ¼ cent for the day, with May at 31¼ cents.

PRODUCE MARKETS

Demand for fresh eggs was fair with the market little changed. Receipts, 24,135 cases. Butter was steady with receipts, 10,940 tubs. Live hens and leghorns advanced ½c, while geese were 2c higher. Receipts, 1 car and 31 trucks. Potatoes steady with receipts 87 cars, and 286 cars were on team track.
